FOR FARMERS.

the report of Flesherton Cheese Factory published in another column is rather an eye-opener to those of our agriculturists whose faith in cheese factories has been rather slim. It must be apparent to all that the patrons of our Cheese Factory are a level-headed lot of men, who are not bound to depend on their grain and other crops for a living. While price for the various cereals—particularly wheat—range very low this year, the products of the dairy have been commanding high prices, and the wisdom of those of our farmers who have gone extensively into stock raising and the products of the dairy is apparent. Comparatively speaking, poultry, raising even, is more profitable than growing wheat. Eggs have not been as low as 12 cents a dozen during the past year, and at the present time they "sell like hot cakes" at 16 and 20 cents per dozen. The intelligent, practical farmer will put this and that together and the result will be—less grain, more stock, and more poultry.

Just imagine one of the patrons of our cheese factory "raking in" within a fraction of four hundred dollars during the past season of six months duration, and you have a faint idea of the amount of money circulated in this section of Artemesia through the medium of this splendid industry. Of course it must be remembered that it is possibly the best managed factory in Grey, and that the cheese manufactured was of such a quality as to command the highest market price. But even if the prices were a cent and a half lower than obtained, the cheese business would still be a fruitful source of profit to the shrewd, wide-awake farmer.

All things considered, wheat is about the least profitable and most uncertain of all the products of the farm, and we believe the day is not far distant when large tracts of land in this Province, which are at present "worked to death" in the cultivation of unprofitable cereals, will be used for grazing purposes. When that time comes, there will be less talk of depression than there is in this year of our Lord 1885.

When King James the first wrote his counterblast to tobacco the royal pendant knew nothing of the "Myrtle Navy." If he had, instead of wasting his brains over his curious production, he would have filled his royal pipe with it, and would have taken a royal smoke, he would then have been prepared to admit that with regard to the injurious effects of tobacco, it all depends on what tobacco you smoke.

MORE EGGS IN WINTER.

This is the very time when eggs are worth the most, when hens want to lay as much or more than they do at any other time, and when they are not allowed to do so by most poultry keepers. Folks think there is a great mystery about making hens lay in winter. There is none; anybody can do it; that is, the hens will lay if you let them. They bear a good deal of cold in the sunshine, and even freeze their combs and toes, and yet will not stop laying altogether if they can sleep warm. Now do not begin to plan setting up a stove in the hen house, or introducing steam pipes. Artificial heat is not poisonous perhaps, but very nearly so to chickens. They are warm themselves, and need only to be crowded on their roosts, with the roosts all on one level. The ceiling of the roosting room should be only a few feet above the fowls' heads, and provided with ventilation from the floor if possible. Give them very close quarters, with no drafts of cold air, and clean out under the roosts every morning, not excepting Sundays. The combs will then redden up, and eggs will be plenty on less feed than usual. It must not be corn, however, or only a small percentage of it, for this will make them too fat to lay well if they sleep warm.—Col. Weld in American Agriculturist for Jan.

We have seen farmers throw a forkful of splendid hay into each fence corner, and more on the top of the manure pile, only to be half-trampled under foot. The same men wonder why their hay doesn't "go farther." The farm-yard without a good feeding rack, or racks, lacks an important convenience. Remember, we can make hay in winter as well as in summer, by saving it.....Always avoid abrupt changes in feeding. One advantage of good ensilage is, that it helps to avoid sudden changes from pasture to dry feed.....We do not believe in blanketing horses in the stable. It is advisable to throw on the blankets when the team comes in warm after a drive, but only for an hour or two. Have the stables warm enough to keep the horses comfortable without blankets; they will stand the cold better when out of doors.....If eggs are wanted in winter, select early hatched pullets of laying breeds, and give them warm quarters, clean perches, sufficient water (not too cold), and a feed in the morning of corn meal and wheat middlings, wet up with milk. Feed meat scraps daily, and keep oyster shells broken fine, and plenty of gravel within reach of the fowls. At noon feed corn, buckwheat, etc., scattered among chaff; clover hay, or oats in the bundle, may be given frequently for the fowls to pick at.—American Agriculturist for January.

Absurd Mistakes.

Several absurd mistakes occurred in last week's Advance. In the report of the Public School entertainment occurs the following: "The Head Master, Mr. Munroe, deserves credit for the excellent manner in which the pupils acquainted themselves." Of course the word in italics should have been acquitted. In the item headed, "The Nominations," the accidental transposition of two small words utterly destroyed the sense of one of the sentences. As printed, it read: "The remarks of and Christoe were comprehensive, clear Dr. satisfactory." The words in italics were accidentally transposed in correcting proof, as both came at the end of lines.

Catarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefited, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov. 17, 1882.

International and Colonial Exhibitions.

Antwerp in 1885—London in 1886

It is the intention to have a Canadian representation at the International Exhibition at Antwerp, commencing in May, 1885, and also at the Colonial and Indian Exhibition in London in 1886.

The Government will defray the cost of freight in conveying Canadian Exhibits to Antwerp, and from Antwerp to London, and also of returning them to Canada in the event of their not being sold.

All Exhibits for Antwerp should be ready for shipment not later than the first week in March next.

These Exhibitions, it is believed, will afford favorable opportunity for making known the natural capabilities, and manufacturing and industrial progress of the Dominion.
