Wednesday of last week afforded an unusual amount of excitement in town. There were three weddings, two runaways and one horse dropped dead on the street. A livery team upset a sleigh and ran away. Mr. John Hales had his horse hitched to an ice cream can at Cargoe's grocery and becoming scared it jerked the can off its feet and ran a couple of blocks with the can wildly flying in the air from the halter strap. The swing of the can threw the horse off its balance and it fell heavily while going at a record gait and skated along the ground for some distance on its side. The animal's tongue was cut and no doubt if it could speak there would have been a long story of pains, aches and bruises over a wide area. In the afternoon a team belonging to Mr. Mark Wilson undertook to draw a load of wedding celebrators to the station to witness the departure of two bran new wedding parties. It is said there were 25 people in the large sleigh. It is thought the team could have managed these all right, only that each individual was loaded down with confetti. This was too much and one of the horses, a mare, dropped dead on the road. The animal was not accustomed to so much excitement—and confetti.

Still we have only wagoning and autos are yet running.

Canadians have long known the wonders of big game hunting in Canada but this month's Rod and Gun in Canada contains an American's impression of what he terms his greatest big game hunt. Morris Adams, the famous writer and big game hunter, visited British Columbia last fall and with camera and pen he tells an interesting story of big game hunting in his own inimitable manner. In addition to this article, there are sixteen stories and articles dealing with the great outdoor life in Canada. The various departments are up to their usual high standard in thisissue. Rod and Gun in Canada is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont.

To give our foreign subscribers an idea of the mildness of our winter here, this incident will afford a good example: On Friday last a Reo truck made the 85 miles from Toronto to Flesherton, carrying a large plate glass for a firm in Meaford. They got as far as Rocklyn, ten miles from their destination, when snow on the highlands stopped progress and they were obliged to return as far as Flesherton Saturday, and on Sunday returned with the glass to Toronto. We understand the glass was being delivered for an insurance company. To get within ten miles of their destination and then have to retreat a hundred miles, must have been almost as heartbreaking as it was to the Hun when he began his retreat from France and Belgium.
