The editor of an exchange has discovered that there is a wide difference between the school books of the present and those of long ago. He says when he first went to school he read his lessons something like this:—"See the cow. Is not the cow nice? Can the cow run? Can the cow run as fast as the horse? But the latest up-to date style of reading is about as follows: --Get onto the cow. Haint shea beaut? Sure she is a corker. Can a cow get a move on herself? Can she hum it like a hoss? No she ain't in it wid de hoss."

Isaiah, the 15-year-old son of Widow Heliyer of Arthur tp, near Kenilworth, died on Wednesday evening of last week from the effects of a blow received by a board being hurled against his abdomen from the belt of a threshing machine which was at work in his mother's barn. The funeral took place on Friday at the Methodist church, Kenilworth, and the widowed mother has the deep sympathy of all in her terrible affliction.

A great many barns have been burn by lightning this year, and it has become a general matter of speculation as to the cause. Insurance companies are at their wits' end to know what to do about it; and if this thing keeps on insurance rates will have to be increased. A writer in the Kingston News gives what he regards as the cause, and there may be something in it. If his theory is correct, it would be an easy thing to avoid the lightning's stroke by providing the suggested means of ventilation. He says:—"Now I have never heard or known that any barn with an open lattice ventilation has been struck or burned. All farmers know that no matter how dry grain or hay is when put into the barn it will sweat more or less. This sweat forms a gas, which invariably rises to the top. We know this, for if we salt the bottom of a mow, the top also becomes salty. I believe that lightning has an affinity for this gas, and this gas, if confined in the top of a barn, draws the lightning."

Five persons were killed and a dozen injured by a tornado which swept over St. Catharines and Merriton on Monday of this week.
