Prompt Action On Part of Firemen Saves Mother and Two Small Children

Mrs. O. Pilon and her two small children Suzette, two and Maurice four years, are very lucky to be alive today. The quick thinking of Mrs. Pilon in calling the fire department and the departments prompt action averted a near tragedy.

The firemen arriving at 229 Hemlock in answer to the call found the back porch of the house in flames and the occupants trapped in the house. The front door was

Mr. Pilon had removed the ashes before going to work and put them on the wooden floor near the door of the back porch. The heat from the ashes caused the wall and door to ignite and any exit from this direction was cut off. With the front door closed up for the winter the mother and children were trapped.

The damage was very light and completely covered by insurance.

This near tragedy brought stern warning from Fire Chief Stanley, "If to close up any entrance of a home for the sake of a few shovel fulls of coal," he said. "This should be fair warning to any of those who have one entrance of their home closed up for the winter."
