A LIBEL NAILED.

If anything were wanting to convince the public that Grip is a base Liberal publication, it would be found in the following horrible libel published in last week's issue of that journal. It claims that Sir John McDonald visited the House of Commons barber shop a few days ago, with the following result:

BEFORE—AND—AFTER.

Our own artist has reproduced Grip's pictures, to the dot. Grip is with The World, fishing for libel suits.

With the cessation of assisted passages from the Old Country a better class of immigrants are secured for this country. Among poor mechanics and impecunious nonentities the falling off in immigration returns is particularly noticeable. A class such as Canada has long wanted and never heretofore secured is the receivable outcome of the late legislation against assisted emigration, viz., an industrious, ambitious people with a little money and what may be termed colonization energy. The steamship "Parisian" sailed from England on Thursday last with a thousand passengers, 75 per cent. of whom were young farmers from 18 to 30 years of age. This proves that the endeavors of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council, in conjunction with other bodies, to make the English mind understand Canadian requirements, are meeting success and bearing valuable fruit.

At the spring Assizes which opened in Ottawa on Friday last the Grand Jury stated that a crime for which a certain man Hendricks was being tried, was directly traceable to liquor, and expressed their opinion that the time had arrived for the introduction of a prohibition measure. Were the whole Dominion constituted one grand Grand Jury they would pronounce the same verdict.

The Rural Canadian says that "A healthy milch cow in full flow of milk will drink and requires 60 to 100 pounds of water per day." Say 12 pounds of milk production from a cow per day, and the production would be [illegible] just about [illegible] and healthy milk [illegible] quite [illegible] demonstrates.

Here is a [illegible] which the [illegible] name Eckstein [illegible] over from [illegible] in order to be first [illegible] season [illegible] Mr. Wm. Crawley, of Hillsnewood, has left at The Economist office a mammoth potato of the Eureka variety. It weighs 2 lbs. 5½ oz.

The following, from the Grey Review, is apparently intended as a joke. We can't see the point ourselves, possibly because we are not sufficiently conversant with good English: "A young man stood waiting at Middaugh's corner for his sweet heart and on being accosted by an employee of the house that it was cold, said it was the warmest spot in town." The Review will kindly pardon our thick headed stupidity, but would it please give the wink when the audience are expected to laugh.

A Streetsville matron placed a box of pills upon a shelf in her pantry not long since. A few days afterwards some mice nibbled away the pasteboard partition and devoured every blessed pill in the box. Since then their trips to the pantry have been like angels' visits—few and far between—and it is thought that the digestive organs of the mice are in a rather dilapidated condition and they have gone south for the benefit of their health. The matron aforesaid hopes their visit will be prolonged indefinitely, and suggests the liberal use of pills as a safe purgative for mice.—[Streetsville Review.

Mr. Wm. Higgins, of Melancthon, informs us that on Thursday last, while he was grooming his horses in the stable, his little daughter, aged about eight years, who was passing through the feed room in front of the horses, was grabbed by the shoulder by one of the animals and dragged through the feed hole into the manger. Her cry brought Mr. Higgins to the rescue and she was carried safely out. The marks of the horse's teeth were very deep and the injuries painful, but no serious results are anticipated. What puzzles Mr. Higgins, is to know how the horse dragged the girl through the feed-hole so quickly.—[Shelburne Economist.

A Spring Poem.

[illegible]

Thus sang the wild poet of springtime,
Quite regardless of rythmical ease,
While his hair stood on end like a clothes brush,
And his mind was as lively as cheese—
Living cheese—and his poem like soft mush
Was too mushy by ninety degrees.

The Past.

For six years I have labored to establish a living business on the basis of honorable dealing with all—handling reliable goods at fair prices, and endeavoring to give "value received" every time goods are exchanged for money, note or credit. I have been "thrust" into something of success by the genuine support of a large section of "Central Grey" which would not have come if "undeserved."

The Present

Being fully established on the above lines, and having a very complete stock in all regular jewelers' lines, I shall expect and endeavor to still deserve the confidence and support of all past patrons, and will hope to gain new ones as 1889 rolls along.

The Future.

I trust to be able this year to keep my stock even better assorted for customers to select from. Will continue to buy from A 1 firms at closest possible prices, and offer all buyers reliable watches, etc., at "bed rock" prices. A call solicited. Goods and work warranted.
