THE ADVANCE.

A. R. Fawcett, — Editor.

FLESHERTON:
THURSDAY, DEC. 11, 1884.

"WHY NOT FLESHERTON ?"

The Flesherton Advance makes a feeble attempt to represent that village, a more convenient point for Thornbury merchants to reach, in bringing freight over the C. P. R. than Markdale. The editor should remember that it is a point on the C. P. R. Thornbury wishes to reach; and furthermore, if there is any truth in the statements contained in various articles which has appeared in the Advance, urging the township to construct a passable road from Flesherton to the railway station, we would naturally conclude that the Advance simply advocates the road via Flesherton to reach Markdale. We can see no great obstacle in the way of Thornbury people reaching this station direct there being but one hill of any account, and it is not absolutely necessary to travel even that hill to reach this village. Every necessary convenience and accomodation will be provided at Markdale in the handling of freight, &c., should the Thornbury people decide on the proposed change. —Markdale Standard.

Our cotem. is apparently much annoyed because we have been guilty of the—in its eyes—heinous offence of suggesting a more practicable route than the one originated by itself. It calls ours a "feeble attempt" to represent Flesherton "a more convenient point for Thornbury merchants to reach in bringing freight over the C. P. R. than Markdale."

Any unanswerable argument advanced by us is usually characterized by the Standard as "feeble." However, let that pass. Our cotem. further says, it is not absolutely necessary to travel even that hill (on 6 & 7 side road) to reach this village." Correct you are, brother; but if you don't "travel even that hill," you must necessarily adopt a worse route; for, to reach Markdale in any other way, you have not one bad hill to travel but many. You can grab whichever horn of the dilemma you choose; its none of our funeral.

Sparling.

The business of the Annual Meeting came next, when the following were elected officers for current term :

Mr. Jas. McMillan, organizer for the County of Grey, addressed a very fair audience in the Town Hall, Flesherton, last night, on the Scott Act and the new campaign which has been inaugurated under such favorable circumstances. It was the most practical, logical, and common sense address we have heard during the year. At the close a large and influential Central Committee was appointed, with Mr. J. W. Armstrong as chairman, a hearty and unanimous vote of thanks—moved by Mr. J. Gordon and seconded by Dr. Christoe—was then tendered the speaker Mr. McMillan, who briefly and fittingly replied, after which the audience dispersed.

FLESHERTON ADVANCE : " We made a mistake last week in saying that only three papers in Grey have taken an out-and-out stand on the Scott Act question : there are four, viz., the two Durham papers, the Meaford Monitor and the Advance." Will the Advance kindly inform us from what source he got the information that the Monitor has taken an "out-and-out" stand on Scott Act question? Had the Advance said the Monitor has taken an "out-and-in" stand, or is astride the fence," he would have been nearer the mark. —Meaford Mirror.

We got our information from the Monitor itself. Where else, under the sun, would we get it ? Did you imagine we got it from the emperor of China or Queen Victoria? If so, you are mistaken.
