How to Cure Corns and Bunions

First, soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it; then pare it down as closely as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily, rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application A corn plaster should be worn a few days to protect it from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequalled. For sale by W. E. Richardson.

Jas. Brown, Hornings Mills, had his barn, grain, and a lot of stock and implements, destroyed by fire on Friday evening. The hired man was in the stable attending to the horses when he noticed the fire, which was quickly beyond control. Loss, $4000; insurance, $800; cause unknown.—Creemore Star.

Some Seasonable Advice.

It may be a piece of superfluous advice to urge people at this season of the year to lay in a supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost sure to be needed before winter is over and much more prompt and satisfactory results are obtained when taken as soon as a cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system, which can only be done by keeping the remedy at hand. This remedy is so widely known and so altogether good that no one should hesitate about buying it in preference to any other. For sale by W. E. Richardson.

Mr. J. D Howell has had the sword fish which he captured near Gananoque the past summer mounted and it now decorates his parlor. It measures thirty-three inches in length and is a splendid specimen. It fought so viciously when brought out of the water that the greatest care had to be taken, and the only way Mr. Howell could manage it was to slip a wire around its long bills and tie the mouth shut. The tremendous damage these fish can do can be understood by looking at this one, though of course, it is a small speciman.—Dundalk Herald.

Oil has been struck in the back yard of J. A. Mather's dwelling at New Lowell. His son called his father's attention to a strong smell of gas from a post hole he was boring, and on deepening the hole eight feet the oil came oozing through the bottom at the rate of two gallons per hour. Strange to relate the oil is so pure that it can be used in a lamp as it is taken from the spring, and gives a pure, bright light.

The proprietor of this great family journal is just now wondering what peculiar fascination he posses es over the denizens of the forest. Last fall about this time, he walked over into the grove behind the old cheese factory, carrying his trusty death-dealer, and in the most open part, where the children spend their happiest hours, a partridge strutted around him and actually invited destruction. Last Friday he was in the same locality, a little farther back, when a red fox walked out of the bushes and sat down and gazed at him. Once again he glanced along the barrel and, although it was like taking a mouse from a blind cat, he pressed the trigger and the fox quivered and lay still. Whether it was his good looks or whether they think a gun in his hands is a joke it is difficult to say, but, at any rate, he has better luck in the open than most people have in the haunts.—Dundalk Herald.

On Monday afternoon about two o'clock Mr. Robert Renton, of Dromore, dropped dead very suddenly when engaged in doing some stone work on the farm of the late James Andrews. He came out that day to assist his brother and was at work only an hour or so when death occurred. Deceased was fifty years of age, unmarried, and lived on the homestead.—Durham Chronicle.
