for all: it is full, resplendant and corresponds to the iteration of the word. It is in harmony with our conceptions of what it should be. All the blessings he purchased for any man he purchased for every man. As the Redeemer died for every sinner—it follows no man could be under a decree consigning him to hell. A measure of the Spirit's influence is bestowed upon all. "I am the true Light which lighteth EVERY man that cometh into the world." John i. 9.

To substantiate his theory B forces John Wesley into the witness box, as he did Dr. Whedon and Milton to testify against themselves, when it is well-known that their Arminianism was taught clearly and distinctly. Wesley wrote against and preached against it, as did Fletcher of Madely, who wrote his Checks on Antinomianism, and with whom Wesley was in perfect accord. With these facts before him, what desperate straits Calvinism resorts to—an intentional misconstruction of their writings for the worst of purposes! B professes to quote from a pamphlet or pamphlets. A CRANK may have written such, I admit; but so obverse to Methodism, comment is scarcely necessary. Look at this—"We believe that in the moment Adam fell he had no FREEDOM of WILL left." One thing is clear, that Adam had WILL enough to hide himself, and to cover himself with fig leaves.

What a parody on the faith of the Methodist Church!! There is not a figment of truth in it.

B concludes with an essay on the WILL, which, boiled down, is, that "the will can no more choose otherwise in a given case than the clock hammer can strike otherwise—no "power of contrary choice."

Calvinists often speak of "free agents," "free will," and self-determining power, but bring it to an analysis, like B's it will always be found that the freedom is as I have stated. "Arminians affirm that if the agent have no power to will otherwise than motive force determines, then there would be no justice in requiring a different volition. It would be requiring an impossibility, and for punishing an agent for not performing an impossibility is injustice, and to punish him eternally an infinite injustice, and consequently the Calvinistic theory of the human will destroys all JUST punishment, and so all free volition and all divine government." Thus B's TWO HUNDRED LINES of closely printed matter on the will, is put by Dr. Whedon into a nut-shell, and shown to be logically incompatible with the generally accepted idea of the human will. Just think—two week's labor! dashed to atoms by a few consecutive arguments. Indeed B's haze of words obscures, befogs and sickens. He is to be pitied after all. He knows the moral argument is against him—he doesn't try to show that it is not. The theory of his iron heeled creed of the sixteenth century will not bear the light of the nineteenth. Men stand aghast at such forced constructions of the Scripture merely to sustain a human theory, subverting the true character of God; antagonistic to the impressions God places on our consciences by his divine spirit; abortive of good and stultifies the spread of the Gospel, when brought to the front, but wisely, I think, is studiously kept in the background, and would soon disappear altogether but for such CRANKS as B; and the enforcement of such miserable dogmas on young men attending Calvinistic Theological Schools. But it is gratifying to know that many in the ranks of the Presbyterian Church do not believe in such crude, harsh representations of God and His grace, and B will not deny, that in this respect his church of today, is not in those respects, as when he was a lad. Improvement marks the period. An old author sums up the whole question of Calvinism thus:—

You can and you can't,
You will and you won't—
You'll be damned if you do,
And you'll be damned if you don't.

I think I have succeeded in showing—

1st—That the atonement is universal.

2nd—That its application depends on the creature's Free Agency to accept it or refuse it.

3rd—That Infant damnation and reprobation is a lie.

4th—That the predetermined reprobation of any portion of the human family is not sustained and cannot be.

5th—That Calvinism is a human invention and to sustain it, forced, unnatural, and un-God-like interpretations of the Scriptures are necessary to sustain it.

6th—That the Calvinist, offering the Gospel to all, is dishonest, according to their own Confession of Faith.

7th—That Calvinism is not adapted to the restoration of the heathen.

8th—That it is a system, becoming obsolete, the damaging portions of their creed being disgusting to the people of the 19th century.

9th—I have shown clearly, I think, that Arminianism or Methodism, in all her essentials, is more Scriptural, and therefore more reasonable and better adapted to the conditions of the world as now found, and must be ultimately, as evidenced by its progress, the moulding doctrine for the churches—the approximations in this direction are specific and convincing.

This, then, Mr. Editor, is my answer. My opponent, fearful of it, tried to forestall it in his opening sentences.

If anything distasteful has escaped my pen, I am not responsible; my replies have been to meet the case, as advanced by B. He has studiously endeavored to expose my identity, and when I have called things by their proper names he put on his religious cloak and whined like a whipped dog. The truth is, this ex-lecturer on the Presbyterian Church supposed that he knew all and a little more, and is vexed and sore, that his arguments are so shivered and shorn. His productions have shown no merit but prolixity. Any and every author which incidentally uses the term "predestinate," or "reprobation," he claims as a Calvinist, to the merriment of the thoughtful. I have on every point established the predominancy of Arminianism, it being more in accord with Scripture, conscience and God.

I now conclude, without envy or malice, heartily desiring, that amity and good-will may mark the actions of all the churches, whose ambition is to do good, and promulgate the truth as in Christ.

On Friday night the 1st inst., the Orangeville Agricultural works were destroyed by fire. The alarm was given about a quarter to eleven and when the brigade reached the spot the flames had made rapid progress, the buildings all being of wood. A plentiful supply of water was obtained and the fire was for the nature of the material quickly subdued. Most of the machinery was saved. The buildings and machinery is insured but for how much or in what companies we did not learn.—Orangeville Gazette.

Letter from Thos. R. Moore.

[The following extracts are taken from a letter to Mr. C. C. James, Priceville, from Mr. Thos. R. Moore, formerly of Artemesia, but now of Washington Territory, U. S. We regret that want of space forbids us giving the letter in its entirety.—ED.]

We found Spokana Falls about the size of Owen Sound, but only four years old.....where we are now is about 100 miles South of the boundary line between British America and the United States and about 200 miles East of Puget Sound. We have plenty of timber, mostly pine, and good water.....This is a very healthy country as regards climate, The winter so far has been very mild, with the exception of this week which has been somewhat cold. The snow is about six inches deep. Cattle and horses are getting their own living yet. (Jan. 1st). The summers are warm and dry, but not oppressive the nights being always cool. Fall Wheat and Spring Wheat are raised here, and the best vegetables I ever saw. Small fruit does well,.....The land is very good, the soil being a deep, dark loam, and none of your Artemesia hard pan, that gets so mushy after rain. This will absorb a great quantity of wet, and soon become nice and dry.....I have chosen 640 acres of Ry. land on a county road where there is a stage three times a week, and school only one-third of a mile distant; and three saw mills within seven miles, the nearest being only two miles distant. I am in a thickly settled neighborhood, mostly of Eastern men—men of pluck and push and indominitable energy.....Now, if things turn out half as well as I am led to expect, I consider that I have made a good strike; for I consider, that in one year from now, I can have one hundred acres of Fall Wheat in, a good house erected, and all my land paid for.....Wheat is $1.00 per bushel, Oats 2½ cents per lb, Barley 2 cents per lb., Hay $14 per ton, Butter 50 cents per lb., Eggs 50 cents per dozen Horses range from $80 to $150, Cows and all horned cattle range very high owing to the hard winter four years ago. People made no provision prior to then to feed in winter, and that winter the snow being deep most of them died. Cows run from $40 to $60 each.....The military road runs through my place. The great want here is direct railway communication with Puget Sound.....We are enjoying good health at present. [The letter from from which the above extracts are made, is dated Jan. 1st. 1884.]

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.
