Our Letter From Ottawa

Miss Agnes McPhail Again Favors Us With An Interesting Letter

The debate on the Speech from the Throne is over. This debate is a free-for-all in which any one can speak on any subject for any length of time. At first it proved very interesting, especially when conducted by such expert debaters as Mr. King and Mr. Meighen. They staged a good scrap, and as a spectator I enjoyed it, but it proved once again that the real aim of party politics is to fence for position always, regardless of what is best for the Country. Neither broke new ground, and their speeches were principally in reference to the late election. I thought King came out slightly ahead, because he forebore to a greater extent than Meighen. Mr. Crerar steered clear of mud slinging, and simply, and in a most engaging way, set forth our platform, and warned the Government what would happen if they did not bring down legislation in accordance with or approaching to our ideas.

Brevity distinguished the speech of Sir Lomer Gouin, and length the speech of Tommy Church, Toronto.

I am well impressed with the Progressive Group and each speaker showed a reasonableness and real knowledge of the subject discussed to a greater extent than the average of any other group except labour. The Labour Group are exceedingly fortunate, for although they have only two members, those two make up in quality what they lack in quantity. I consider the speech of Will Irvine, East Calgary, (who wrote "The Farmers in Politics") the most thoughtful of all speeches delivered. It was, indeed, the only one that advocated any striking change. He asked that a motion be introduced which would allow a subject to be discussed on its merits: that is, — that the defeat of a motion would not mean the defeat of the Government. He reviewed the whole credit system, and suggested an investigation with a view to improving our system of credit.

We are considering estimates. There certainly seems to be an unlimited amount of positions in all the Departments of the Government. One is lead to wonder what they all do. The positions have some marvellous names. I think when we get to know the work better, that I will visit some Department, and see what they really do.

Our first division came this week It was a straight lack of confidence vote in the Government, introduced by the Conservatives to prove that the Liberal party does not stand on its platform. I thought that fact was pretty generally accepted and left the chamber a few minutes before the division was called

The most striking thing about it here is how hard we have to work, and then never anything like get time to do what we should do. We do not get to bed any night before 12 o'clock. That makes it impossible to be in our office before 9 30 a. m. Then comes mail to read and answer, papers to read, people to receive who have a grouch and people who have not one also, often a caucus or conference and then lunch, and before you know it, it is time to appear in the Chamber. I had looked forward to doing much studying, but up to now have been so rushed with details that I have studied nothing.

I am on three Committees: "Elections Privileges," "Banking and Commerce," and special parliamentary Committee on "Soldiers' pensions." The work of this last Committee is very heavy. It meets almost every day. It will be impossible, when these Committees are rightly organized to be in the Chamber all the time. Up to now I have been absent for a very few hours.

It looks to me as if Meighen is attempting, by bringing in divisions, to show that we vote solidly with the Government, then he will be able to spread the cry that we are just a different type of Liberal. He is a real strategist, and I am not at all sure if anyone in the House is his equal. He ought to make a good chess player.

The bills are just beginning to come in. Among them are —Act to amend the Criminal Code; The Immigration Act, etc. It is work to keep up with the bills and resolutions so as to be able to vote intelligently each time.

—Agnes C. McPhail.

A farmer living 8 miles from Shelburne found a young fawn on his place which had a broken leg and was hopping around on three legs. He cut its throat to put it out of misery. Inspector McWhittie of the game and fisheries department was notified and he went out, seized the fawn and took it to Orangeville, where it was skinned and the carcass given to Lord Dufferin hospital.

Where Will It End?

It is reported that the Hydro quarry west of Walkerton, which a year or two ago is said to have cost the Hydro Commission no less than $600,000, has been knocked down to a syndicate of Toronto capitalists for the comparatively small sum of $85,000, thereby losing to the people of this Province over a half million by the transaction. Nor is this all, the Hydro people are said to have mined largely the poorer rock which tested but 67 per cent. cement, while across the way on the northern part of the gully great beds of rock that tested from 90 to 95 per cent. cement have deen left untouched, and which of course fall into the hands of the new owners, who have organized under the name of The Hanover Cement and Crushed Stone Company. Under Hydro we understand a wage of 60c. an hour was paid to the chaps who could saw a board or drive a nail, while the crude shovelmen drew 50c. an hour. The new owners, we hear, are now paying for this class of labor 25c. per hour, and have opened up with 25 men on the job, and lots more to be had at the same price. While not deprecating so much the spread in wages that is shown by Public Ownership as against the private concern, yet the fact that the Commission lost over half a million on capital account alone is something for hydro users throughout the country, who have been longing for lower rates, to get busy and worry about.

CONTRACTORS TRADE D&S MARK LIGHTNING

Insurance Is Good, But—

Insurance will, in a measure, repay you for loss from fire due to lightning.

But it will not prevent the fire.

It takes the DODD System of Lightning Protection to do that.

In the past thirty years over 300,000 buildings have been rodded by the DODD System and in not a single instance is there a record of the DODD System properly installed, having failed to prevent damage by lightning.

The fact that you haven't yet suffered loss by lightning only means that you are fortunate, not that you are proof against it. Ask us today what it will cost you to have DODD protection.
