Insurance Is Good, But—

Insurance will, in a measure, repay you for loss from fire due to lightning.

But it will not prevent the fire.

It takes the DODD System of Lightning Protection to do that.

In the past thirty years over 300,000 buildings have been rodded by the DODD System and in not a single instance is there a record of the DODD System properly installed, having failed to prevent damage by lightning.

The fact that you haven't yet suffered loss by lightning only means that you are fortunate, not that you are proof against it. Ask us today what it will cost you to have DODD protection.

Why a $5,000 Bull Was Sold for $50.

When a certain farmer a few years ago sold his registered Holstein bull to his local butcher no records had been made by any of the bull's daughters. Within a year eleven of the daughters freshened at the ages of two and three. Records were made of milk and butter-fat production, and to the astonishment of everybody the average milk production was 14,502 pounds and the average butter-fat production was 573 pounds.

But before these records were available the bull was dead and his hide had become leather. Because there were no records, a $5,000 bull had been sold for $50.

People on Farms Live the Longest.

Life on the farm is the healthiest and safest, according to statistics compiled by the United States Bureau of Labor showing the average age at death in various occupations. The farmer and farm laborer live longer than other workers. This does not "seem longer," which, it will be remembered, is the joint in the old joke concerning the longevity of married folk contrasted with bachelors and spintsers—it is longer, and official research records prove it. Farmers live to the average age of 58.5 years, blacksmiths are given three years less of life, and masons and bricklayers die at an average age of 55. The list tapers down to bookkeepers and office assistants who are given an average life of no more than 36.5 years.

BUYING A FARM.

Some Very Practical and Timely Hints to Would-be Purchasers of Farm Property.

The most important decision that a farmer is called on to make is the selection of a farm on which to live and earn a living. The judgment used in making the selection of a farm may make or break a man, may tie him up for life to poverty or to wealth. In districts where the soil is uniformly good over a large area and where prosperity is evident on all sides the task is not so great and risky. But in districts where various types and grades of soil exist a poor farm and a good farm may lie side by side. The good farm will no doubt help to sell the poor one, which, by the way, is always for sale.

See Your Prospective Farm In July.

Farm purchases are most frequently made during the winter when the opportunity for close examination is least. This should not be so. If farms were purchased on the basis of the crop showing during the month of July there would be fewer regrets. If a man contemplates purchasing a farm in a district where he has lived for a long period, he will know the soil and district conditions. Knowing conditions the purchaser will hand over his money with his eyes wide open; if he does not know conditions in the district he will be handing over his money with his eyes closed and must depend upon the honesty of some one else. Purchasers of farms are advised to live and work in the district of their choice for at least a year before investing heavily.—L. Stevenson, Secretary Dept. of Agriculture, Toronto

Hydro Is Working At Chippawa

The following report of the opening of the great Hydro power canal at Chippewa is from the London Free Press: The mighty Niagara River today bowed to the genius of Canadian engineers. The great Queenston-Chippewa power development scheme in a reality. A new high mark in the achievement record of Sir Adam Beck was sent down today to glow in the near and distant future as a monument to the invulnerable statesman

Precisely at 1.41 o'clock this afternoon Premier Drury, assisted by Sir Adam Beck's daughter, Miss Marion, started to turn open the gates which released the water of the power canal, 305 feet above the level of the Niagara River, at the power plant at Queenston. There was a low hum, which developed into a rythmic purr. The larghest generator in the world was in operation, sirens screeched, while more than 1500 people, assembled from all parts of Ontario and many points in the United States to witness the official ceremony, stood almost spellbound then suddenly a great sign hung on the wall high overhead was illuminated. It told its own story: "Queenston Chippawa development, the largest hydro plant in the world: ultimate capacity 650,000 horsepower." The power to make the hundreds of lamps glow steadily and brighter was coming from the gigantic generator just set in motion and capable of developing 55,000 horsepower.

The formal opening was brief. Sir Adam Beck delivered a short address introducing Premier Drury. Following this part of the function, the large crowd adjourned to the top floor of the power plant and there listened to stirring addresses by the premier and Sir Adam.

Premier Drury declared during his address, which dealt with hydro radials, as well as the Chippewa plant, that the reports in circulation that the Ontario Government was considering the creation of a minister of power was absolutely without foundation "The matter has never been considered," he said "It has not even been discussed" His pronouncement was greeted with prolonged cheers. Mayor-elect McGuire, Toronto, speaking later, said that he hoped that would always be the policy of the Drury administration, and the sentiment of the large audience was manifest.

"I am too filled, too full of pride, too thrilled with what is going to take place for the people," said Sir Adam, "to make any speech This is a historic section of the country One hundred years ago the armies of our people demonstrated on the heights above us what the British race can do. Today with peace prevailing, the great peace conference under way, we are demonstrating one of the greatest natural assets of the country. It will live for all time to come"

Sir Adam spoke of the period of anxiety through which the executive forces of the hydro undertaking had gone the financial responsibility placed upon the Government, and paid tribute to the men who had worked out the details of the scheme. "The engineers are Canadians. They are our own boys, educated in our own universities. There are those who said they were amateurs, but now these boys can be accorded a position of eminence. They are freed of all anxiety, freed of all responsibility. Evidence of their efficiency is here—the greatest power plant in the whole world.

Premier Dtury said, as he and Miss Marion Beck began to open the gates: "In opening this gate I do so in the hope and belief that the development will serve the people in a way never done before. The Government has not once hindered the progress in the development Not once was the work halted despite great difficulties I have faith and hope that in generating this power it will take care of the obligations incurred. In doing so I hope it will result in great service by, for and of the people.
