—Another peer of the realm has thoroughly succeeded in making a blackguard of himself. Lord Aylesford got intoxicated at the Derby on Wednesday, and rode from the races to London bridge in a third-class carriage of an excursion train on the Dover and Chatham railway. When the conductor came around to collect the tickets the drunken earl refused to surrender his, and when the conductor repeated his request his answer was a blow on the head with a stout walking stick wielded by Aylesford. A struggle ensued, during which the latter was thrown heavily to the ground and had one of his legs broken. Aylesford has lately been before the English law courts in an action for separation from his wife, against whom he alleged undue intimacy with the young Duke of Marlborough; and has just succeeded in defeating Lady Aylesford's claim for alimony, the defence being that she had been guilty of "molestation" by appropriating his second title, Lord Guernsey, for her illegitimate child by the Duke of Marlborough. —Considerable damage was done to fruit and early vegetable crops in Ontario and the United States by the frosts of Tuesday and Wednesday nights of last week. Grain crops were also badly injured. —The cold weather appears to have done very serious damage to the crops in the Northern States and Canada. In some places the small fruits and peaches are entirely destroyed, while in other districts wheat, corn and tobacco have suffered heavily, so much so that only a half yield is predicted. In the Ottawa valley, according to report, fruit, vegetables, clover and grain all show the effect of the frost. Everybody has been praying for a good harvest this year, but according to present indications their prayers are not likely to be answered. After a short yield last season, the prospects are anything but pleasant.

—In the legislature at Winnipeg Mr. Norquay stated the intentions of the government in reference to the terms sent down from Ottawa. He read a somewhat lengthy paper, the gist of which was a complete rejection of the terms offered. His stand was unanimously endorsed by the legislature, and a committee was appointed to put the reply into shape for transmission to Ottawa. Mr. Martin of Portage la Prairie proposed that Attorney-General Miller be recalled from his mission to England on the ground that the Dominion Government had refused the province the public lands. The motion was voted down.

—Considerable excitement was created in Guelph on Saturday, by the arresting of Mr. C. Kirk, boot and shoe merchant, on a charge of incendiarism. The facts of the case are as follows: On Friday evening, after Guy and Husband's dry-goods store was closed and all the clerks gone, one of the partners had occasion to go up-stairs, and detecting an odor as if arising from burning coal oil he went to the other flat, where smoke was seen coming through the floor. He at once got assistance and the floor was torn up, when it was discovered that the fire had smothered itself for want of air. A quantity of rags saturated with coal oil were found close to the brick wall which separates Mr. Kirk's shoe-store from the one in which the fire was discovered. Saturday morning a fuller investigation was made, and on taking up the floor on Mr. Kirk's side of the wall it was seen that a small hole had been bored through the wall and only recently filled up, as the mortar was quite fresh. The chief of police was consulted and Mr. Kirk was placed under arrest on suspicion.

—Two glycerine cartridges and sufficient dynamite to destroy the whole building were discovered a few days ago by one of the officers of Sandwick gaol secreted in a straw mattress. The movements of the prisoner in whose cell it was placed aroused the gaoler's suspicions, and he instituted a search, resulted in the fortunate discovery of the death-dealing explosive.

—The Hon. John L. Sullivan of Boston has a new baby which he is very proud of. At times he finds it very necessary to administer to it corporal punishment, and it was on one of these occasions, recently, that Mrs. Sullivan interrupted the proceedings with the cry of "Foul." "Wot's the matter wid yez?" demanded the Hon. John, looking up at his wife. "Ye are striking the child below the belt," she replied.

—John C. Eno, the absconding president of the Second National Bank of New York, was arrested on Saturday on the steamship Vancouver at Quebec, just previous to her sailing. His counsel asserts that he cannot be extradited, and as he refuses to return voluntarily, an interesting legal contest may be anticipated. A curious incident in connection with his capture is that the detectives thought they were on the track of Hinckley, another American bank defaulter, and were agreeably surprised at finding Eno. It is rumoured in New York that the charge of forgery will be laid against him, so as to secure his extradition.

—An open quarrel has at length taken place between Prince Jerome (Plon-Plon) and Prince Victor, his son. Prince Jerome expressed a wish that his son should make a tour of America and the East and abandon politics. Prince Victor having declined to respect the parental wishes a decided rupture occurred, the result of which is that father and son are living apart. Prince Victor has the assurance of an income of 40,000 francs a year, but he refuses to say whence it is derived. Figaro says that ex-Empress Eugenie, through a Bonapartist deputy, arranged for the separation between Plon-Plon and Prince Victor, giving the latter a liberal income, and has declared that she will bequeath him the greater part of her fortune in consideration of his rank and standing as successor to the prince imperial, passing altogether over the claims of Prince Jerome.

—We take the following curious article from the Springfield Republican: The lawyers have abundant opportunity to air their imagination in a survivorship case at Cincinnati. William H. Woods and his wife went down with the steamer Asia on Lake Huron in September, 1882. In settling the estate it is necessary to know who died first. Woods in his will enumerates a $25,000 insurance on his life in favor of his wife. In case of her death intestate the estate is to be divided among both his and her family friends, they having no children. The life insurance policies were what is known as "wife policies," the premiums being paid by her and containing provisions as to who is to receive the money in case she dies before her husband. The question is: Could he control these policies by will? The wife had also $19,000 in property. She left no will. If she died before her husband, her property and the insurance money would go to the husband's relatives. If she survived her husband the $19,000 would go to her relatives. There is an old legal presumption that the woman, being the weaker would die first. In Georgia it is held that an instinct of chivalry would reverse this theory. In the Cincinnati case the administrator for Woods pleads his good health and swimming ability, and his wife's ill-health, but the answer denies both, claiming that Wood had rheumatism of the joints which prevented his grasping on to anything or using oars. The only survivors of the wreck were D. A. Fields and a Miss Morrison who succeeded in climbing into an open boat. They did not know the Woods and do not recall them by the descriptions. They were even strangers to each other but now they are man and wife.
