Alex. Cameron Now Artemesia Treasurer

Mr. Alex. Cameron, Reeve of Artemesia, was appointed treasurer of the township at the regular meeting of the Council on Monday. The office was left vacant owing to the resignation of Mr. W. J. W. Armstrong. Mr. Cameron resigned the Reeveship of Artemesia to take over his new duties, which he takes up imemdiately. Mr. Garnet Magee, Deputy Reeve, will assume the responsibility of being chairman of the Council board, as an election is not necessary owing to the time of the year. For many years Mr. W. A. Armstrong was treasurer of the township, but on his death his son, Wes, took over the office and has continued until the present time. Mr. Cameron is well qualified for his new office, as he has had many years of service in council work and a thorough understanding of the conduct of township affairs.

Hunt Sea Lions To Protect The Salmon

Leave the sea lions alone, free to carry on their depredations unchecked, and the British Columbia salmon fishery would suffer seriously, and that's why the Dominion Department of Fisheries sends one of its vessels to the Pearl and Virgin rookeries, west of Rivers Inlet, to carry on a lion hunt for a few days every year.

This year over 1,100 lions and pups were destroyed on these two rookeries when the hunt was carriel on by C.G. S. Givenchy in June. Bad weather interfered with operations, especially at the Pearl Rocks. and the lions were very wild and difficult to reach but, nevertheless, the result of the hunt will be that the sea lion family won't work as much damage to the salmon fishery in the future as they would otherwise have accomplished.

The purpose of these annual hunts is not the extermination of the sea lions; the hunts have been undertaken for some years but the lions are still numerous—too numerous to suit the salmon men. The purpose sought is not to exterminate the herds, but to keep them within something like reasonable limit in numbers and thus to protect the salmon resources, which mean so much to British Columbia and, indeed, to the Dominion. Just how much these resources do mean is indicated by the fact that, in normal times, the value of the production from the British Columbia salmon fishery may be as much as $16,000,000, and even more. The salmon runs are worth too much to allow them to be jeopardized by marauding sea lions.

Alfred Wright Passes

Alfred Albert Wright, explorer and pioneer settler of northwestern Ontario, and president of the American branch of J. A. Coates & Son, Ltd., needle manufacturers of Redditch, England, died at his home 100 Riggs Place, West Orange, N.J., on Saturday of last week.

Until he was disabled, as a result of a clash with Indians while on an exploration trip in 1877, Mr. Wright was active in the opening of the Hudson Bay section of Ontario. In his youth he was a fur trader for the Hudson Bay Company, and later, when transcontinental railways began to poke northward through the brush forests, he joined the surveying party of the Canadian Pacific. With a fellow explorer, P. Carr, he founded in 1870 the town of Commanda, in Lake Nipissing district of Ontario.

Seven years later Mr. Wright was shot in the right leg by an Indian, putting an end to his life as an adventurer. He became interested in the needle industry and for nearly fifty years had been associated with J. A. Coates & Son, Ltd., whose plant is at 589 main Street, East Orange He was president of the Shrimpton Needle Company of England and president of the International Collection Agencies of West Orange. He was the oldest member of the Kiwanis Club of the Oranges.

Born in Flesherton, the son of George Lowe Wright and Frances Mathilda Wright, Irish emigrants, Mr Wright was married in 1876 to Miss Emeline Edwards of Flesherton. The ceremony was attended by all the residents of three neighboring towns, forty in all. At the time of the golden anniversary of their marriage on August 28, 1926, the couple were remarried and there were also forty people present, but all relatives. An orchestra composed of relatives, played the wedding march, and after the ceremony the couple departed on a second honeymoon to Canada.

Besides his wife, Mr. Wright is survived by three sons, Robt. G. Wright of East Orange, N.J., and A. Stanley Wright and Benjamin Wright of West Orange; four daughters, Mrs. Wm. Chabert of Ria Piedras, Porto Rico; Mrs. Frank H. Landon of Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. Robt. B. Smith of New York, and Mrs. S. M. Abrams of West Orange, and a brother, John W. Wright of San Francisco.

Mr. Wright's many warm friends in this district were very sorry to hear of his death and sympathy is extended to the sorrowing members of his family.

A New Barley Market

To Ontario farmers Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy passes the information that the National Breweries Ltd. of Montreal have authorized the purchase by the Canadian Malting Co. of 1,000,000 bushels of high-grade, Ontario-grown barley, suitable for malting, at a minimnm of 55 cents per bushel basis, track Montreal. The Minister warns that this barley must be sound, clean and reasonably free from other grains and weighing 48 pounds to the bushel. This is an equivalent of grain known as "Three Extra" and should be easily obtained by the average Ontario farmer. Several Ontario counties have long regarded barley as a fine cash crop and it is hoped that this announcement will give them new confidence and will stimulate producton.

"A price of 55 cents basis, track Montreal, would mean f.o.b. prices approximately as follows. Main line Chatham and surrounding points, 4[illegible] cents; off lines or side lines or radial lines in same territory, 37 cents; Central Ontario points, say from London to the Lake Simcoe district, 42 cents: east of that and on to Montreal, 46 cents. These would represent the approximate f.o.b. prices paid to shippers and in the case of barley, the farmer would, in many cases, be the shipper. These prices would apply only to carlot shipments. This offer is considerably better than present-day prices on the Montreal market.

Are Practising Steadily

Since the Old Home Week picnic on Civic Holiday the young men and boys of town have been practising lacrosse in the skating rink practically every night. They have become quite enthusiastic over the game and hope to become expert enough to place a team in competition with other towns. Already the boys are showing marked improvement in their game, and if they keep up their practicing as at present should be able to make a good showing in a game.

The barn dance conducted in aid of Markdale Hospital was a most successful affair, receipts being $166.75.

AN ARMY OF TRAMPS

For years the world's tramps consisted very largely of middle-aged and old men, but a great change has come with the increase of unemployment during last and this year and it is not an uncommon thing these days to see young men asking for food and shelter. When a man is willing to work and cannot find employment he is to be pitied. The danger to the state is that when the depression is lifted and there is work and bread for all, these young men will have drifted into the ranks of the shiftless who consider the state owes them a living. The nomadic life they have led for a year or more will have the tendency to make bums out of these itinerants.

A report in the Kitchener paper in dealing with this large army of jobless many of them anxious to find work, goes to say:

The jobless army or at least that battalion of it which has taken to an aimless drifting throughout the country, is a queer homogeneous admixture of men. There are those whose spirits are damped, whose courage is broken; there are those, they say, to whom present conditions constitute an excuse to indulge a congenial distaste for work; then there are those, too, who, with a commendable philosophical outlook, maintain a cheerful outlook.

Examples of these three classes passed in review here recently in a local restaurant, although many patrons may have missed the little byplay. The first man entered. He was drawn and haggard looking. Uncertainly, he stood first on one foot and then on the other, trying to muster his courage to ask for a "handout." He failed, however, as the eyes of the paying patrons searched him. He turned irresolutely, shambling shamefacedly toward the door. The proprietor called to him.

"Hey, my man, where are you going?" Then, in a softer tone he added, "would you like a meal?"

The man, very much like a beaten child, sobbed. Tears welled to his eyes as he said simply: "Yes, I'm hungry."

A second man entered. Hs bearing was jaunty. "Say," he said, "how about getting a bite to eat?"

"If you're really hungry, I guess we can help you out," replied the manager. "Come on back to the kitchen." The seeker for food, smiling broadly, followed the owner. Suddenly he stopped.

" Say," he said, "will I have to do any work for this dinner?"

"I think we can find something for you to do," replied the manager half humorously.

"Well, then, no thanks; I don't want to eat."

With that, he turned and walked out.

Two men entered shortly after. They were of serious mien, but their shoulders were broad, chests out.

"Could a couple of fellows down on their luck promote something to eat?" one of them asked. "We hate to ask, but we have to keep alive, although ——" and he smiled——"I don't know why."

They were men of superior stamp. They asked humbly, but not cringingly; there was no air of braggadocio about them.

Soon they were seated, and before them were spread two full-course dinners. They tucked napkins under their chins, and looked at each other across the table for a few seconds and bowed their heads.

"For what we are about to receive ——" was quite audible at the next table.

MADISON CAFE
Jim Low, Prop.

Drivers of horse-drawn vehicles are still careless about carrying lights or reflectors after sundown. Surely these people value their lives more than the price of a cheap reflector.

There is a good sized movement under way in ten counties of Central New York, where people are signing agreements stating they will pay their bills promptly. The plan started in one small centre at a luncheon, and then the idea spread. Those who are signing the agreements say they believe that paying bills is one sure way to restore confidence and put money into circulation by a very simple process. We agree.
