Free From Sciatica For 35 Years

In Perfect Health at 73 — Thanks to Kruschen

Thirty-five years ago this septuagenarian was helpless with sciatica. Then he heard of Kruschen. Since that day, he has enjoyed perfect health. Here is his remarkable story:

"Thirty-five years ago I had a severe attack of sciatica and could scarcely move for about six weeks. Then I started taking Kruschen—about half-a-teaspoonful every morning in hot water. In a few weeks I got rid of the awful pain in my hips. I have never had to consult a doctor since, and am still in perfect health at 73 years of age, which I can only attribute to taking Kruschen Salts every morning."—T.A.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need of internal cleanliness. Eventually, they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then, probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid, every day, of all waste matter from the system. The result is renewed health and vigour. Ailments due to clogged systems vanish, youth returns, and life becomes really worth living.

Greenland Has Daily Newspaper

Exports Pay Cost of Publication Resulting in Free Distribution

One of the most peculiar dailies, no doubt, is the Greenlandian paper Atuagagdliutit (try to pronounce it some night when you have run out of sleep).

It is printed daily in Godthaab, the biggest settlement in Greenland. News is gleaned from Danish papers arriving there six times a summer, from daily broadcasts of American and Icelandic news services and from local correspondents all over Greenland, who forward their copy in verbal "manuscripts" delivered from the original settlement to some native fisherman or hunter paddling along to the next settlement where he delivers his news to another hunter, who keeps it in mind until he happens to go to the next settlement or meets a hunter from there.

3,250 COPIES

As it can be imagined the story is rewritten several times before it arrives in the editorial office in Godthaab, which is located in the official Greenlandian printing house.

Every day 3,250 copies are printed. Once a year copies covering the whole year are bound strongly and the books are distributed among the "subscribers" in accordance with the name of the paper which means "lecture free". The cost of the printing and distribution is paid by the fees taxed on Greenlandian products exported to Denmark.

Editor Lynge of the paper is half Danish and half Greenlandian.

Alleged WIT

It's a wise storekeeper who knows what will sell:

An artist who was spending a holiday in a small village entered the store and asked if they carried camel hair brushes.

"No sir, we don't," replied the shopkeeper. "Y'see, sir," added, in an apologetical manner, "we never have no call for 'em. Nobody in these parts seems to keep camels."

In a desire to cut down expenses, a man will take his wife to a $1.50 dinner and stay away from a $2.00 dinner, entirely forgetting that in either event his wife will spend $2.00 to have her hair fixed on the day of the occasion.

Neighbor— What makes you look at me like that, young man?

Junior—I thought you were in the hospital.

Neighbor — What ever gave you that idea?

Junior—I heard Daddy tell Mummy that you had been shooting off your mouth again.

A father wrote to his son at college—I'm sending you the $10 in addition to your regular allowance as you requested in your last letter; but I must again draw attention to your incorrect spelling; "$10" is written with one nought, not two.

Mr. Y—Doesn't it annoy you that the Scotch family living in the flat above dance every night?

Mrs. Z—Oh no, when we want to stop them, we turn off the radio.

Woman Customer—Do you return the money when an article isn't satisfactory?

Merchant — That depends on the article.

Customer—This is a book.

Merchant—What was wrong with it?

Customer—I didn't like the way it ended.

Statistics show that more men embezzle money in order to gamble and drink than for any other reason . . . And most women who get touchy fingers, do so because they live beyond their means.

Teacher—Now, Johnny, can you name a place in Alaska?

Johnny—No 'm.

Teacher—That's right; Nome. Good for you! Next!

Another way to make home happy is to say nothing about the spots that get on the table-cloth. They will always wash out, while the memory of unkind words sometimes won't.

Crawford—So you can't understand why your boy in college flunked in all the foreign languages?

Crabshaw—No, it's a mystery to me. He picked up all the college yells in no time.

Friend—Tell me, sir. Who was braver than Lancelot, wiser than Socrates, more honest than Lincoln, wittier than Mark Twain, and more handsome than Apollo?

Mr. Wise—My wife's first husband.

Plumber (arriving late)— Well, how is it?

Happy Husband— Not so bad, while we were waiting for you I taught my wife to swim.

Wife (trying on new fall hats) — Do you like this one turned down?

Hubby—How much is it?

Wife—Twelve dollars.

Hubby—Yes, turn it down.

There is a disposition for the man who works in the mass today, to prize equality in income above everything else. It can be had, all right. But it always winds up with equality with those who have the least, rather than with those who have a bit more.

The Seven Georges

When George Goodman, 18, of Milwaukee, Wis., ran afoul of the law, he also ran into a few namesakes.

George Raabe and George Legge, detectives, arrested him. Desk Sergt. George Heidelberg booked him. George A. Bowman, deputy district attorney, issued a warrant charging him with the theft of 150 pounds of lead. Judge George E. Page bound him over for trial and Jailer George Schneck led him to his cell.

It almost gave George the willies.

First Known 'Link' Lived Seventy Million Years Ago

Smithsonian Report Places Man's Earliest Ancestor In Dark Montana Forest—Ancient Animals Tiny—But Bones of These Tree-Dwellers Show Human Resemblances, Scientists Say

Scattered remains of the earliest known members of the order of life to which modern man belongs have been discovered in Central Montana by three scientists who in succession spent nearly thirty years exploring a wooded paradise of 70,000,000 years ago, according to a report issued by the Smithsonian Institution.

Offshoot of Earlier Stock

Only teeth and jaws of these creatures have been found and only a paleontologist, the report says, could recognize their relationship to the monkeys, apes and humans of today. Tiny creatures, hardly larger than mice, they lived in trees of the ancient forest region just east of the Crazy Mountains, according to Dr. George Gaylord Simpson of the American Museum of Natural History, author of the report.

No claim is made that the little animals were in the direct ancestral line of present-day primates. It is believed that they were offshoots of an earlier general and still unknown stock from which man also derived.

Crocodile Creatures Ate Them

The branch of life in question apparently became extinct after the Paleocene age, and signs indicate many of the animals were devoured by large crocodile-like reptiles which were the dominant creatures of their period.

The explorations were begun in 1908 by Albert C. Silberling of the United States Geological Survey, and a large collection of all sorts of specimens were made. Investigation was continued by the late James W. Gidley of the National Museum staff and continued after his death in 1931 by Dr. Simpson. Dr. Simpson's report is based largely on the extensive Smithsonian collection of the fossils from the Crazy Mountain area.

Although only four or five semi-complete skulls and no complete skeleton exists in the collection, Dr. Simpson states that one of the types discovered seems to combine various fundamental features of the pseudo-monkeys, the lemurs and tarsioids, the latter now represented only in the East Indian tarsius.

Some scientists hold the view that the primate branch which eventually produced man budded off from the main primate stock in the tarsioid stage.

The First Equines

The report discloses the discovery also of remains of animals related to bears and to such insectivores of today as shrews and moles, as well as discovery of probably the earliest beginnings of the family now represented by horses, cattle, deer and bison.

In the earliest strata of the Crazy Mountain formation, according to the report, are found fragments of animals at least 50,000,000 years old and entirely different from any known today. These are the multi-tuberculates which at one time made up the most abundant form of mammal life.

The collection from this area includes the finest single multituberculate specimen yet discovered, the report states, skull, jaws and partial skeleton of one of the small rodent like animals.

Canadian Blind May Be Led By Trained Dogs

"Seeing Eye" Institution for Teaching Canines to Lead Blind Masters May be Established.

Hope that at an early date Canada would have a "Seeing Eye" institution for training dogs to lead the blind was expressed by Captain Edward Baker, Dominion secretary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, speaking to the blind people at Ottawa.

The gathering had just heard an interesting talk given by Miss Hazel Hurst, of Ogdensburg, N.Y., who spoke of the pleasure and assistance derived from "Babe" her "Seeing Eye" dog.

Captain Baker added negotiations had been going on for some time between the Institute and the "Seeing Eye" Institute at Morristown, N.J., and when a trainer with the exacting qualifications could be secured, the plan would be put into operation. The proposed institution would be similar to the one at Morristown, which, he believed, was the most efficient one in the world.

Three Already Here

At present there are three "Seeing Eye" dogs in Canada from the Morristown institute, two in Toronto and one in Montreal.

Both independence and protection were obtained from her carefully trained dog, Miss Hurst stated. The animal accompanied her to church, and always picked out an empty pew for her. The speaker caused much amusement when, in regard to her guide, she confessed: "She is the boss, I am only at the other end of the leash."

"Aerocatering" Done By Flying Boats

Passengers making air journeys in the new Empire-type flying-boats of Imperial Airways, pay warm tribute to the efficiency of the catering arrangements. Well-equipped kitchens at airports, and completely-fitted buffets in the flying-boats, enable meals to be served up in the air which are in every way the equal of those supplied in first class restaurants.

Travellers who made flights on the first air-lines operating between London, Eng., and the Continent, comment in terms of keen appreciation on the progress in airway comfort which has been achieved in the past 18 years. Pioneer air passengers after driving out to draughty sheds embarked in small, noisy machines in which there were no catering facilities at all.

Today, modern airports have commodious ticket-offices, waiting-rooms, restaurants, and hotels; while up in the air, seated in spacious luxuriously-equipped saloons which are scientifically heated, ventilated, and silenced, passengers have only to press a bell at their elbows in order to summon a white-coated steward and have placed at their disposal all the resources of a highly-organized catering service.

Jews Shunned as Partners

Germans are forbidden to have Jewish business partners.

A court in Hamburg ruled that although there is no law forbidding Jews to engage in business, "a close relationship between a Jew and Gentile is fundamentally wrong."

A partnership, the court decided, is a "close relationship."

EXPECTANT MOTHERS

WOMEN who suffer periodically, who may have sideache or headache, and those about to become mothers, will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a dependable tonic. Read what Mrs. Alfred Weiler of 279 Palmer St., Guelph, Ont., said: "Before the arrival of my little girl I was in miserable health. I felt weak and tired all the time, suffered from pains in my back and had dizzy spells. I felt so discouraged, being unable to do my housework, I wondered if I would ever be well again. That's when I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it strengthened me in every way." Buy now of your nearby druggist.
