Canada's Favourite Tea

"SALADA" TEA

507

..For ten years Pop Clark has tried vainly to win the United League pennant with his New York Blues. Most of the baseball writers predict another failure but Terry Burke of the Star thinks they have a chance and through Tony Murallo, who has a restaurant in the Broadway district and is associated with bookmakers and gamblers, he bets $1[illegible] on them at 200 to 1. The opening game is a pitchers' battle. Whitpur, the Philadelphia star twirler, is jealous of Larry Doyle, the Blues' rookie shortstop, because of Pop Clark's pretty daughter Frances. He tries to intimidate Larry with a bean ball and when he throws a second one at Larry's head Doyle knocks him down with a right to the chin. Larry is put out of the game. Later Whitper hits a home run with a man on base but as Whitper is nearing the home plate, he drops dead, shot through the heart. The Blues win and it is generally believed that Whitper was killed to allow them to win. Detective Kelly suspects Larry because he will not account for his time after leaving the diamond.

"[illegible] grabbed one, but I ain't had a chance to look at it. Funny thing, you are right here where a thing happens and yet you have to buy a paper to know what it is all about." He spread the paper and the press men gasped as they saw it was a copy of the Star, Terry's paper, with a big heading, reading:

Second Murder at Blues Field

"How did you know it was a murder" Mullins demanded.

"Took a guess."

"Guess, hell!" Reynolds sneered. "What's the idea?

"No idea," Terry replied and craned his neck to read the account in the paper.

Dirkin prize slugger and second baseman on the Chicago Butchers, knocks out a home r[illegible] t death," was the opening sentence. Then the story went on to describe the events leading up to the strange run and final fall of Dirkin.

"Your imagination will get you in jail one of these days," Doc Biers snorted.

Kelly appeared [illegible] the doorway. "I want one of you——" he began, and then spied Terry. "Hello, Burke. Come in here a minu[illegible], will you?"

"Can you beat that?" Craven complained. "I'd rather have that guy's luck than a license to steal."

"How did he know so much about how it was done?" Reynolds sneered. "Tell me that. He was there with the rest of us. He couldn't know unless he had some inside information."

"Did he run down with the rest of us?" Mullins asked.

"He waited for me to go out before he did," Bill Hover recalled.

"The kid is foxy," Craven said. "He waited until we left and then he called his paper and gave them a lead. [illegible]on't be soreheads. He just outthought us, that's all."

"It looks and sounds phoney to me," Mullins said, and looked at Reynolds for corroboration.

Inside, Pop, Rawlins, the Chicago manager, and the doctor were waiting when Kelly returned with Terry. There was no sign of the body anywhere.

"Now," Kelly turned to Terry, "I've had several versions of the game and I want you to give me the dope as you recorded it up to the time Dirkin fell."

Terry pulled out his notes and read without interruption until he had finished.

"That agrees with what Rawlins and I told you," Pop said when Terry had finished. "I know what goes on durin' a game."

"All right, Pop," Kelly said impatiently. "I wanted to check from every angle. Do you know what this means to me? I've got to get at the bottom of this one or I'm through on the force. Remember Whitper?"

"Think of what [illegible] means to me!" Pop retorted.

"Yeah," Rawlins broke in. "How do you think I feel with my best man knocked off this way? I'll have to build up a new team."

The medical examiner came in then.

"What killed him?" Kelly asked.

"I d[illegible]n't know. He was poisoned."

"[illegible] it's what

"I can't say. There are no marks on the body. His m[illegible]uth isn't burned in [illegible]ny way, but from the condition of his eyes and the convulsive state of the muscles, it is clearly a poison [illegible]"

"When can you let me know?" Kelly demanded.

"Can't say. If it's a common poison, we will locate it quickly. If it is something rare and unusual, we will have to experiment"

"Make it as snappy as you can, will you, Doc?" Kelly begged.

"There is one slight puncture on the fleshy part of his right hand below his little finger. It may be important and it may not. You might save yourself trouble later if you located anything that he handled during the afternoon. May be a false scent, but it's worth considering. So long."

"What could he have been handling during the course of the game?" Kelly asked Rawlins.

"I don't know. There wouldn't be anything much except bats and balls," Rawlins replied.

"I want the bats and balls used in today's game put aside and locked up," Kelly ordered.

Easy Entertaining

For the busy homemaker there is great satisfaction in the knowledge of a well-stocked cake tin and cookie box. For all those occasions when guests drop in for tea, when small persons come home hungry from school, and many other informal occasions, there must be a supply of small cakes and cookies. Of course, to have these on hand requires some previous planning, but they should be inexpensive, easy to mix and baked by the dozens. They vanish overnight almost but that is nothing to worry about when you can turn out a large batch of them in half an hour.

Chocolate flavored dainties are particularly popular. Crisp, crunchy chocolate cookies, chocolate ice box cookies — ready to slice and bake any time, and best of all, Brownies, are excellent small cakes to keep on hand. Here are the recipes for them, make up a batch of one or all and remain a calm and unflustered hostess in any entertaining emergency.

Chocolate Cookies

2 cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup butter or other shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, salt and cinnamon, and sift three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add eggs and chocolate; beat well. All flour, a small amount at a time, mixing well after each addition. Chill thoroughly. Roll 1-8 inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut with floured cooky cutter; sprinkle with sugar. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 9 minutes. Makes 2½ dozen 3-inch cookies.

For special occasions and childrens' parties, cookies can be cut in fancy shapes and decorated with granulated sugar, mixture of sugar and cinnamon, colored sugar, nuts, raisins, caraway seeds, colored candies or silver dragees. There is an infinite variety of decorati[illegible] dress up these cookies to attend any party or festive occasion.

Brownies

¾ cup sifted cake flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1-3 cup butter or other shortening
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup chopped walnut meats
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once measure, add baking powder and dash of salt, and sift again. Add butter to chocolate and mix well. Add sugar gradually to eggs, beating thoroughly; then chocolate mixture and blend. Add flour and mix well; then nuts and vanilla. Bake in greased pan 8x8x2 inches, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 35 minutes, or until done. Cut in squares; remove from pan and cool on cake rack. Makes 2 dozen brownies.

Chocolate Ice Box Cookies

4 cups sifted cake flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups softened butter
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
4 squares, unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups broken walnut meats

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Combine butter, sugar, eggs, chocolate, and vanilla, beating with spoon until blended; add nuts. Add flour gradually, mixing well after each addition. Divide dough into two parts; shape in rolls, 1½ inches in diameter, rolling each in waxed paper. Chill until firm enough to slice. Cut in ⅛-inch slices; bake on ungreased baking sheet in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 minutes Make 7 dozen cookies. To vary this recipe, substitute 2 cups premium shred coconut, for nut meats.

And now Brownies, the pet of all chocolate cookies.

Favorable Progress At Admiral Cadillac

Development work at the Admiral Cadillac property in the famous Cadillac area of north-western Quebec continues to reveal satisfactory results. Attention is being directed particularly to a very thorough examination of the strong, well-mineralized vein which was encountered in the south-west section of the property where the company's holdings contact the great Thompson Cadillac property. This vein, which was discovered near a diorite body, has been traced from the Thompson Cadillac into the Admiral Cadillac property at a point two claims distant, or about 1,200 yards, from the spectacular O'Brien mine.

Work is being concentrated on this showing and consists chiefly of test-pitting to determine precisely its extent and value of the ore. The discovery of this vein was made by Mr. Archie Bell, M. E., description of which was contained in his report regarding the property. In the report of Mr. Colin A. Campbell, M.E., one of Canada's most eminent mining engineers, he points out the existence of a belt of iron formation, which he states holds very interesting possibilities, also quartz stringers and veins, which have been found in abundance throughout the property. A general examination of these showings is being made at the present time with indications that a large number of them have potentialities for successful development.

The present campaign has been very carefully planned. In the first place, the property was selected in an area which holds promise of becoming one of the most notable gold producing fields in Canada. Its close proximity to the celebrated O'Brien Mine on the south, distant only the width of two claims, and its contiguity at its south-west corner to the famous Thompson Cadillac were predisposing factors in its choice.
