Clothes Should Suit Personality

There are no Rules in Fashion World, but Women Should Dress to Suit Figure and Type

Monsieur Lucien Lelong, whose Paris dress creations are copied the world over and who prefers to be called just plain "Mister" bluntly told interviewers today there are no rules for fashion.

And then the designer elaborated: "What is right for one may not be right for another. Clothes should be chosen to enhance the beauty of the individual. Women should dress to suit their figure and type."

EVERY WOMAN, PERFECTION

There is no Venus, or ideally proportioned figure as far as fashions are concerned, he said, but with a characteristic note of chivalry added, "Every woman is perfection at one time in her life" — some at 16, some at 30, others at 50."

Mention of a short-skirted dinner dress, "which is being talked about consistently," made his eyes sparkle.

"I see no reason why women should go trailing around in long skirts for restaurant dinging and other informal affairs," he said. "Let them save these for formal occasions."

Canada is Becoming License - Conscious

Distinct Increase Seen in Number of Radio Licenses Taken Out

Canada is either becoming radio-minded or developing a license conscience, judging by the increase in radio permits which have been taken out. By the end of the year it is expected there will be 1,125,000 licensed sets in the country, compared with 1,038,000 last year.

Quebec is showing the greatest prompitude in taking out licenses with 90 per cent of last year's total already paid. Ontario has paid up 80 per cent.

October will be the time of reckoning. The department will then start to clean up all arrears for licenses, bringing before the courts those who are in default.

Generally, but on increased lines, the ratio of licenses by provinces is being maintained. Last year Ontario topped the list with 424,000; Quebec being second with 240,000 and British Columbia third with 91,000.

The revenue from radio licenses is $2 per set and thus the total will run around $2,250,000.

Alleged WIT

Teacher — "How old is your father?"

Tommy — "Thirty-eight, sir."

Teacher — "Well, I must set you homework more suited to his age."

A very small boy was waiting to cross a busy road. A kindly stranger spoke to him.

"You must be very careful with all this traffic about," he said.

"Oh, I'm all right," replied the child cheerily. "I always wait for the empty space to come by."

The tailor was selling his best friend a new suit. He was raving all about the garment.

"I'm telling you, Harry," he said, "that even your best friend won't recognize you in that suit. Just take a walk outside for a minute and get the feel of the garment."

Harry went out and returned a moment later. The proprietor rushed up to him with a happy smile.

"Good morninng, stranger," he beamed. "What can I do for you?"

"Have you told Mr. Smith that he is the father of triplets."

"Not yet, doctor, he's shaving."

First Firemen — "There were sixteen firemen at my wedding."

Second Firemen — "Yes, but no escape."

A woman went into a bank to cash a cheque. The cashier asked her to endorse it, but she did not know what he meant. "That's all right," said the cashier. "Just sign your name exactly as you would on your letters and I'll give you the money."

So she carefully wrote on the back of the cheque, "Your loving Mary."

A young actor applied for work to the casting director of the Big Noise Film Company.

"Nothing doing at present," said the big man. "See me in two months' time."

"If you really want me you'd better sign me on now," replied the actor, "there are lots of other companies after me."

"Oh?" queried the director doubtfully. "And what companies are they?"

"The gas company, the water company and the electric light company."

She — "Don't you think that love is absurd?"

He — "Yes. Just two silly."

Tourist — "Don't you ever get lonesome up here?"

Mountaineer — "Oh, yes, but I have a couple of good jokes to tell myself."

Shares Many Millions

The International Harvester Company of Chicago, has announced its 65,000 employees in the United States and Canada would receive $4,400,000 extra compensation at the end of the fiscal year ending Oct. 31. Sydney G. McAllister, president of the company, said the directors in declaring a final 1937 dividend of $1.50 a share on common stock last week voted also to appropriate $2,500,000 to the company's pension fund out of 1937 earnings. Last year $2,300,000 extra pay was distributed to the company's employees.

IN UP-TO-DATE STABLES

—Old Reliable Minard's

When horses come in to stable with wire-cuts or saddle boils, or cows have caked udder, the thing to do is get the Minard's bottle at once, as Mr. Dowd of Glenboro, Manitoba, knows. He writes:

"I like your Minard's Liniment. Like to have it in the house. I have found your Minard's Liniment especially good for barbed wire cuts on horses."

A family doctor prepared Minard's Liniment over 50 years ago. Still invaluable in every stable and every house. 89

Indians To Type In Own Language

The Cree Indians of Alberta will soon be able to learn typewriting. Through the co-operation of the Oblate Fathers and several Edmontonians, an eastern typewriter concern recently built a machine with 88 characters.

The Cree language was put into characters by Father Lacombe and James Evans of Edmonton many years ago and through efforts of Father Langois and Athol Beattie, Edmonton manager of the typewriter company, standard 42-unit keyboard was fitted to meet requirements of the language.

The machines are to be used by the Oblate Fathers in Northern Alberta mission fields and on Alberta reserves. The language is adaptable to both northern Cree and Chipewyan Indians.

Dreamer

He trod the path that hundreds of his kind
And humble calling trod. And yet a sense
Of worthiness surrounded him as fence
Of blooms may hide a lovely soul and mind.
His face held radiance, which the wholly blind
Could feel and see, as he drew near a door.
Young head and shoulders lifted, which before
Had slumped beneath a weight of daily grind.
Blue jeans may house a heart of rarest joys,
Small matter if Life's grime and soot has stained.
For men who practise living honour-wise,
Swinging a shining pail midst clang and noise
Becomes a game . . . and broader vision gained.
For men who walk with dreaming in their eyes.

—Irene Archer.

Air-conditioning Aids Growth of Mushrooms

Mushrooms grown in air-conditioned houses will shortly grace milady's dinner table in New York and points East.

Thirty growing houses near West Chester, Pa., have been fitted with apparatus to control the temperature and humidity and by that means to increase the mushroom yield from two crops to three. Previously the houses were shut down during the summer months because hot weather produced inferior mushrooms.

Control of temperature and humidity marks another chapter in the art of mushroom growing, one of the world's most specialized crafts. Parisian mushroom growers long ago found a partial solution to the problem of variable temperature and humidity by placing their growing beds in galleries and cellars from 60 to 160 feet below the surface of the ground.

Suicide Used Clock To Start Gas Going

Carl Bell Yeargin, 44-year-old South Carolina machinist with an ingenious mind, executed himself with lethal gas in what was believed to be the first "trailer suicide" on record.

The key of an alarm clock unwinding as the bell sounded lowered potassium cyanide tablets into a solution of sulphuric acid producing deadly fumes which overpowered him as he lay stretched out on the floor of his trailer.

On the door a warning sign was posted: "Danger! Poison. Only the law shall enter here."

The hour indicator on the alarm clock had been set at 2 o'clock, indicating he had been dead nearly 12 hours when police broke into the trailer early in the afternoon and found him, his face turned a pasty white.

Officers were forced to leave the door open several minutes so the gas would escape.

Yeargin was embittered toward life in general, notes showed.

Movie Actress Shoots Rival With Blanks

LILLE, France.—Germaine Fevrier, 23-year-old movie extra, drew herself up histrionically this week and pointed a pistol at Jeanne Calime, 27, her love rival.

"Miserable woman!" she shrieked. "Prepare to die!"

Then she fired point blank—bang! bang! bang!

Jeanne crumbled to the ground and spectators rushed forward.

They stepped back, amazed, when Jeanne got up and brushed herself off.

It then became known that a Lille gunsmith had become suspicious when Germaine asked for "a loaded gun"—and had filled the pistol with blanks.

The police took Germaine away.

Had to Walk 30,000 Miles

Edmonton Meter Reader Says Dogs Get to Know Him

John Woodruffe, an Edmonton meter reader, estimates he has walked almost 30,000 miles during his duties in the past ten years.

"People have the funniest places for hiding their gas meters," said Woodruffe when he remarked it wasn't so much walking 10 to 15 miles day. He checks and notes in a book about 150 meters every day. He finds meters tucked away in basement corners, in dining rooms and in almost every room possible.

Woodruffe has encountered every type of housewife from pugnacious to sweet. He has explored nearly every home in the city. And he knows a lot of dogs, too. Terror of every door-to-door worker, dogs get to know the regular meter reader with his uniform and don't snarl or bark, Woodruffe noted.

A stout pair of shoe soles is worn through in six weeks on the beat but in his walking clear around the globe in actual mileage, Woodruffe has found health and a good job, he says.

Papal Official's Suite In Vatican Robbed

The Papal Major-domo, Archbishop Mella di Sant'Elia, reported this week that burglars had rifled his apartment, next to Pope Pius' suite, while the Archbishop was away on holidays.

The Major-domo has not yet compiled a list of the things missing nor estimated the value of the burglars' loot. Nor was it known when the apartment was entered. Vatican police were working with Italian authorities on the case.

The Archbishop is that member of the Papal staff who approves the applications of thousands of pilgrims who come each year to see the Holy Father.

Some Lottery Numbers Considered Unlucky

Sellers of French State Lottery tickets have recently made some curious discoveries about likes and dislikes in figures.

Even when, as is sometimes the case, there is a run on tickets just before a draw, there are many which remain unsold, and they consist of tickets numbered 5,555,555., 1,888,888, 0,113,333, and so on.

For some strange reason these repeated numbers are reckoned to have far less chance than tickets with a good mixed number.

Despite the assurances of mathematicians that 1,111,111 is every bit as likely to turn up as 7,418,962, that 1,111,111 remains unsaleable and numbers like 0,123,456 are cold-shouldered, too, because they are consecutive. A lucky number, in the Frenchman's opinion, is a thoroughly well-mixed number.

Lily — "Do you remember, Willie, how you used to catch me in your arms every night?"

Willie — "Yes, dear, and now I catch you in my pockets every morning."
