Agricultural Shows in Britain.

A private letter from Mr. W. A. MacKinnon, Chief of the Fruit Division, Dominion Dept. of Agriculture, who is now in Great Britain, contains some interesting notes on the devolepement of agricultural shows in that country. Some of his criticisms given herewith are well worthy of notice by those interested in Agricultural Education in Canada.

One striking feature of the recent Royal show at Carlisle, Eng, was that all but two or three of the buildings were simply frames covered with canvas, in other words the show took place under a series of long tents. The advantage of this system is that the framework can be taken down, and the tents shipped from point to point, and used many times in the season. This arrangement also makes it possible to use grounds for an exhibition which are required during the rest of the year for other purposes.

The tents are arranged in a compact and systematic order in such a way that visitors can go in one direction and return in another seeing always new exhibits. The classes are arranged in blocks, not in long lines.

There are four classes of shows in Great Britain:—1. The large shows devoted to breeding types and implements; these are open to the Kingdom. 2. Local shows, for the benefit of tenant farmers and breeders in the neighborhood; there may be certain open competitions in these shows, and the addition of sections for horticulture, apiculture, sports, etc, is optional. 3. Fat Stock shows for the encouragement of high class butcher's meat. The chief ones are held at Birmingham, Leeds and Norwich; the finals so to speak, where the winners in the three former compete, take place at the great Smithfield show. 4. Specific shows; these are held for the benefit of one or more particular branches of agriculture, such as dairying, fruits, poultry, horses, etc. A good type of this class of show is that held at the Agricultural Hall, London, during three consecutive weeks for special breeds of horses as follows:—1st week, Shires; 2nd week, Hackneys; 3rd week, thoroughbred hunters and polo ponies. One of the best of these shows is that held at Ashbourne, Derbyshire, a great Shire horse centre, owing to local conditions, fine grass, climate, etc.; here they have three main divisions of the show: one for general classes; 2nd, foals bred by tenant farmers; 3rd, foals from stallions belonging to local breeders.

Another notable show is that called the Cart Horse Parade held in London, where prizes are given for the best single, pair unicorn and four horse teams; these must be working horses attached to vehicle without load. No new harness or vehicles are allowed; the turnout must have been used up to date of show, Whit Monday. The prizes are given for the best working condition, the object being to encourage carters to take good care of their animals and a pride in their appearance. This is one of the most commendable of the specific shows.

There are many local poultry shows and village shows of varying importance; at some of these prizes are given to the school children for the best collection of named grasses, weeds, etc. This is also found to be a very satisfactory aid to education.

Private land owners also sometimes hold shows for the encouragement of agriculture among their tenant farmers, under local farmers. Chief among these is the show held by the Duke of Portland known as the Walbeck Tenant Farmers' show.

The secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society states that the year 1790 saw the beginning of agricultural shows in Great Britain.

Particular enquiries about the standards adopted in judging stock at these shows failed to elicit a definite statement on this point. In fact the officials themselves were not too clear as to what is or ought to be the standard.

They appear to have fallen into the easy error of looking on the prize itself as being the end and goal of the exhibitor's ambition. On pressing the matter somewhat closely, certain officials admitted that too little attention was paid to either the educational value of the show or the cash results to the farmers at large.

In the catalogues of prize lists judges are warned not to be influenced by the market value of stock in making awards, and a high official stated that in his opinion too little attention was paid to the economic value of the exhibits, and that farmers are sometimes misled by awards so as to produce an article which is not remunerative.

With regard to the Smithfield show they have begun to make improvements in the direction of market demands; that is to be expected as the object of the show is to encourage the production of butcher's meat. Formerly prizes were given for animals four years old, but lately this has been cut down to three and under, and no prizes are given for cows. The result is that they get fewer of the "mallow" animals which used to be seen there; yet they still give awards in some cases to animals which would not be sought for by a butcher.

The Smithfield judges are breeders, and the lessons learned by farmers from the judgment have to be picked up without the benefit of any explanation of reasons froms the judges. Farmers are supposed to learn from the show that certain types of animals can be made to put flesh on at a certain rate, weight for age.

There is also a slaughter class, which the judges view and rank alive and afterwards when killed. The secretary says that the average result is that the same animal is ranked first both alive and dead but there are exceptions and some dissatisfaction in consequence. In this class one judge is usually a farmer and one a butcher; these have similar ideas for the block test. Heifers must be killed if they take a prize, this being a meat show, and not a general or agricultural show.

Educational meetings are all but unknown. At Carlisle there were demonstrations of dairying processes, but no word of explanation seemed to be given. Guelph leads them all for active, energetic, intelligent education, for in Britain the farmer seems to be highly honored in being allowed to exhibit, and they let him pick up some crumbs of information if he can.

Live Stock Commissioner.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Of Motorman Walden, in the employ of TORONTO STREET RAILWAY COMPANY.

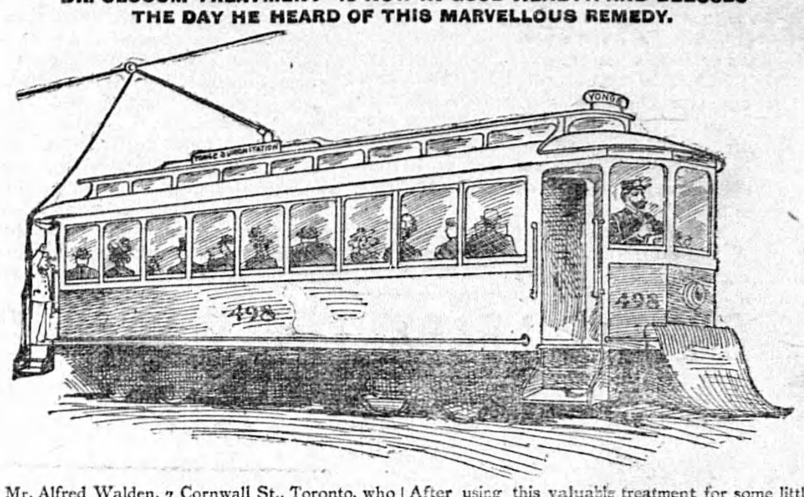
DID NOT WANT TO GIVE UP WORK BUT WAS FORCED TO DO SO—TELLS HOW FOR EIGHTEEN MONTHS HE HOVERED BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH, TREATED BY THE BEST PHYSICIANS IN TORONTO AND HIS CASE PRONOUNCED SO SERIOUS THAT HE WAS ADVISED, AS A LAST RESORT, TO USE THE DR. SLOCUM TREATMENT—IS NOW IN GOOD HEALTH AND BLESSES THE DAY HE HEARD OF THIS MARVELLOUS REMEDY.



Mr. Alfred Walden, 7 Cornwall St., Toronto, who has been in the employ of the Street Railway Company for a number of years as motorman, informs us that he had an attack of la grippe, followed by typhoid fever, and after many weeks of suffering it resulted in a complication of throat and lung troubles. During this illness he was under the care of one of the best physicians in this city, who pronounced it a very serious case and advised him to stop work, which he was finally compelled to do.

Mr. Walden heard about the Dr. Slocum Remedies and commenced their use and after using them but for a few weeks he noticed a great improvement. After using this valuable treatment for some little time, the cough stopped, pain in left lung ceased, appetite improved and night sweats were checked; and in about three months he was able to go back to work, feeling as well as ever.

When interviewed, Mr. Walden seemed to be in the best of spirits and expressed himself in the most grateful terms, as he considers himself completely cured and in the enjoyment of good health.

What the Dr. Slocum Remedies have done for Mr. Walden has also been accomplished in thousands of other hopeless cases, which testimonials we have on file.
