GATHERED ROSES.

Only a bud made glorious,
Caught in a gathered rose!
Was he not where a flower so lovely
For the first gatherer grows?

Only a heart made glorious,
Going out from us more!
Was he not fair as a flower so lovely
Much he has been gathered before?

The Ottawa of the Montreal Gazette says: "The general feeling in the lumber trade here at present is highly satisfactory, reports from Burlington and other points in the United States being decidedly favorable to an advance in prices for sawing. Two million acres are in all more, every case adhering to their agreement to curtail operations in the woods this winter, which cannot but have a good effect on the market. Very few lumbers are taking out logs this winter being unable to obtain advances. This will also tend largely to reduce the supply of logs, and keep the cut more in accordance with the demand. A prominent lumber merchant informed your correspondent that the business of the past season has on the whole been far more profitable than that of last year, and a prominent director of the improvement was the direct entire absence of bad debts, which is accounted for by the fact that the depression has wiped out nearly all the doubtful concerns, leaving only the sound and substantial men of small capital, solidity to withstand the effects of unprofitable markets and small demand of the last two years.

LITERARY NOTICES.

Westminster Review. We have received from Belford Bros., the Canadian publishers, the November number of this able magazine. Its contents are "Science and Man," by Prof. Tyndal; "The Foreign Dominions of the Crown," by the Rt. Hon. R. Lowe, M. P.; "The Powers of our Commons," by Octavius Hall; "Conversations with M. Thiers, M. Guizot and Various W. Senior;" "Books and Critics," by Mark Pattison; "Dr. Newman's Theory of Belief," by Leslie Stephen; "A Speculation on Evolution," by A. J. Balfour, M. P.; "Three Books of the Eighteenth Century, II," by the Editor.

ST. NICHOLAS for December surpasses any former number of this exceedingly popular children's magazine. The publishers, Scribner & Co., New York, have made St. Nicholas the best magazine of the kind published, and it is not only highly entertaining and instructive for the young people, but the old folks will find a great deal to interest them as well. The Christmas number has a handsome new cover and a wealth of illustrations in the highest style of the art. A great attraction will be Miss Alcott's new story, "Under the Lilacs." The magazine is for sale at Porter's.

Appleton's Journal (New York: D. Appleton & Co.) The contents for this magazine for December are excellent and varied in their character. "The Head waters of the Rhine;" "A Trip to the Bermudas;" "A Morning Call on the Infanta Cave Folk" and "New Egypt" present attractive and well written accounts of places that have rendered notable either by their historical associations or by the poetical atmosphere which surrounds them.

The stories of "Celia's Arbor" and "Cherry Ripe" continue to grow in interest, while the shorter tales, "A Night in the Mountains," "The Master of Hushea," and "His Western Kathaline," are pleasing sketches of life. "Observation and Imagination" and "An Artist on Art" are both articles that will amply repay the study of earnest readers. The poetry and the editorial department betoken the ability by which they are usually characterized.

SCRIBNER FOR DECEMBER opens with a paper on the lumber trade of the United States, by Charles D. Robinson, entitled "The Wooden Age." The description of the life and dangers of the lumbermen is aided by half a dozen vigorous drawings. Following closely upon this is Col. Waring's enthusiastic paper about "The Thoroughbred Horse," which contains suggestions about training for the turf and riding to hounds, and a picturesque description of an English fox-hunt, with reproductions of some of Leech's famous cartoons. A paper on "American Oyster Culture," also illustrated, is an interesting account of the methods employed in American waters for the culture of the oyster. The travel paper takes the reader "From the Atlantic to the Andes," via the Amazon and Madeira rivers, and has an account of caoutchouc manufacture and some late information with regard to the progress of Brazil. With her papers on "Cuts," of which many curious facts are told, Mrs. Herrick closes her series of microscopic studies. Another scientific paper, "Mars and his Moons," is by Lieut. E. W. Sturdy, of the United States Naval Observatory, whose calculations have met the approval of Prof. Hall, the discoverer of the moons. The serials are continued. There are many other valuable and entertaining papers. The editorial departments are, as usual, able and excellent.
