Tickets sold at Melancthon and all points north will be good to return on any regular train on the following Monday. How He Beat the Street Cars.

A small account book was picked up in the streets of Toronto recently, showing a systematic record of the number of times its owner got ahead of the street railway company. The blank pages of this book were ruled off in ledger form and each account headed with the name of a street car route in Toronto. For instance there was "Church Street" with a debit on the left hand side and a credit on the right. "Bloor and McCaul" the same and so on over the entire system. Evidently when the owner of this book paid a fare he charged it up against the car line he patronized, and whenever he saved a fare he credited himself with five cents. At first glance it might appear that the owner of this book was in the habit of dodging the conductor's box, but this was not the case. The fact is the fares were saved by riding a bicycle instead of paying the street car compony for comings and goings and the fares were contributed on rainy days when the wheeling was unpleasant. On August 6th 1905 he made an entry against "Bloor and McCaul" as follows: "One fare—last of quarter's worth of tickets bought June 2nd." The total of fares unpaid amounted to nearly thirty dollars in seven months.
