NEWS OF THE WEEK.

HOME AND FOREIGN ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Gathered from the Telegraph and Exchanges.

—A great number of prominent English physicians have signed an appeal to Home Secretary Matthews to liberate Mrs. Osborne.

—A rich vein of nickel has been discovered on a farm two miles south of Keewatin. It is said the ore will yield a value of $48 per ton.

—Senator McMillan of Michigan thinks the United States should have four first-class gunboats to protect her interests on the great lakes.

—In a line fence dispute in Maryborough township on Saturday John George shot Daniel Eby with a shot gun. Eby is in the doctor's care and George is under arrest.

—The writ for the election to fill the vacancy in Welland, Ont., caused by the unseating of Mr. German, has been issued. The nomination takes place on April 22nd and polling on April 29.

—The Hon. J. K. Porter, senior counsel for the people in the trial of President Garfield's assassin, Guiteau, and for the defence in the Beecher trial, died at Waterford, N.Y., Monday morning.

—There is an anarchist scarce at Havana now. A bomb was exploded at a church door on Friday, causing great consternation among the worshippers, but no one was hurt and the building suffered but little damage.

—At Roland, Man., a point on the North ern Pacific, John Jordan, a three-year old boy, got his head shot off on Tuesday by his brother, who aimed a loaded gun playfully at him. The accident has unsettled the reason of the mother.

—Dr. W. J. Hutchings, a Chicago man with a smoke consumer for locomotives, has wagered to run an engine through the London, Eng., underground railway without even soiling a linen handkerchief placed over the smokestack.

—An anarchist society has been discovered in Minneapolis with headquarters in Chicago, whose agents are servant girls and butlers, who possess peculiar advantages in placing dynamite bombs where they can do the most harm.

—During Good Friday's services in a church in Angleseola, a village in Spain, while the priest was praying before the altar a man supposed to be a lunatic cut off the priest's head with a single blow of a sharp sword, and made his escape through the frightened congregation.

—Rev. Dr. Armstrong of Moore, who makes a business of importing young Englishmen with money and planting them on Canadian farms, has got hold of a real nobleman, Count Loubens de Verdal of France, whom he proposes to initiate into the mysteries of manure drawing and cow punching. The nobleman arrived in London last week.

—The bill to permit the law society to admit women to practice as solicitors was adopted in the Ontario legislature by a non-partizan majority of 94 to 27. Mr. Meredith declared that the natural sequel to the measure would be the admission of women to the bar and the bench, and Mr. Mowat replied that he was willing to see them admitted to the practice of the law in its fullest extent.

—General d'Andlau, once a well-known figure in Paris, died in poverty in Cayenne, in French Guiana, a few days ago. The general was involved in the scandal which brought about the disgrace and fall of M. Wilson, son-in-law of President Grevy. He was condemned to five years' imprisonment, to the loss of his title as senator and of his rights as a citizen. He had wandered about the world from place to place since then until death overtook him.

—A London cable says: Information has been received here that an engagement has taken place between the forces of the Ameer of Afghanistan, commanded by Pholam Khan, the ameer's generalissimo, and a force of the Khan of Junaol. The latter was defeated and the Afghan force captured the town of Asmar. By this victory the ameer is enabled to command the Dora Pass, one of the two passes leading through the Pamir country to India. The other pass is held by the British.

—A wealthy Austrian woman has just founded an asylum for mothers-in-law. The building, not yet completed, is to be big enough to accommodate five hundred guests, and the institution will serve as a pleasant refuge for ladies whose company is not agreeable to the ungrateful men who have walked off with their daughters. More than one-half the number of apartments in the asylum have already been bespoken, the applicants all representing the higher classes of Austrian society.

—A London cable says: Advices received here from St. Petersburg state that the council of the empire has adopted a series of drastic measures which indicate that preparations are being made for war. A plan has been approved by which all private railways and steamers will be turned over to the government in the event of a mobilization of the forces being ordered. The severest penalties are provided for anyone who shall communicate abroad any of the plans of the government or any document containing information which, because of considerations of external security, should be kept secret. The authorities will also punish without trial such persons as shall be discovered to be secretly teaching the Polish language.

—A London cable of April 17 says: The inhabitants of the southeast of England were amazed Sunday morning on rising to see twelve inches of snow on the ground. Never in English memory had such a spectacle been witnessed. The budding crops were buried out of sight, and everything wore a garb of the deepest winter. The cold is in sense. Travel on roads and railways is obstructed, and great hardship is reported among the poor, whom the sudden visit has found entirely unprepared. In all the ports of southeast England vessels are delayed owing to the snowstorm, which has been as heavy and blinding as a channel fog, and it is feared that a number of disasters have happened. The trains coming to the metropolis from a south-easterly direction were detained by snow, while the streets are in an indescribable condition. Every salvation army shelter in London was crowded last night, and many applicants could find no room. All reports agree that the unemployed and homeless of London have seldom if ever seen a time of greater suffering. A woman who had fallen exhausted on London bridge on Friday night with an infant in her arms wrapped in a tattered shawl said she had not tasted food for two days. The babe was almost dead from exhaustion and cold. Other cases of privation and suffering equally as bad are reported, and it is said thousands would have perished in the east one but for the charity of others but little removed above themselves in the grade of poverty. The authorities are unable to adequately provide the necessities of life for the homeless and impoverished.

—An Atlanta, Ga., paper says pestilence and famine exist in the Exposition mill factory district as terrible as that in the czar's domain. The living are starving by degrees and the dead are unburied. The article goes on to say that the living are suffering with pneumonia, fever and measles, and have no food or clothing. This factory district is just outside the city limits. The district comprises over two hundred roughly constructed one and two room frame houses. The bodies of sufferers whom death has relieved lie in the same room with those whom pneumonia or fever are fast leading to death.

—The Brantford truant officer seems to understand his duty. On Monday he summoned Mr. Kieto for neglecting to send his son Johnny to school. The defendant admitted that his boy would not go to school. He had done all in his power to keep him off the street. The boy was sent to school, but never went. Johnny was sentenced to six months in the industrial school at Mimico. Edith Brown, aged 14, was also charged with a similar offence. She said she had no shoes to go to school, and that the other girls laughed at the shoes she wore. The police magistrate told the child she must go to school or gaol and she chose the former.

—A few days ago a young man giving his name as Banquitats, who has for some time past been boarding in a fashionable house on Sherbrooke-st., Montreal, went into Notman's studio and asked the manager there, with whom he was slightly acquainted, to cash a $500 cheque. He was refused, when he asked the manager if he would cash a $500 draft if the amount was deposited in Boston with Notman's manager there. He was told that if their manager there telegraphed the firm that he had been given the $500 they would take the telegram as security and hand over the money. The next day two telegrams were received at Notman's, signed by their manager in Boston, which said that $500 had been deposited with him for Banquitats. Soon after this the swindler entered and asked for the money, but was told to come back in an hour. In the meantime the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co.'s office, on whose blanks the telegrams were written, was visited, and it was discovered that the messages were forgeries. The company at once decided to take the matter into their own hands, and the detectives were notified. After a time the messenger boy was discovered who delivered the message, and he confessed that he had delivered them at the request of the stranger, being paid 25 cents for doing so. The detectives have not located the rogue.

—A St. Petersburg cable says:—Anna Sainio, wife of a professor at the state college, Tavastohuus, Finland, who was charged with having murdered her husband, has been found guilty. The court sentenced her to be beheaded and ordered that her body be afterwards burned. Much interest has been taken in the case, owing to the youthfulness and beauty of the condemned woman. She is only 22 years old. She was married to Professor Sainio in 1890, and has one child. She appeared to live happily with her husband, and no one seemed to have a suspicion that she was otherwise than a devoted and faithful wife. When the professor was found murdered the police investigated and soon learned that Mme. Sainio, to whom no suspicion had heretofore attached, had been engaged in questionable money transactions, and that she had forged her husband's name. A close though unobserved watch was kept upon her, and it was discovered that she was carrying on an intrigue with a student in the college. She was placed under arrest and at her trial overwhelming evidence of her guilt was presented by the prosecution....Anna Sainio, condemned to death for murdering her husband, has confessed that she substituted capsules of strychnine for capsules of quinine, which her husband was in the habit of taking. She then kissed him and put pillows over her head in order not to hear his screams when dying. Her husband's life was insured for $2,500.

—A London despatch of Friday last says: The revelations made in evidence on the state of the British army, given before the committee of enquiry presided over by Lord Wantage, have been the sensations of the week, and were of such a nature as will lead to the most active agitation in parliament as soon as the recess is over. A group of military members of the house of commons have already seen War Secretary Stanhope privately, and extorted from him a promise that the government shall not obstruct a full discussion and sequent reforms. The generals examined concurred in the opinion that there was hardly a single infantry battalion at home effective. Adjutant General Sir Evelyn Wood declared that 50 per cent of the men encamped at Aldershot were unfit for camp duties, that they could not even do a day's service on account of their youth and lack of stamina, and that the only practice he dared to put such men to was two hours carrying the pack or sentry duty.....The Duke of Cambridge, commander-in-chief, endorsed this startling statement, adding that if called upon to mobilize two army corps in short notice the authorities could not do so, and he did not think it possible to mobilize one corps composed of twenty-five battalions of infantry....Lord Wolseley, in response to a question whether the battalions as they now stand would be fit for home defence, replied: "If we were invaded to-morrow they would be little better than nothing."....The Duke of Connaught said: "I am perfectly certain that if the battalions under my command at Portsmouth were ordered to service to-morrow one half of them would not be allowed to go on account of unfitness."....The main cause of the weakness of home battalions is stated to be depletion of their best men for foreign and colonial service. Lord Wolseley likened the home forces to a squeezed lemon. The Duke of Connaught held that grown men would not join the service, owing to the fact that wearers of the queen's uniform are socially ostracised, and also because soldiers are wantonly burdened with excessive sentry duty. In regard to methods of reform there was a general opinion that a substantial increase of the strength of the battalions would come from more liberal pay and better pensions. Views differed on the period of service, but agreed on the need of periodic training for reserve men, now proved with volunteers to be the sole reliance in the event of war.

MIDLAND DISTRICT NOTES.

—It is said that calves two or three days old are killed in considerable numbers at Campbellford, and the carcases sent to Montreal to be made into boneless turkey. —Empire.

—Mr. La Touche Tupper and Mr. John Kennedy of the Newcastle fish hatchery have deposited one million whitefish fry in Lake Simcoe at Barrie and Orillia and in Georgian Bay at Midland. The same gentlemen have planted one million fry in the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario at Belleville, Picton and Cobourg.

—A most painful accident occurred to Mr. John Wilson while cutting wood on Monday at Joly, Muskoka, a knot in the tree striking him with considerable violence in the ball of the right eye, which bled profusely. The wounded optic did not at once cause much trouble, but on Wednesday a thick film had overcast the eye and the pain became almost unendurable. He was driven to Burk's Falls, but will be sent to Toronto. It is feared that he has lost the sight of the eye for life, and the strain on his nervous system has been terrible to witness.

—"Coffin" Macdonald, arrested for bigamy in marrying Miss Minnie A. Lott, has been acquitted at the Belleville assizes. It is understood that he has instituted proceedings against several of the parties who assaulted him upon his wedding day and so ruthlessly robbed him of his wife. The parents of the bride have forgiven the couple, and have now not only a daughter back but in addition a son-in-law. Macdonald was married some years ago to a Miss Reed of Huntingdon. It was proven at the trial that she died and was buried near Madoc in June, 1889. Macdonald "stood off" the minister who married him and the issuer of the marriage certificate.

—A fatal accident occurred at Shaw's sawmills, near the narrows of Eagle lake, Muskoka, on Friday last. From some unknown cause the engine started off to run at a very high speed, and before the engineer, Alexander Millsap, could reach the valve and shut off steam the flywheel burst, one piece of which struck him, cut off one arm, crushed his head and caused instant death. Another part tore away about twenty feet of the upper floor of the mill, cutting in two the heavy 6x8 inch joists placed ten inches apart. The sawyer, Mr. J. Roleton, and J. Benson, edger, being protected by the heavy machinery between them and the destructive missiles, narrowly escaped with their lives.

—Monday night last was the date fixed for the marriage of Mr. J. A. Clapper and Miss Mary Jane Seams, Belleville. The nuptials were to be celebrated at the residence of Rev. T. J. Dingman, Foster-ave. Circumstances over which the groom had no control will necessitate a slight change in the program. It appears that the young man had bought the wedding trousseau, and an elaborate wedding supper had been prepared at the residence of Mrs. Clapper. On Friday the prospective groom went as usual to pay his respects to his affianced, only to learn that she in company with her father had left at midnight on Thursday for Alpena, Michgan, taking with her the wedding goods. There was a wedding, however, on Monday night, and one of the principals was the deserted groom, while Miss Mary Macdonald took the place of the bride.

THE THREE FAVORITE BLACKS.

Three names there are of great renown,
Well known in each Canadian town;
They have acquired a wondrous fame—
Are friends of every country dame:
These characters throughout our land
Have made a most determined stand,
And, in a bold and honest way
Have come to every home to stay.
Kind fate to ladies did ordain,
That they should kindly entertain,
These three black characters of note,
And to them special care devote:
All this was done, because fair eyes
Discovered they were Diamond Dyes—
Three members of a noble clan
Who've blessings brought to home of man.
The first of fame, is Black for Wool,
Giving a Jet or Blue so full—
A one-dip dye of wondrous pow'r,
And fast e'en with a strong soap scour,
The second, for your Silk or Feather,
Gives such a Black, that use or weather
Can never in the least reduce
The brilliant shades they can produce.
And last, not least, the Cotton Black
To faded goods at once brings back
A look of freshness, grandeur, style,
That makes the housewife sweetly smile.
Each member of this trio grand
His special work has well in hand;
Their reputation never dies,
For the re allied to Diamond Dyes.

THE NATIONAL DRINK BILL.

PART I.—THE REVEL OF DEVILS.

In the dread infernal regions,
Far removed from love and light;
In the neither world where demons
Range in never-ending night;
There are gathered imps and devils,
Pausing not for rest or breath,
Dancing on in fiendish revels,
Hatching hellish schemes of death.

Leap they hither, thither, cursing
Each and all within their ken;
All the while invoking, nursing
Their hot wrath and hate of men.
Ay, they hate mankind, and prove it
By the fire-drink made to sell
To the sons of earth, who know not
That the stuff is brewed in hell.

Once a year, as men do reckon—
For in hell they mark net years—
Once a year the devils beckon
All their troops of vile compeers;
Once a year they choke their laughter
When our drink bill is made known;
Once a year they view their slaughter,
Leering, "Have we held our own!"

Wait they for the script of battle,
List they what their foemen say—
Will men, like "dumb-driven cattle,"
Let the drink maintain its sway?
And they shout in jubilation
When they hear the Drink Bill swells—
Devils know "distilled damnation"
Rings ten thousand funeral bells.

PART II.—THE RESOLVE OF MEN.

As the fresh light of the morning
Stole around and o'er the hills,
All our dreary world adorning,
Bringing ease to human ills;
Sped the news to every reader
Of the world-wide speaking Times;
Sped a letter and a leader
On our nation's drink and crimes.

Men of learning read and wondered,
Noble women blushed in shame;
Critics swore some one had blundered,
Cynics quizzed, "Well, who's to blame?"
Seven score million pounds for ever
Lost by cowards who duty shrink.

Cowards! yes, we dare declare it,
Be they rich or be they poor;
Whoe'er makes, or sells, or buys it,
Lays a curse at someone's door.
Need we tell again the story
Of the drink-blight in our land?
Need we plead for Britain's glory?
Need we pray you join our band?

Hark! ye sturdy men of England,
Wales and Ireland listen, too;
Rouse, ye patriots of Scotland,
There is one thing we can do:
We can strike for Right and Freedom,
We can face the "traitor's knaves;"
We can save our drink-cursed kingdom,
We can free the drink-bound slaves.

Rise we, then, in mighty anger,
We have cause and we have right;
Let us parry blows no longer,
Now's the day and hour to fight.
Courage, steady, ready, forward,
Home and Heaven are on our side;
Hoist our banner, pass our watchword—
Prohibition; God our Guide.
