Sandwich Season

Picnic days are here and each housewife will have many demands on her ingenuity for making up different fillings for sandwiches. The following suggestions have been tried and declared delicious and are worthwhile adding to your kitchen files.

Sandwiches

Pit dates, open them flat and spread with grated cheese that has been moistened with mayonnaise. Lay each date open side down on a salted cracker and finish with another cracker. The crackers may be buttered if desired.

Sally's Sandwiches

Spread thin slices of bread with butter. Pare and core large apples, cut them into slices to fit the bread. Lay a thin slice of cheese on top of the apple slice, finish with another piece of buttered bread. A thin layer of mayonnaise over the apple adds to the flavor.

Buttercup Rolls

Use very fresh bread, cut in as thin slices as possible. Butter these and spread with grated cheese which has been mixed to a cream with butter or mayonnaise. Some fresh watercress or parsley chopped very fine and mixed with the cheese is an enjoyable addition. Roll the slices separately, tie each with a narrow ribbon. Use one slice bread for each of these sandwiches.

Cucumber Cheese Tidbits

Add finely cropped fresh cucumbers to grated cheese, cream them together with mayonnaise. Spread generously between slices of buttered bread.

Honey Cheese Sandwiches

Mix grated cheese with honey and butter to form a thick paste. Spread on very thin slices buttered bread, and cut in fancy shapes. If the slices of bread are toasted after being filled with the filling, the flavor is delicious.

Tomato Camembert Grill

Slice whole ripe tomatoes in thick pieces, or cut small ones in half. Spread the open face with buttered bread or cracker crumbs. Broil or bake them until browned and cooked but not mushy. When ready to serve, place a slice of tomato on a slice of buttered toast, with a teaspoonful of camembert cheese on top of each tomato slice.

Devilled Limburger

Mix 1 cup chopped cooked ham or other meat with half cup creamed limburger cheese. Season with 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and spread on thin slices of bread.

Camembert Sandwiches

Cream minced parsley into camembert cheese. Spread on thin slices of buttered bread and make into tiny sandwiches.

Cheese Olive Sandwiches

Mash any soft cream cheese and add chopped olives and pimentoes in equal parts. Add quite a bit of salt and pepper in order to make the seasoning snappy. Spread between thin slices buttered bread, with lettuce if desired.

Cheese and Pickle Sandwiches

Add a little Worcestershire sauce and a few drops of lemon juice to grated cheese, work until smooth and soft. Add finely chopped dill or sweet pickles for flavoring, and spread on thin slices buttered bread for sandwiches.

Cheese and Ham Sandwiches

Make good-sized sandwiches. Place thin slice Switzerland cheese and thin sliced boiled or baked ham in each sandwich, with crisp piece of lettuce and little mayonnaise.

Sardine Rose Canapes

On six rounds buttered whole wheat bread, place a slice of tomato and a slice of Switzerland cheese. Skin and bone 6 sardines, mash well and then add one hard-cooked egg finely chopped, season with salt and pepper and paprika and moisten with mayonnaise. Put this pulp in a pastry bag and press it through a rosette tube, placing a sardine rose on each round of cheese. Garnish with chopped parsley.

Tomato Toast With Cheese

Toast bread, trim off crusts and butter it. On each slice arrange a thin slice tomato, season with salt and pepper. Cover with very thinly sliced cheese, place strips of bacon on top. Bake in oven till bacon is crisped, and serve at once.

Toasted Cheese Fingers

Toast slices bread, cut in finger lengths. Butter and spread with orange marmalade. Sprinkle with grated cheese.

For party occasions the following recipe has no competitor:

Special Strawberry Ice Cream

1 cup Eagle Brand condensed milk, ¼ cup water, 2 cups strawberries, crushed, ½ cup whipping cream. Mix sweetened condensed milk and water thoroughly. Add crushed strawberries. Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency and fold into chilled mixture. Pour into freezing pan. Place in freezing unit. After mixture has frozen to a stiff mush (about one hour) remove from refrigerator. Scrape mixture fom sides and bottom of pan. Beat two minutes. Smooth out and place in freezing unit for one hour or until frozen for serving. Two to four hours, total freezing time). Serves six.

Household Hints

The average person needs one serving of raw vegetables every day to keep in good health. Shredded cabbage, grated carrots, tomatoes, cucumbers, celery, green and red peppers are suitable for raw vegetable salads.

Cabbage, onions and celery are more valuable raw than cooked, since they lose some food qualities in the cooking.

Specks of mold on the outside of Canadian cheese are a warning that the cheese has been poorly pressed and may not keep well.

A child learns to like a new and unfamiliar food when only small amounts of it are given him at first, until he becomes accustomed to it.

Honey may be used in place of sugar in cooking by substituting one cup of honey for each cup of sugar and using one-fourth cup less liquid for each cup of honey.

Two Recipes For Soup

This is a sort of a clear tomato soup, very simple to make, and light and refreshing to eat.

Fry a couple of onions, sliced, in pork or bacon fat, but do not let them brown. Add half a dozen tomatoes cut in quarters, and presently a pint and a half of hot water. Season this very well, bring to the boil, and simmer till the tomatoes are quite decidedly cooked. Strain through a sieve before serving.

You may adorn it with noodles or vermicelli, if you feel fanciful; but it tastes just as good by itself.

Onion soup is easier still, and not so anti-social as it sounds.

Simply fry some onion rings in butter till they are golden. Add hot water, salt and pepper, and cook it till the soup is reduced by a third.

It is then ready, and you should eat it with grated cheese, as indeed you may the first, if you care for it.

These soups are both godsends when one is confronted at an hour's notice with unexpected guests.

Baronet Sells Produce Tours Villages In Van

Sir George Beaumont, baronet of Coleorton Hall, Leicestershire, has started business as a florist and fruiterer, and is touring Leicestershire villages in a van selling produce grown in his gardens. He decided to do this because in a local shop he stated that he was charged threepence for a lettuce grown by himself which he sold for a penny.

Sir George drove the van, which is painted in his racing colors, and he was accompanied by a white-coated salesman. He did a splendid trade, and some of the flowers were sold out in an hour. He called at houses in the villages and gave advice on cultivation to those who bought plants. He is selling only produce grown in Coleorton Hall, some of the gardens of which were laid out by the poet Wardsworth.

Paris May Soon Have Women on Police Force

Paris, for many years a leader in setting fashions in women's clothing, has a new problem before it concerning feminine apparel. Tailors have been invited to study and design a uniform for the women police of Paris, if they are established as a body. Policewomen would be a new departure for Paris.

A proposal has been made and is receiving the consideration of the Paris Municipal Council. More than 1,000 applications for enlistment have been received. The matter of a uniform is an acute problem, for Parisians have a keen sense of humor and a blunder might have fatal results for the scheme.

Members of the force would have to be women who have reached the age of discretion and who had sound general education and tact, M. Chiappee, Prefect of Police, considers the latter one of the most important qualifications necessary to a good "guardian of the peace."

Women Smugglers Now Use Toy Spaniels for Contraband

Brussels.—Customs officers have an added worry. The latest novelty put on the market for the fashionable woman is a fluffy white or black toy spaniel, with long, curly hair, that she carries with her in and out of season. The dog looks innocent enough. Not being alive, he does not need a ticket.

Having ascertained that the dog is not being smuggled into any country that bars foreign beasts, the officer generally passes on, unaware that the dog's back can be easily ripped open, and as quickly closed, automatically, and cigars or other dutiable goods hidden inside of him. He takes the place of the ubiquitous handbag, long and bulky, and will contain quite a decent lot of tobacco, when carefully stuffed.

Girls of To-day And Yesterday

"Why Do Modern Misses Delight in Looking Exactly Like One Another" Asks Woman Photographer

Miss Alice Hughes, London's first professional woman photographer, is retiring. She has photographed in the last thirty years a number of the Royal family; she has taken a portrait of the Queen every year since she was Princess Mary and she has her own ideas of modern beauty as compared with feminine loveliness of the Edwardian era.

"Girls to-day are not so beautiful as their mothers were, to my way of thinking," Miss Hughes said. Some of them are very lovely, but they are all so much alike, so artificial. They lack the dignity and serenity—the calm and repose that made their mothers so lovely. Their features are so hard, outlined so sharply; they don't seem to have the delicacy, the softness of gentle curves and dimples of my young days.

"And how really beautiful those Edwardian women were! I knew them all, of course. First they came to my father to have their portraits taken, and later to me to be photographed.

Lack Courage

"Modern girls seem to lack courage. They are all so uniform and just delight in looking exactly like each other. Oh! why do not a few of the nice girls—and there are some—band together and form their own little coterie to forswear rouse and eye-black? It would be such a refreshing change.

"And do you believe all this hurrying and scurrying that girls do to-day makes them more efficient or useful? I cannot think so.

"Long experience in my business, when I was employing about a dozen girls, shows me that generally girls do not take their work seriously. Times have changed, I know, in recent years, but I still believe that to be quite true.

"Girls are not so ambitious as boys. With very many of them it is just a question of usefully filling in the time between school and marriage. Boys know that they are faced with a task for life. Earning a living is their business; a girl's business is marriage.

"Admittedly, some of them are very conscientious, but they lack the constant spur of the need for getting on. There is no incentive for the little extra bit of effort that brings success."

Sunday School Lesson

June 18. Lesson XII—Jesus Rises From the Dead—Mark 1-11. Golden Text—He is risen.—Mark 16:6.

I.—The Visit to the Tomb, vs. 1-4.
II.—The Angel at the Tomb, vs. 5-8.
III.—Mary Magdalene at the Tomb, vs. 9-20.

I.—The Visit to the Tomb, vs. 1-4.

The Soldiers at the Tomb. When the Jewish rulers discovered that Joseph and Nicodemus had possession of the body of Jesus and had buried it honorably, so that it would not be thrust with the bodies of criminals into the pit at Gehenna, they began to worry about what the disciples of Christ might do. Going to Pilate, they told him that "that vagabond" had promised to rise from the grave on the third day, and that they feared his disciples would steal his body and hide it, pretending a resurrection; therefore they asked for an official sealing of the tomb and for a guard of Roman soldiers to make sure that it was not tampered with.

The Women Come for the Embalming. I. "And when the Sabbath was past." The Jewish Sabbath, our Saturday, during all of which Jesus had lain in the tomb, with the exception that he paid the mysterious visit to "the spirits in prison," of which Peter speaks (I Pet. 3: 19, 20). "Mary Magdalene." The woman out of whom Christ had cast seven demons. "And Mary the mother of James." This was James the Less (Matt. 27: 56). "And Salome." She was the mother of the apostles James and John. "Bought spices, that they might come and anoint him." The embalming done by Joseph of Arimathaea and Nicodemus on Friday was done hastily, as the Sabbath would begin at sunset; and these women came to complete it.

Needless Anxieties. 3. "And they were saying among themselves." "Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the tomb?" The tomb, as was not uncommon, was closed by a round upright stone, not unlike a mill-stone.

"And looking up." Joseph's rock-hewn tomb was evidently on high ground, perhaps cut into a cliff. "They see that the stone is rolled back: for it was exceeding great." Its removal was instantly visible as far away as the tomb could be seen, it was so large.

II.—The Angel at the Tomb, vs. 5-8.

"He Is Risen!" 5. "And entering into the tomb." "They saw a young man sitting on the right side. Arrayed in a white robe. And they were amazed."

"And he saith unto them, Be not amazed." Most persons are afraid of the supernatural, but a Christian should not be. "Ye seek Jesus, the Nazarene, who hath been crucified. Even the angel spoke of the Son of God as "the Nazarene," for he had made that despised title most honorable. "He is risen." This is the most momentous announcement ever made. It is the proof of Christianity. It is the evidence of immortality. "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" Christ was so supremely vital that no one should have expected to find Him in a grave.

"And Peter." 7. "But go." The best thing the angel could do for the astounded women was to send them at once on an errand. "Tell his disciples and Peter." Poor, broken-hearted Peter! But the message of the risen Lord through his angels was, 'and Peter.' The only man's name that was mentioned was the name of the man who felt that he was no longer a disciple. Note that it is Mark, whose Gospel is supposed to have been written in close collaboration with Peter, who includes these significant words, "and Peter.' "He goeth before you into Galilee." "Before you" implies a command that the disciples were to go back to the beloved region where they and their Master had labored, where most of his words had been spoken and most of his miracles had been wrought. "There shall ye see him, as he said unto you." This arrangement was expressly made just after the last supper; see Mark 14: 28.

8. "And they went out, and fled from the tomb." How often, in later years, they must have wished that they had tarried a little in the sacred spot! "For trembling and astonishment had come upon them." They were filled with fear when they should have been filled with exultant joy. "And they said nothing to any one; for they were afraid." That is, on their way back to the city they did not dare to spread the glad and amazing news, fearing to be thought beside themselves; but when they reached the apostles, their tongues were loosened, and the wonderful tidings came out in a rush.

III.—Mary Magdalene at the Tomb, vs. 9-20.

The Appearance to Mary. 9. "Now when he was risen early on the first day of the week." at this point there is a break in the printing of the revised version, to indicate that what follows is omitted in the two oldest Greek manuscripts, and that we have here a decided change in the style from what obtains in the rest of the Gospel. Perhaps Mark was here interrupted, some think by the death of Peter, and finished the Gospel later; others think it was completed by another hand than Mark's. "He appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast out seven demons." After giving her startling news to Peter and John, who ran to the tomb and found it empty, Mary had returned to the tomb, reaching it after the other women left, and after Peter and John had gone, so that she was there alone. John gives us the particulars of this first appearance of the risen Lord, giving them so fully and so naturally that they bear on their face the stamp of reality. Indeed, the fact that the risen Christ showed himself first to Mary of Magdala and then to the other women is in itself no insignificant evidence of the truth of the narrative, when we remember in how slight esteem women were held in those days. It is Christianity that has elevated womanhood; but if any false historian were writing a Gospel, or if the Gospel were made up of myths growing slowly through the centuries ,the Saviour would have been showing as appearing first to Peter, the head of the church; or to John, the beloved disciple; or to James, the first apostolic martyr; or in thunderous rebuke to Caiaphas and the Sanhedrin or to Pilate. But that he should have appeared first and most tenderly to women is in close accord with all the rest of his life.

10. "She went and told them that had been with him." The twelve apostles (now only eleven). "As they mourned and wept." Her news should have changed all their mourning into joy. He redeemed you. He went to the cross for you. He went down into the grave for you. He came out of the grave and appeared to Mary Magdalene and lives forever your Intercessor, your Saviour. Give him your heart and let him drive out every devil that torments you, and he will fill your heart with joy and honor and blessing beyond all your dreams.

Summer—The Season For Camps

All Scouts look forward to the Camping Season, and hope to be able to spend at least a short time "under canvas" during the warm, fine weather, so that they can get really close to nature and put into actual practice many of the interesting things that they have learned from their text books.

Lone Scouts will learn with pleasure that, in response to the many requests that we organize another Lone Scout Camp during 1933, Headquarters has decided that if enough Lonies register, the 4th Annual Lone Scout Camp will be held this year during the first two weeks of August, if all is well.

As before, this camp will be held at Ebor Park, near Brantford, Ont., where the Boy Scout Leaders Training Centre is located, and all those who have previously visited this beautiful spot will be anxious to repeat the experience.

Situated on the Grand River, about two miles from Brantford, this lovely wooded park is right off the beaten track and is ideally suited for Scouting activities.

The camp will be under the leadership of experienced Scout Leaders, and will be personally supervised by Capt. John Furminger, M.C., the Lone Scout Commissioner, who will be "Camp Chief."

Lone Scouts in previous years have come long distances to attend these camps, and last year one Lonie from Northern Ontario travelled 600 miles to get to this camp, and another boy came over 550 miles. The camp is open to all Lone Scouts and it is hoped that as many as can possibly do so will endeavour to be there to participate in all the fun which is to be had, and to take advantage of the good Scout training it affords.

The cost will be $10.00 per boy for a period of two weeks camp, and each Lonie will be required to find his own transportation to and from the camp. So now is the time to start saving your camp fee, and you have lots of time to earn the necessary money.

All those interested in this camp are asked to get into touch with Headquarters as soon as possible, as much organization work has to be done, and it is necessary to decide at once, if the camp will be definitely held, and that will depend on the number of Lonies who inform us that they can attend.

Scout Firemen Useful

While returning from an overnight hike six Fireman's Badge Scouts of the 1st Hampton, N.B., Troop, were picked up by car and rushed home to assist at a fire. A guard of Scouts relieved the firemen by patroling the smoking ruins throughout the night.

H.B.C. Selects Vancouver Scout For Arctic Trip

King's Scout Eric Liddell of the 16th Troop was the fortunate Scout selected to go north this summer on the Hudson's Bay Company ice-breaker "Nascopie" to pay a fraternal visit to Old Country Rovers serving at H.B.C. posts on Hudson Bay and the Eastern Arctic. The decision went to Scout Liddell upon his unusual Scouting record.

Abandoned Running Race to Give Aid

During a Fulham (England) Boy Scout cross-country race over Wimbleton Common one of the leading runners saw a woman who had fallen from a bicycle. Immediately he dropped out of the race, ran for the ambulance squad, and assisted in rendering the first aid necessary before the woman could be moved to a hospital. He was out of the race, but he had done his job Scout style.

Scout Postage Stamps For Hungary

Hungary will issue special Boy Scout postage stamps in honor of the World Scout Jamboree to be held near Budapest this summer.

How to Become a Lone Scout

This branch of Scouting is open to all boys between 12 and 18 years of age, inclusive, who are unable to join a regularly organized Troop of Scouts. It is especially meant to fill the needs of boys living in the country, or in small towns and villages, where there is no Scout Troop.

For full particulars write to The Boy Scouts Association, 330 Bay St., Toronto 2, who will gladly tell you all about it, without obligation to yourself. Why not join at once, and attend our Summer Camp?—"Lone E."
