Miss Macphail Writes

The house of Commons has adjourn- for Easter and still the speech in re to the address from the Throne d not been completed. It seemed L in a week ago it would be. Then, g Bennett, as Finance Minister in- liced the Supplementary estimate. s for some years been the habit Spartments to often run consider- N over the amount voted for them by Parliament at the previous session and these amounts are put throuh the the house at the beginning of the next session as Supplementary estimates. The Prime Minister assured the House that if it happened again the person responsible would be fired. Mr. Bennett and Mr. King engaged in a rather warm verbal warfare over the estimates. Mr. King contended that the Ministers whose departments were dected should have put them through the house. The leader of the Opposition rather twitted the Prime Minister with monopolizing the place of all the Ministers. Mr. Bennett's reply was reasonable. He was the finance minister he said. Every item was a financial matter. He must carry the responsibility for the total expenditure of Canada, and he was therefore the man who should father the estimates; but the biggest row occurred over the $2,000,000 Welland canal item. Mr. King contended that no amount so large would be spent without an order in council authorizing it. At first it seemed there was no Order - in - Council and finally the document was located and tabled and the storm subsided.

When their Excellencies, Viscount and Viscountess Willingdon came to Canada they brought with them some very fine pieces of Chinese furniture, tapestries and pictures. Long residence in the Orient had developed a love for Oriental Art. His Excellency had been the Governor of Bombay and Madras but it was at a much earlier time that he collected the Chinese pieces. Viscount Willingdon had been sent to China by the British Government in connection with the Boxer Rebellion indemnity. A very long drawing room in Rideau Hall, the residence of the Governor General in Canada was furnished with these rare pieces. This room has for the last five years been called the Chinese Gallery. When the Governor General left a few weeks ago the Government purchased the contents of this room. The value arrived at by an appraiser When the estimate was before the House the sum was $15,000. Mr. Beaubien asked the Prime Minister if the appraiser was Chinese. This caused much amusement. The Prime Minister replied "I do not know".

A delegation representing the Scottish and British Wholesale Society was in Ottawa a few days ago discussing with the Minister of Agriculture the possibility of their establishing co-operative abbatoirs in Canada.. It seems amazing that we cannot, as farmers in Canada, do this ourselves. It is quite clear that the processing of farm products, that is the changing of it into the finished products which go on the consumers table and the co-operative marketing of such products are tasks which face us as an Agricultural people.

In the new Agricultural policy of the Hon. Rovert Weir, as outlined in MacLean's magizine of Mar. 15, production is unduly stressed. What is the use of making two blades of grass grow where one grew before if you can sell neither? I suggest to the government that experimental farms, agricultural schools and colleges, should teach the co-operative marketing of farm products as aggressively as they in the past taught production. "Those of us who are working in the co-operative endeavour for farmers know that when we seek a manager for a co-operative enterprise we cannot get a trained man. There is not a government from the Atlantic to the Pacific that enterprises or in co-operative accounting, yet government should establish one or more Experimental Processing plants that the cost will be known, and that later the government should give every encouragement to farmers in the processing of their own products. Such as normal support, and advancing the money to be used for long terms at reasonable rates of interest. "Unless we do these things how are we going to compete with Denmark, where farmers process their own products co-operatively or with Russia where it is done by the state?"

"In addition, farmers should begin at once to buy their supplies through their own locally controlled co-operative units. These should have one central buying agency, and what ever help and support the Government can give should be given. We know the farmers of Denmark and Holland buy their fertilizer more cheaply than any other farmers in the world because they can buy it co-operatively.'

The High Schools of South East Grey, or at any rate, some of them, have taken part in the Essay contest. The subject was "Unemployment, Some Causes and Remedies." The essays were read and the judgment as to which were the best five was given by Dr. C. J. Stevenson of the O. A. C. The first place was won by Jim Palmer of Dundalk High School; Second Alice Heard, Flesherton High School; Third, Wesley Wright, Hanover High School; Fourth, Robert Ball, Hanover High School and fifth, to Herb Akins of Flesherton High School.

CANCER IN WOMEN

The number of deaths from cancer can be reduced providing cases come under treatment early.

If every person were to go regularly, once a year, to his doctor for a health examination, diseases, such as cancer, would be discovered early. That is one of the reasons why we say that it is most desirable for everyone to have a perfect health examination.

In order to secure early treatment, the patient must come to the doctor during the early stages of the disease. The doctor cannot go out and look for such cases himself.

What is it then that brings the woman to her doctor? Symptoms. If the woman does not go to her doctor regularly each year for examination, the only chance for her to secure early treatment for cancer is to know something about the early signs and symptons of the disease.

It is not possible for us to instruct our readers to such an extent that they will be able to diagnose cancer from other diseases. The most that we can do is to inform them that the occurence of certain conditions is to be regarded by them as being sufficiently suspicious to send them to their doctor at once.

There are certain people who believe that such articles as this one do harm by arousing fear amoung those who have no cause for alarm. We believe, however, that the public is to be informed if lives are to be saved. If our readers will clearly understand that there are conditions other than cancer which cause similar symptoms, they will also realize that it is their doctor and not they themselves who must decide as to what the actual condition is.

More than a third of all cases of cancer in women develop in the uterus. Injury to the lower end of the uterus-the cervix - is not uncommon during childbirth. If such injury is not properly repaired at that time, there results a chronic irritation which predisposes to the occurrence of cancer. It is in the cervix that most cancers of the uterus begin.

It is evident that every mother should be examined several weeks after the birth of her child in order to determine if all the parts are normal and, if they are not, to receive the treatment which is necessary to restore them to normal so that chronic irritation of the cervix may not occur.

Proper care after the birth of the baby will do the most to prevent cancer of the uterus. Irregular bleeding, particularly after the menopause, should send a woman to the doctor at once.

If, in addition to paying attention to these points, women would go to their doctor promptly when there is any lump on or discharge from the breast, there would be a different story to tell about cancer.

KNOW WHAT YOU SOW—„For whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Sow only large, plump, bright seed. Poor seed is dear at any price.

Only land that will respond to good treatment should be cultivated at all. There are many thousands of acres in Ontario that will not produce farm crops profitably and should be reforested without further waste of time and energy.
