LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're still under influences where money might come to you more readily than usual. Be dollar minded and also look for ways to make good things better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be afraid to take on more assignments than usual today. You are likely to perform better if you feel circumstances are prodding you a bit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Several good things might be developing for you at this time that you'll be eager to discuss with others. However, it might be best to keep what's occurring to yourself a bit longer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions in general are very hopeful for you in this cycle, but you are likely to be luckiest in situations that have impressive potential. Big is better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be quite successful today, especially if you are able to collectively link together several related objectives. Make one from the many.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you might have an opportunity to teach someone you like how to handle a testy situation similar to one you successfully dealt with in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your best chances for adding to your resources today aren't likely to come through your customary channels, but you could score through a new one you just opened.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone who has never been very cooperative with you could do an about face at this time and turn into an ally upon whom you can truly depend. You'll be brought together in an unusual way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take a little extra time today to organize your procedures in advance before tackling tasks. When your tools are laid out and your plans made, you'll be very productive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your greatest asset today is likely to be your mental agility. This attribute will be effectively utilized in your social involvements. It will enhance your popularity and win admirers.

Seeing it all coming

After North and South had bid their hands to the hilt, South was on the right track to making six hearts. He won the opening diamond lead, ruffed a diamond and then played a low spade from dummy. When East played the eight-spot, South reasoned that East did not hold the king. So declarer put in the nine, West winning the 10.

If West now tamely returns a trump, declarer will win in his hand and lead the queen of spades. It does West no good to cover (all the spades in dummy will then become good), and declarer will let the queen ride. A diamond ruff will now be followed by the ruff of a low spade. Declarer can then pick up trumps, get to dummy with the ace of clubs, and play the ace of spades and the good seven of spades, discarding losing clubs.

If West plays another diamond after winning the 10 of spades, declarer can ruff, draw trumps by overtaking dummy's jack of hearts, and then pass the queen of spades as before. (Remember, if West covers, dummy's 7-6-5 of spades will all be good.) After the queen of spades holds, declarer plays out all his trumps. Eventually West must unguard either the spade king or the club king, and the slam makes.

Brian Glubok, who sat West, saw all this coming, so he led the king of clubs after winning his spade 10, sacrificing a trick. But after taking the ace of clubs, declarer could not work out a way to make a later trick with the ace of spades and still ruff his other diamond loser, and the enterprising slam had to fail.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.
