Who Owns Two Pair of Boots?

Acting Chief of Police John Short visited the vicinity of the iron bridge Sunday evening for the purpose of warning a number of the bathers there that it was illegal to bathe within the corporation limits on Sunday. However, when he reached the spot the bathers decamped, many of them leaving their wearing apparel on the ground. Constable Short carried back to the police office two pairs of boots and he wishes to state through The Warder that the owners can have the same by calling for them. He does not intend to prosecute this time, but warns all bathers that hereafter any person bathing on Sunday within the corporation limits will be prosecuted. All bathers must have swimming suits on no matter what the day. Last evening one of the bathers grabbed a coat and ran and was pursued for a short distance by the acting chief.

Canadian Coronation Troop Are Homeward Bound

The Warder has received the following interesting letter from Sergt. T. E. Prestige, of the 45th Regiment, who is at present in England as a member of the Canadian Coronation contingent. Sergt. Prestige states that he is forwarding a couple of papers telling about the coronation, but these have not yet arrived.

In regard to the Coronation Sergt. Prestige says that everything went off without a hitch, except that a sergeant of the mounted troops was thrown from his horse and was seriously injured just before the procession started. Our troops (that is to say the dismounted troops) were stationed just outside Buckingham Palace around the late Queen's monument and we had a splendid position both at the start of the procession and also at the end. The King afterwards came out on the balcony, when he was at once assailed with a deafening cheer from the Canadians to which he at once responded. The young prince and princess also joined in with a waving of handkerchiefs. We did not have a very long march as was expected but only about three miles. To-day (Friday) we were at the same place when the King and Queen made their procession through the streets of London. I can not describe the magnificient uniforms that were worn and which consisted of all the colors imaginable. What interested our own men the most was the Drummer of the Bands of the Mounted Troops, to see the way in which they swung their sticks about was something marvellous.

The three men who went from Lindsay, Mitchell, Henley and myself, are in the best of health and are having a good time. We have been invited to and accepted the following places: The tTower, Madame Taussards, Hampton Court Palace, The Crystal Palace and Empire Pageant, and we have also free pass for any theatre in the evening. To-morrow, (Saturday) June 24, 1,250 men go to Portsmouth to witness the naval review. Special trains have been provided for the journey, which is about 65 miles from London.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Stories About A Little Girl

Mary in School

ONE evening daddy could not think of a "really, truly story," as Evelyn calls the bedtime stories, so he said he would tell Jack and Evelyn some funny things that were said by a young friend of his when he was a boy.

"She was a bright little girl," daddy began, "and some of the things she said were very funny. One day she went to visit a little girl friend. They were playing together when the other girl said:

"'When I grow up I'm going to be a schoolteacher.'

"'My little friend said, 'Well, I'm going to be a mamma and have six children.'

"'Well, when they come to school to me I'm going to whip them, whip them, whip them,' said the other little girl.

"'You mean things!' said Mary. 'What have my poor children ever done to you?'

"Mary liked to sit up late at night like some children I know," said daddy, looking at Jack and Evelyn and smiling. "One night her mother tried to coax her to go to bed early. She said:

"'You know, Mary, the little chickens always go to bed at sunset.'

"'Yes,' said Mary. 'I've seen them, and the old hen, their mother, always goes with them.'

"Mary was a good little girl, and generally she behaved herself nicely in school. But one day she was very naughty, whispering all the time, so that the teacher had to scold her. The next day, however, she sat up straight and prim and never whispered or turned her head. The teacher said to her:

"'Why, Mary, you are a good little girl today. How is it that you have behaved so much better than you did yesterday?'

"'Why, I've got to be good,' said Mary. 'I've got a stiff neck.'

"'Mary's mother taught her never to carry tales. She said it was mean and wicked to talk about people behind their backs,' as the saying is, and Mary never forgot the lesson even when she was grown up. One day the minister visited Mary's house and asked the little girl some questions to see whether she knew what had been taught to her. He asked:

"'What does "bearing false witness against thy neighbor" mean?'

"'It's telling falsehoods about them,' answered Mary.

"'That is pretty right and pretty wrong,' said the minister.

"'Oh, I know how' what it means,' said Mary. 'It's when nobody did anything and somebody went and told of it.' And the minister said she was quite right.

LATER THIS YEAR.

The pupils trying the entrance examinations finished writing Wednesday. Heretofore the results have been made known about the 15th of July, but it is likely that they will not be published till two or three days later this year, owing to the fact that the department of education has given instructions that local boards are not to make public any results until their recommendations as to passing of candidates have been dealt with by the Minister of Education. These are to be in his hands by the 15th of the month, so it may not be until the 17th or 18th that the lists will be published.

In addition to whatever may be done through the newspapers, each candidate will be notified by post card as to his or her success or failure, and in the case of the unsuccessful, their marks on the different papers will be communicated to them at the same time.

DEADLY ANAEMIA

CASTS A SHADOW OVER THE LIVES OF THOUSANDS OF WOMEN AND GROWING GIRLS.

"Not enough blood" is the plain meaning of the term anaemia, stripped of scientific phraseology. Put plaining, for, unfortunately, anaemia is one of the greatest evils in this country, affecting women of all ages, including young girls. The signs of bloodlessness are plain enough—pallid lips and cheeks, and aching back, frequent headaches, with breathlessness, heart palpitation and great weakness. The most effective treatment is to strengthen and build up the blood, and it is just by this power of making new, rich blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured anaemia in more cases than it is possible to place on record. Among the host cured of this trouble by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Miss C. N. Roberge, of Sorel, Que., who had been in poor health for several years. Miss Roberge says: "I believe that if I had not taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills my illness would have proved fatal. The trouble came on so rapidly that I can scarcely tell the point at which it did begin. The first noticeable symptom was loss of color and a feeling of lassitude. Then I began to lose my appetite, had frequent headaches, and spells of dizziness, and became unable to do any housework without being completely exhausted. Finally my trouble became aggravated by a persistent cough. I took several kinds of medicine, but did not get any relief. At last I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to do so. After I had taken several boxes there was a noticeable improvement in my condition and I continued using the Pills until I had taken nine boxes. The result in my opinion was mervellous. My appetite returned, my nerves were strengthened, my weight increased, headaches disappeared, and I am enjoying the best health of my life. In gratitude for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me I make this statement in the hope that it may bring new health to some other sufferer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all those troubles due to poor blood, such as anaemia, St. Vitus dance, partial paralysis, and the troubles which attack girls budding into womanhood and women of mature years. Sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Presentation to School Teacher

At the closing exercises of the Mariposa station public school on Friday last a pleasant feature of the occasion was in the form of a presentation to their departing teacher, Miss McCallum. Later lunch was serves by the ladies and all enjoyed a pleasant picnic hour together. The following address was read by Miss Clara Hutchinson, while Master Harry Dunn presented Miss MacCallum with a handsome jewel case, ink stand and pen tray.

To Miss M. H. MacCallum:

Dear Teacher,—It is with deep regret that we are gathered together to bid you farewell and the realization that our connection as teacher and scholars is about to be broken, is indeed a painful one. The months during which it has been our good fortune to have you with us have been enjoyable ones to us, and your thoughtful and kind direction has meant more to us than you can ever know. While at times we may have appeared indifferent and inappreciative, we trust that you have had the satisfaction of seeing that we, as your pupils, have profited by your words of wisdom and advice and hope that in the years to come we both may have reason to realize the fact to a much greater extent than now.

Now as you are about to leave us we ask you to kindly accept this jewel-box, pen tray and ink stand as a slight token of our esteem and affection, and we bid you good speed in your new field of labor and wish you a bright and prosperous future.

Signed on behalf of the school, Clara Hutchinson, Harry Dunn, John Jenkins.

Miss MacCallum was completely taken by surprise, but made a suitable reply. Miss MacCallum leaves to become principal of the Woodville public school.

OBITUARY. JOHN BEGLEY.

Death on Saturday removed another prominent resident of Lindsay, in the person of the late John Begley, who passed away at the family residence, Kent-st. Lindsay, in the seventy-fourth year of his age. The deceased was born near Cornwall, Ont., afterwards removing with his parents to Camden, Hastings county. The deceased during his career also resided in Belleville, Brighton and Campanee, coming from the latter town in 1873 to Lindsay, where he embarked with his brother, Mr. Robert Begley, of Peterboro, in the furniture business. Their factory was situated on Lindsay-st. north, almost immediately in front of the Madison Williams foundry, while the wareroom was situated in the east ward near the G.T.R. and C.P.R. diamond.

The deceased was at that time one of the town's most active citizens, always manifesting the deepest interest in its welfare. He served the town in the council board for two years.

For some years past the late Mr. Begley has been in declining health, and during the past year or two has suffered considerably from his ailment, the secretary life which led, however, stood him in good stead, and his sufferings, which were most severe during the last two months, were borne with Christian fortitude. The deceased was a devout member of St. Mary's church.

During the Fenian raid of 1866, the late Mr. Begley, who was a sergeant in the Kingston Garrison Artillery, was attached to the gunboat, Rescue, which was in commission in garding the frontier towns from an attack by the invaders.

In October, 1869, the deceased was united in marriage at Port Hope by Vicar General Browne to Bridget Byrne, daughter of the late Patrick Byrne, of Ops.

His sorrowing wife, two daughters, Mrs. Eugene Gallagher, of Strathroy, Miss Annie Begley, Separate school teacher, [illegible] Island, [illegible] and William, [illegible] mourn the loss of a model husband and father. The deceased is also survived by a sister, Miss Mary Begley, of Boston, and a brother, Mr. Robt. Begley, of Peterboro.

Funeral took place Monday morning from the family residence at 9.30 o'clock and proceed to St. Mary's church, where requiem mass was chanted by Ven. Archdeacon Casey. The services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Father Guiry. The pallbearers were Messrs Senator McHugh, R. P. Spratt, J. Gillogly, P. Murphy, N. Brady and J. R. Shannon.
