DRUNKEN COWS GAVE ELORA ITS NAME

Reminiscences in the Globe recently concerning the early days of the Village of Elora have aroused in the Elora district regarding the origin of Elora's euphonious name, aad a remarkable explanation has been given by Elora's oldest inhabitant. Mrs. Molly Ricketts, who is now 102 years old, and who claims to have witnessed the strange episode which, she says, gave Elora its name.

The story centres about an early settler who, with his sons and daughters, eked out an existence by horse-thieving and kindred mysterious criminalities. Among other things, the father operated a private still, whose existence was a closely guarded secret to all save himself and his favorite son., They, however, failed in their occupations, to notice a serious leak in their apparatus, with the result that the spirit, 100 per cent. proof, trickled through the thin floor of the shed where the distilling was done, seeped down through the fertile soil below the cottage, and gradually the whole reach of the river was transformed into a veritable punch bowl. And so it happened that the daughter, Lucia, descending to the river bank one moonlight evening, beheld a weird and wonderful sight.

Before her eyes were all the cows in a stage of riotous intoxication. Some of them stood on their hind legs, waving their front ones others danced friskily from side to side, and one animal was swimming out into the spirit-laden river with the evident intention of dying a riotous death. The sight was too much for the poor girl. Her eyes nearly started from her head, she fell upon her knees, and extending her hands to heaven began to pray at the top of her voice.

Mr. and Mrs. Ricketts. who were the nearest neighbors, aroused by the awful lamentations, rushed quickly to the scene, closely followed by the girl's father, who, amazed by the incongruous spectacle his daughter made as she supplicated the invisible Deity, ejaculated, "Ecce, elra," which is Italian for "Look. she prays." So forcibly did this expression strike the minds of the two onlookers that it has been preserved ever since in the name of the village of Elora. So there!

SAFETY ZONE GONE

By purchasing dummy cops that flip up every time they are knocked down, the Town council has furnished some local autosits with a form of amusement that seems funnier to them than a bank robbery. And by the way they are exercising one would think the bithulithic a mere circus ring. In thus making a plaything of the policeman, the only safety zone that pedestrians might run to when caught at a crossing by dodging cars about, is removed, as the drivers are liaable to wheel over the constable and carry an ill-fated ratepayer with it. A pedestrian is getting to be more hazardous as an insurance risk in Walkerton every day.—Herald.

Wants An Accounting

Every year we receive a visit from an agent who is making collections on behalf of the so-called "Free Sanitarium" at Gravenhurst. In a long period we have not seen a financial statement or a statistical report issued from that institution. We understand the government makes certain grants and we know that certain municipalities have been forced to contribute and we have reason to believe some very generous donations have been poured into the coffers of the institution. There are rumors around that some are feathering their nests at the expense of the generosity of people who are blindly giving of their means for a cause which has a strong appeal to the humanitarion impulses. A clear, concise statement should be forthcoming.—Burks Falls Arrow.

Small Town Thoughts

(Digby Courier)

Just because we live in a small town it does not necessarily mean that we all have only small town minds. The trouble is that we spend too much time thinking small town thoughts. If any one in our community shows evidence of unusual ability or appears to be more successful and making more money than the rest of us, we immediately allow some narrow personal prejudice or dislike to influence our reasoned judgment, and we go about knocking or belittling that individual. This doesn't help us, and it hinders the man who is trying to get somewhere.

Freemartin Heifers.

Twin calves—both of the same sex—will breed with just as much certainty as though they were born singly. When twins are born male and female the female is known as a freemartin and is usually sterile. There have been cases where freemartins have conceived, but they are rare. Probably not over one out of 100 will breed. It is just as unusual for the bull of male and female twins not to breed.

A Good Whitewash.

Slake one-half bushel of fresh lime with boiling water, covering the receptacle to keep in the steam. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve, and add seven pounds of fine salt, previously dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice, boiled to a thin paste and stirred in; one pound of white glue, soaked first in cold water until swollen, then carefully melted over fire.

To this mixture add five gallons of hot water and let it stand covered for a few days before using.

A mare in foal can be used for farm or road work up to a short time before parturition, but the closer this period is at hand the greater care must be taken that she has not too heavy loads to draw, especially on uneven ground, and that she is not driven too fast.
