KIMBERLEY

Our community was shocked Saturday evening about 6 o'clock to see the big barn of Mr. W. Weber's in flames. In some way unknown the fire started in the straw just as the men reached the house who had been threshing only a few minutes before. Mr. J. Ward's threshing machine was also burned, although everything possible was done to save it. Both men have the sympathy of all especially as we understand there is no insurance on the machine and light insurance on the barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawkens visited their daughter, Mrs. E. Morwood at Aurora.

NO PREMIUM ON LAZINESS

Premier Bennett's insistence that the government will only help those who are willing to help themselves, is all to the good. This country has not come to the point where it is willing to put a premium on laziness. In other words, if there are those among the unemployed who think that the state owes them a living, and that all they have to do is to sit down and wait for some benevolent bureaucracy to serve them with food and shelter, they must be taught that they are profoundly mistaken.

There is something more. It is that when people depend upon the state for help or for their livelihood, then they must be prepared to go where the state wishes to send them. Work can't be brought to their doors.—Alliston Herald.

An economical wall finish

WALPAMUR the famous flat finish for walls and ceilings is economical, because it is so easy to apply that a little goes a long way. You have a choice of the most delightful shades, that dry with an eggshell bloom. It has a soft light-diffusing effect, and makes a lovely background for your household treasures.

It is permanent, washable and fire-resisting, and looks equally well on a wide variety of surfaces.

Consult your decorator or dealer. Ask him for a shade card, or write to us direct

Following the policy of cultivating new markets abroad, a trial shipment of 2,000 boxes of fancy peaches from the Beamsville district left recently for London, England, where they will be marketed through the Government Trade Commissioner. Every precaution was taken to ensure that they would arrive on the London market in the very finest condition. Growers of the Grimsby district are also sending a trial shipment of Canadian peaches in to the Caribbean market.
