The "Truth is Mighty and Will Prevail."

We were sitting in our sanctum, last Friday afternoon, musing on the mutability of human existence, and—we frankly confess it—enjoying a quiet smoke, when our message boy entered with the "noon mail." Placing the bundle of papers and letters on our table, the lad exclaimed, with an air of great dejection:

"We're done for, boss!"

The remark was so sudden an unexpected, that our "black pipe" dropped to the floor unheeded, while "each individual hair" almost felt like rising on end. Controlling ourself by a mighty effort, we said—

"What in thunder's the matter?"

"The Dundalk Herald man has gone back on you!"

"Ye gods and little fishes!" (Excuse us, dear reader, but it was so sudden, you know.)

"It's a fact, boss; just read that slip of paper"—pointing to a neatly folded postmaster's notice, which lay wedged in between a daily Mail and a copy of the daily Hamilton Times.

We picked it up, and as the contents were unfolded to view, the truth flashed upon us—in short,

The thunderbolt had fallen!

The "plucky little man,"—the "scholar and gentleman,"—unable to cope with THE ADVANCE, and finding himself in a tight box from which there was no other escape, had resorted to this plan in order to get out of the meshes into which his falsehood had lead him!" The postmaster's notice was in the usual stereotyped form, and read as follows:—

Post Office, Dundalk,
Sept. 16th, 1884.

Sir,—The number of your publication addressed to Editor Herald, Dundalk, has not been taken out of my office by the party addressed, for the following reasons. REFUSED!!!

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
MIDDLETON,
Asst. Postmaster.

Not many week's ago Mr. Hall—in concluding a grossly personal article, in which he taunted us to declare for "peace" or "war"—made use of the following quotation:

"Lay on, Macduff," &c.,

leaving the balance—

And damn'd be him that first cries, "Hold, enough!"

to be inferred. And this is the result! As soon as "Macduff" began to "lay on," Macbeth (the Herald man) cries "enough!" and ignominiously withdraws from the discussion. "Plucky little man!" What does all your vain boasting amount to now? "Lay on Macduff," indeed! At the first sharp stroke, you resort to the argument of children, and scamper off from the field of battle "like one possessed." The first smell of power from another gun than your own is enough for you. So long as you are firing off your uncertain little pop-gun you are very courageous; so long as nobody opposes you, you are a very Goliath! "Plucky little man!" Oh, yes;—but, pshaw! what's the use of shooting at a cowardly opponent? Suffice it to say in conclusion: "The truth is mighty and has prevailed."

Who can Answer This?

To the Editor of The Advance.

DEAR SIR,—I would like to put the following question to readers of THE ADVANCE:—What was the name of the first bride in Artemesia?

Yours truly,
SUBSCRIBER.

Iowa, U. S., Sept. 19.
