EDITORIAL NOTES

"Industry and Labor" tells us of a man with grey hair and mustache who applied to the General Electric Works at Lynn, Mass., for a job and was turned down with a curt, "You're too old!" He went to a beauty parlor, had a "color transformation," returned in a month and was given a position without the slightest hesitancy. There's a moral and a good advertisement as well in this experience. Men up in years, if they have to look for work, cannot pay too great attention to appearances. Indeed, to be well-groomed is always helpful.

FEVERSHAM

There are now no vacant houses in our village. Mr. Geo. Cooper has rented the old telephone office and Mr. Will. Tyler the main part of the house from Mr. Charlie Weldrick. Mr. Taylor, the new principal of our continuation school will occupy Mr. Chris. Thompson's brick house on Wellington street. Mr. Geo. Myers of Flesherton will occupy the Alexander house, now occupied by Mr. Will. Tyler.

The rain on Thursday night, moistened things up again and made the parched pastures look a little greener.

Mrs. John Semple and son, Howard, and daughter, Miss F. Semple, of Collingwood and Mr. Elmer Semple wife and little son of Toronto were visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hollinghead's, on the 10th line on Thursday last.

PRICEVILLE

The village of Priceville was the scene of an impressive ceremony last Sunday, when more than a thousand people attended a Memorial service, honoring that districts gallant soldiers, who sacrificed their lives during the Great War. The service was held beside the Soldier's splendid Memorial, and many people were present from miles around. Mr. James Weir and Rev. Angus Sutherland, returned soldiers of Priceville, placed the wreath on the Memorial in honor of their former comrades. Following the last Post, sounded by the band master, a reverent two minute silence was observed by all those assembled to witness the ceremony.

Splendid addresses were given by Father Grace of Markdale, Mr. Herb Corbett of Proton Station, F. R. Oliver, M.P.P., and Miss Agnes Macphail, M. P. Rev. Mr. Moir acted as chairman and presided in a very capable manner. Splendid addresses were also given by Mr. John McQuaker of Owen Sound and M. A. Sorsoleil, Deputy Minister of Public Welfare. Splendid selections were given by the Hanover Band. Hymns sung were: O God Our Help in Ages Past, Lead Kindly Light, Lord of the Lands. Mrs. Kerr of Chatsworth rendered a vocal solo, after which the National Anthem was sung

Mention was made of the debt which we owe to those gallant soldiers, who never returned. We must keep their memory alive and do our best to make another war like the last one impossible. Comfort was offered to the still sorrowing relatives of those who made the supreme sacrifice. Guard of honor: W. G. McBride, Alex. McLean, Vic Scheurman and Laughie Dunbar. The large crowd present broke up with a feeling of irretrieveable loss which was however modified by the knowledge that their loved ones had sacrificed their lives for their country. Rev. T. O. Miller of Markdale closed with prayer.

Policeman in Detroit bet some money on the races in a gambling joint and won. Then he had the place raided. There's gratitude for you.

HEALTH

DANGER

The months of August and September are the most dangerous months for babies. This is the time of year when large numbers die from summer diarrhoea, popularly known as "summer complaint". The number is not so great as it used to be, but it is still large—over five thousand each year in Canada.

It is startling to think that, in this country, over five thousand homes each year, experience the sad loss of the newest member of the family group as the result of summer diarrhoea. By far, the greatest number of these deaths occur in August and September.

That is why we cry "Danger" to the babies' parents ,because we want to warn them that there is a very grave danger at this season. We warn them of danger, not just to frighten them, but to impress on them the urgent need for extra and special care in order that the life and health of the babies may not be threatened

Fortunate is the baby who is being naturally fed. In addition to all its other advantages, breast-milk is sterile, and because it does not require to be handled or prepared, there is no danger of its being contaminated. For these reasons, the breast-fed baby is protected in so far as his milk needs are concerned, and the result is that comparatively few breast-fed babies develop summer diarrhoea.

The milk for children who are bottle-fed or who have been weaned should be safeguarded the year round, but in summer, extreme care must be given it. In the first place, a pure, clean milk should be purchased, which practically means pasteurized milk. Upon delivery, the milk should be placed on ice, without delay, and it must be kept cold until it is used. It is also essential that the milk be covered so as to keep out all dirt and to prevent flies or any insects from gaining access to it.

During the hot weather, the baby should be kept clean, as should be everything with which he comes in contact. Keep him cool with cool baths and a minimum of clothing on hot days, adding more clothes when the day or evening is cooler. Babies, like adults, need more water on hot days, and they should frequently be offered cool, unsweetened water to drink between feedings. There is no occasion for worry if the baby takes less food during a hot spell, but if diarrohoea starts, the doctor should be sent for AT ONCE. Delay is dangerous and is often fatal, as is evidenced by the deaths of over five thousand babies each year.

Making Trout Ponds

The old beaver meadow at the rear of Wilson's abattoir in town is at last being put to some good use Messrs. Walter Akitt and C. J. Bellamy have purchased eighteen acres of land from Mrs. W. Boyd and are erecting a dam across the creek at the lower end and intend to make a trout pond. There are several springs on the property and it is thought to be an ideal location for trout.

"We'll be there at 2 o'clock"

Bill Thompson, the threshing machine operator, finds the telephone a great time-saver. He telephones ahead so he's never held up for a crew.

"We'll be at your place at two," he says to Neil MacDonald, giving Mac plenty of time to get his neighbors over for the job, where granary partitions have been put ship-shape thanks to Bill's timely notice.

As a work and time saver; as a means of friendly contacts; as a dependable stand-by in emergency, you cannot do without your telephone.

For 30 cents you can telephone about 100 miles by making an "any-one" call (station-to-station) after 8.30 p.m. See list of rates in front of directory.

Long Distance is surprisingly inexpensive

This aviation age is very apt to produce a surplus of high fliers.

When Premier Henry was attending a banquet in Toronto it was so hot in the room that he arose and took off his coat. That was the right thing to do. A man can get a much better swing with his elbows when the jacket is removed.

Many signs indicate we are beginning to emerge from the emergency.

Much of the charity that begins at home is too feeble to get across the street.

What puzzles us is where the smoking nudists carry and strike their matches.
