The new criminal code which came into force July 1st, is calculated to deter those who have hitherto been too ready to appropriate the fruit in people's gardens to their own use. Those who have been in the habit of doing this must be aware, for the first offence is punishable by a term of one month, and three years for a second offence.

In some unaccountable way, the barn of Mr. W. Maxwell, Banda, took fire one evening last week and was totally destroyed, together with about 300 bushels of wheat, 150 bushels of oats, about $200 worth of material for a new residence, and a lot of other articles. The building and contents were insured for $500, which will cover but a small portion of the loss.—Creemore Star.

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which done me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world." A trial bottle will convince you. Warranted by Richardson & Co.

Mr. Dorval Brown and W. W. Stephen have returned from their big trip on wheels. Alex. Smart of this village, is the proud owner of a collie watch dog that possesses more intelligence and more humanity than many people. While chasing away some cows from his owner's premises the other day, he noticed that one of the animals was lame, so he left it behind and drove the others off at a lively rate; and coming back he took away the lame one, allowing her to walk the whole way. There was more humanity in that act than some people show to their horses in a life time.—Elora Express.

Rheumatism Cured in a day.—South American Rheumatic Cure for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose gr atly benefits. 75 cents. Warranted by Richardson & Co.

We hear that sharpers are now practising a new fraud on unsuspecting farmers, so it is well for them to be on their guard. A man drives up to a farmer's house in great haste and gives him a telegram announcing the serious illness of some relative. On the face of the envelope the charges are $3 or $5. He pays the charges and takes the first train for the home of the relative, only to find on arriving that he had been duped. The stranger is miles away swindling some other honest tiller of the soil.

Chief Justice Patterson died at Ottawa on Monday.

Slow Telephoning.

The telephone in Roumania may be a useful institution, but it is not one which works swiftly. The official rule regulating it runs: "Persons desirous of communicating by telephone are required to acquaint each other of their intention previously, by letter, telegram, or in some other way." As a result, people whose time is valuable are somewhat shy of the new institution. The Neue Freie Presse says:

Not long ago, Mr. Kir Zarida, of Braila, attempted to break down this absurd rule. He was on the point of making a large purchase of barley, and desired to know the prices quoted on the Exchange at Galatz.

Stepping into the telephone office, he put down his fee, and asked to be placed in communication with his friend Pastramakis, in Galatz.

"Very good," said the telephone clerk. "Have you informed him of your intention?"

"Why, the man is at Galatz!"

"But did you not write to him yesterday?"

"No."

"Nor send him a telegram?"

"I want to telephone, not to telegraph!"

"Now, you ought to know very well that this won't do! First wire your friend, or write him, and say that you want to speak to him through the telephone."

"Well, of all the crazy notions!" exclaimed Kir Zarida, in great wrath. "Perhaps you would advise me to take the train to Galatz, and ask him to go to the telephone, at a certain hour, and such a day, as I wish to speak to him from Braila!"

"Yes, that would do as well," stolidly replied the official.

There was no more to be said, and Kir Zarida did not telephone.

Climate for Consumption.

Climate is an important matter in the treatment of consumption. Moist, irritating air, dust, sudden changes of temperature, in short, all the conditions which predispose persons to this disease are also to be dreaded as prompting its continuance. Removal from such conditions to a place where the air is dry, pure, equable, free from wind and dust—this sometimes acts like magic. The progress of the malady is stayed, even if the patient is not radically cured.

But except at certain seasons of the year places where such conditions prevail are not easy to find, and furthermore are seldom easy of access. The change may involve the invalid's removal to a long distance, with inevitable exposures to harm by the way, and on that account alone a change of climate may be impracticable.

Before sending from home a person in delicate health, no matter what the disease, friends should take careful account of the question how many of the comforts of home the patient is likely to miss in his new quarters. If he is liable to be poorly looked after, to become homesick, or in any way made unhappy, he will probably be better off to remain where he is. There he will be at least sure of good nursing, proper food and cheerful surroundings.

But if he stay at home, let every care be taken to make the house, or that part which he occupies, conform as nearly as possible in cleanliness, airiness, evenness of temperature, to the ideal out-of-door climate to which it is found impracticable to send him. It is one of the principal duties of a physician to instruct families how to do this.

It is encouraging to be assured, as we are, that with sufficient care not only may a consumptive be made comfortable at home, but the conditions for his recovery may be kept as favorable there as he could hope to find them at many health resorts.

Patients in advanced stages of the disease are always best off at home.—Youths Companion.

The Sparham Case.

KEMPTVILLE, July 24.—Much interest is felt by residents of this place in the case of W. F. Sparham, of Ottawa, to whom reference was made in an Ottawa despatch a few days ago, as a sufferer delivered from kidney disease by the use of Dodd's kidney pills. Mr. Sparham was born and brought up here, and is well known and is universally popular. His friends here had heard of his illness and his failure to obtain relief from all the medicines he tried before taking the pills. Their wonderful effect in his case will make the remedy more popular in this vicinity, for all now are fully aware of its good properties.
