A few years ago a number of farmers of Proton, Osprey, Melancthon and Artemesia were wheedled into investing money in a woollen mill, which was erected at Dundalk. In connection with the mill a retail store was also inaugurated. The concern has never paid any dividends and the retail store will be abandoned.

The Chatsworth News says:—"Mr. T. A. Strain of Thessalon, an old Flesherton boy, has been running bunt up against a whole streak of good luck. In June 1900 he and R. St. Mary's church, Maxwell, which has undergone much needed improvement within the past year, both interior and exterior, has still further been improved by the acquisition of a new church organ, which was played for the first time last Sunday. The incumbent, wardens and congregation, also Dundalk friends are to be congratulated on this latest improvement. Mr. Thomas Ross, warden has been most zealous in his efforts on behalf of the organ. Mr. A. Boyd of this place received word on Friday last of the death of his sister, Miss Flora Boyd, at Acheson, Kas., on March 7. Miss Boyd died very suddenly of heart disease at the age of 59 years She lived with her brother, Hugh Boyd. Although a sufferer with heart trouble, she was in unusually good health when she retired at night. She did not rise at the accustomed hour, and her brother, upon going to her room to call her, found her dead. Her death had evidently been a very peaceful one. Miss Boyd was born in Vaughan, Ont., and went to Acheson in 1883 and was very popular among her neighbors. She lived for some years with her sister, Mrs. Alfred Malloy, Acheson, from whose home the funeral took place.

Miss Minnie Munshaw met with a very peculiar and painful accident last week. While sewing she dropped her needle which clung to her dress. Getting down on the floor to search for it, in some way the needle was driven into her knee head first. In an attempt to pull it out it was broken. Dr. Carter was called but could not locate the remnant and Miss Munshaw was taken to the hospital in Toronto, where she was placed under chloroform and the offending piece of steel located by means of the X ray. After about two hours' work the doctors succeeded in cutting it out. The doctors say it could not have been located had not a piece of thread remained attached to it, and had the needle remained embedded in the bone, as it was, no doubt in time it would have caused decay and necessitated amputation. So much for the X ray and modern science. It will be some days before Miss Munshaw is able to return home.

A Normanby farmer named Michael Donahue who is retiring from farm life, has had great success with sheep raising. In giving his experience in sheep raising to some of his brother farmers he said for the last ten years he has kept from sixteen to twenty ewes and in that time never lost a lamb. He feeds his ewes dry oats but no turnips, carrots or roots of any kind. This hint may be worthy of notice by breeders of this valuable stock.

way to answer some remark which General Waldo, whom he met, made in passing. After parting from the doctor, Waldo went on and chatted for a moment or two with Orlebar somewhat to my surprise, considering the man's conduct of the day previous—and then joined a group of passengers further aft.

At the end of five minutes Enriquez, the stowaway, now serving as an assistant steward, came on deck with a tray on which was a glass of dark liquid that looked like port wine. He took it to Orlebar, who drank it at a gulp and replaced the glass on the tray. Enriquez then started to return below, but as he was nearing the companionway he tripped and fell, dropping the tray on the deck with such violence that the empty glass was smashed into half a dozen pieces. Regaining his feet in an instant, he collected the bits of broken glass and tossed them overboard, after which he proceeded on his way and disappeared down the stairs.

During the next few minutes I was occupied with the navigation of the vessel, and paid no attention to what was happening on deck. When
