THE ADVANCE.

A. R. Fawcett, — Editor.

FLESHERTON:
THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1884.

DURHAM'S PRODIGY.

The Flesherton ADVANCE never loses a chance of giving the Chronicle a dig, but it surprises us little when we find the editor of that pompious sheet, obtuse enough to call the story of "Phyllis" a new one. Why it went the rounds of the patent outsides four or five years since; this is its second peregrinations. He also says it is by one of the most popular authors of the day. In his own paper the author is given as the "Duchess." Who is she? The story is well enough but it is certainly not new.—Durham Chronicle.

Although we have several times felt called upon to refer to certain articles in the Durham Chronicle, we never went outside the bounds prescribed by journalistic etiquette in criticising said articles. We have always kept within the legitimate range of journalism, and nothing will ever induce us to depart from that course. On the other hand, the Chronicle has made grossly libellous attacks on THE ADVANCE. At one time, indeed, we had as clear a case of libel against that journal as it was possible to have. And yet, although we proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Chronicle had published a falsehood concerning THE ADVANCE, the publisher of that paper, Mr. Jenkins, never had the manliness to apologise for his ungentlemanly, unjournalistic, and discourteous sneers. His correspondent published a deliberate falsehood, and Jenkins endorsed it, and commented on it as well. It was bad enough, surely, to allow the libellous article a place in his columns; it was impertinent to refer to it editorially at all, seeing that he knew absolutely nothing of the circumstances; and it was malicious, to say the least, when he endorsed the libellous statement of his correspondent, and repeated the libel—in another form—in a subsequent issue.

In reference to the item quoted at the head of this article, we may inform the Chronicle, that although it has not just been freshly issued from the press from the original manuscript of the author, yet it is new to the majority of the readers of THE ADVANCE. It certainly never was published in this paper before; so that, of course, it is a new story as far as THE ADVANCE is concerned. The Chronicle's sneer at "patent outsides," gives us the opportunity to say that that sheet would be much more interesting than it is, if the despised "patent outsides," were used instead of the metal plates now doing service in that "enterprising" journal.

Now, outside of the occasional cranky tendencies of the Chronicle, we have no fault to find with that journal. It has much in it that is original, vigorous and racy; but when it goes out of its proper sphere and presumes to criticise the literary merits or demerits of other papers, it loses itself in a wilderness of surmises and conjectures, and generally winds up in an atmosphere of fallacious and impertinent philosophy.

THE END OF THE "WORLD" POSTPONED INDEFINITELY.

On Saturday, the 12th ult., the Toronto World suspended publication, and on Saturday, 26th ult., that plucky daily bade its numerous and delighted readers a cheerful "good morning." Now that the newsy, energetic World has, phoenix like, "arisen from its ashes," we have no doubt but that the public will accord it a hearty, whole-souled support.

"CRANK" PROPHETS.

The Hamilton Daily Times of Wednesday, 23rd ult., has the following remarks anent the Maxwell prophet, Mr. J. Sterling:—

The latest crank prophet hails from Maxwell, Grey County. His name is John Sterling, and, according to the Flesherton ADVANCE, he predicts that this Province will be over-run by Fenians during the first week in June next. He advises villagers and townspeople to seek seclusion in the forests and rocky fastnesses of the rural districts. He founds his predictions on something said concerning Armageddon in the book of Joel, though how Armageddon came to get mixed up with the Fenians is not explained. The villagers and townspeople will save themselves time, trouble and money by allowing the prophet to do all the fleeing and hiding "in the rural districts." He should not have to flee far. Are there not some very convenient caves in the neighborhood of Eugenia Falls?

It will now be in order for Mr. Sterling to gird himself and sit down on that audacious Hamilton editor, or else do as he is told—hide in some of those caves near Eugenia Falls.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

—The Cookstown Advocate has suspended publication. It was one of the best papers in the County of Simcoe.

—Phew-w-w! The following from our Barrie namesake, the Advance, fairly takes our breath away:—

The Jersey cow liar, who has figured in the newspapers for the last two or three years, has settled down in this vicinity, it seems. He sends us his compliment in a little note as follows: "Having purchased the gentle creature and led her home in the evening, I turned her into the barn-yard to rest, for she was weary from our tramp. In the morning I marshaled the family out to admire our prize. No Jersey was to be seen. In the spot where she had lain down was a damp, greasy spot. The poor beast had actually turned into milk and butter during the night."

We always thought those Barrie editors excelled in spinning foundationless yarns; now we are sure of it. The Advance man takes the cake.

—"Truth's" third article on Infidelity, in this issue of THE ADVANCE, refers principally to Tom Paine. We have nothing to say in defence of Tom. Paine, except that he was less blasphemous and more guarded in his statements than Ingersoll. For that very reason, however, he was a much more dangerous man than the blatant American blasphemer. Ingersoll's writings, as well as his utterances on the public platform, contain their own antidote as far as intelligent and reasoning minds are concerned.
