Mr. B. Welton complains to The Advance regarding the action of certain youths who enter his garden and orchard leaving gates open and trampling grain He is likely to make an example of some of these careless ones--and who could blame him?

The Advance had a pleasant but all too short call from W. J. Blakeston, teacher in one of Stratford's public schools, who is up spending a few weeks with old friends on the Durham Road and elsewhere. Some years ago Mr. Blakestone taught the Priceville school and was one of our most valued correspondents.

The Markdale Standard still thinks the complaint that few prizes were awarded at the Twelfth of July demonstration there unfair to the management. We have no desire to be unfair. It was Orangemen themselves who told The Advance that they had no chance to compete in some of the events and saw no competition. We do not know whether this was the fault of the management in not making properly known the hour and place of competition, or whether it was the fault of the complainant aforesaid. At least three people informus that they saw no competition and did not think there had been any. We cannot help but think the management could have announced more clearly when and where the competition was to take place, so that all who wished could enter. However, we are certainly willing to accept the Standard's assertion that "Visiting lodges were all inspected and judged while on parade and every prize offered was paid in cash that day. The parade of decorated autos in competition for prizes failed to take place for lack of competition, yet prizes were paid to those who entered. The program was thus rigorously fulfilled."

While working in a gravel pit on his father's farm, Mr. Charles McCauley of Chatsworth was partially buried with a falling bank. The gravel buried Mr. McCauley almost to the hips and threw him forcibly against a waggon, fracturing the small bone of his left leg and dislocating his foot.—News.

Bad Gasoline Fire Burns Men and Car

Shelburne Free Press.

A regrettable accident occurred on ten sideroad, Melancthon, Monday evening, whereby Fred Strother, son of L. C. Strother of Hornings Mills, and Lester Hill, son of Rice Hill of Whitfield, were most horribly burned by burning gasoline. The latter was returning in his car from a garden party at Hornings Mills and became stranded on the roadside owing to lack of gasoline. He was shortly overtaken by Mr. Strother, who naturally volunteered to let him out of the difficulty with a supply from the tank in his own car. It was while Mr. Strother was under his car getting the gasoline that someone unthinkingly struck a match in the darkness and instantly all was ablaze. Mr. Strother managed to get from under the burning car with difficulty but not before his chest, arms and face were terribly burned, while Mr. Hill also sustained severe burns on both hands while giving assistance to save Mr. Strother. The car was completely burned, only the metal parts remaining. The injuries of the two men were temporarily attended to by Dr. Gowan of Hornings Mills, Mr. Strother being removed to a Toronto hospital on Tuesday morning for further treatment. He was accompanied by his parents and Dr. Gowan, and while his injuries are not expected to prove fatal, he is in a very painful condition. Both young men are returned soldiers and the sad occurrence is greatly bo be regretted.

A Good School

The Orangeville Business College has just completed the most successful year in its history, having had during the school year over one hundred students in attendance ; this is a larger enrollment than most city colleges.

The interior of the College is being redecorated and considerable new equipment added for the reopening on Sept. 2nd. Every graduate is assured a good position and its old graduates are among the most successful in this province.

The Orangeville Business College is approved by the Military Authorities of Canada as a training school for returned soldiers, who are entitled to a free education, and a living allowance of four hundred and twenty dollars during the six months.

Many ambitious young people, who cannot attend now, are taking advantage of the Home Study Courses, thereby shortening their term at College and cutting down expenses.

All interested should write now for information and thus get advantage of the old rate of tuition fees. The Orangeville Business College is affiliated with the Canada Business College, Toronto, and ten other colleges.
