IN MEMORY OF A GREAT MAN

The Late Sir Frederick Banting

A year ago Sir Frederick Banting was flying over the sea in the service of his country when he was killed in an airplane accident. His mission was to correlate the results of aviation medical research here in Canada with results obtained by scientific investigation in the Motherland.

Last week Sir Frederick's death was marked by a special service at the University of Toronto. In opening the service, Dr. H. J. Cody, president of the University, said "Sir Frederick Banting's life is a challenge to all Canadian youth to use imagination, energy and knowledge in the service of mankind." He was "one of the world's greatest benefactors — the discoverer of insulin, a director of research in many fields of medicine, a man of singular modesty, unselfishness and friendliness."

The University of Toronto has planned to hold a lecture on medical research each year on the anniversary of Sir Frederick's death. In delivering the first lecture last week, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie of the University of Saskatchewan said that Sir Frederick's success had been responsible for development of the whole field of medical research in Canada and had given it impetus all over the world. "It may well be," he said, "that future generations will reckon his contribution in this regard as even greater than his contribution of insulin."

Japanese Caused Real Emergency

We have ample evidence that the country is completely conscious of its danger and that sacrifices will cheerfully be made, Collier's relates. A friend of ours has a colored cook who, if she has any faults at all, may be somewhat too aggressively religious. The other night she addressed her employer as follows: "Ma'am, I been cookin' fo' you twenty years. I always done my best. I am a good church member. I don't curse. I don't use tobacco. I don't drink gin. I don't drink whisky. I don't bear no false witness against nobody. But, ma'am, the Bible say wine is comfortin' and these Jap folks is usin' me up so, I was wonderin' if you ain't got a drap of port wine."

Sowing Grass Seed From An Airplane

Sowing grass seed by airplane is the latest wrinkle out on the ranch.

Jack Frost and Roy Arledge, busy with a range improvement program, hired a pilot to scatter grass seed and Italian rye over their cattle lands.

The plane carries 300 pounds of seed on each trip and sows it in about 10 minutes. With ideal conditions, the pilot scatters around 12,000 pounds a day. He flies at 200 feet.

DIALING WITH DAVE:

"We did it before, we can do it again!" With this keynote of confidence and determination, O'Keefe's Show went on the air Sunday evening at their usual hour of 8.30. Merilyn Stewart, charming 16-year-old vocalist, delighted her audience with the ever-popular "Smoke Gets in your Eyes." Her second number, "Angels of Mercy" was written by Irving Berlin in honour of The Red Cross Society. Inasmuch as this program was dedicated primarily to this good cause, her delightful solo seemed a fitting part of the program. Throughout the entire concert, Freddie Davis' "Teen-Age Orchestra" formed the musical background, and certainly did a wonderful job of it.

The highlight of the Show was a short play with Nancy Carroll and Raf Purdy portraying the courage, determination and long patience of a suffering England, with a vision of a bright and glorious new world after its present trials. Nancy Carroll was on a visit to Toronto, doing all she could in aid of this worthy cause. Col. K. W. Langmuir, President of the Toronto Branch of the Red Cross Society, outlined in a few words the work of the Society, and expressed gratitude for the support given.

All the determination and conviction of war-torn England was sung into the popular song "We did it before, and we can do it again." In this fitting manner the All-Youth Orchestra closed a wonderful performance. Yes, we WILL do it again! So be sure to be with them again over CFRB next Sunday evening at 8.30, and enjoy the music and good times with these up-and-coming teenagers.

SCOUTING . . .

That next to active military service itself there was no higher opportunity for serving the country at this time than helping youth become good citizens was the declaration of President Roosevelt during his radio broadcast to the Boy Scouts of America on their recent 32nd anniversary. "As one who has been interested in Scouting over many years," said the President, "it has been most heartening to have so many evidences of the practical value of the Scout training as we organize our armed forces for the task ahead of us. We must remember that next to active military service itself there is no higher opportunity for serving our country than helping youth to carry on in their efforts to make themselves physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight, and prepared to help their country to the full in time of war, as well as in time of peace."

A small group of British Boy Scouts who have distinguished themselves in fire fighting and rescue work during Nazi air raids over England and Scotland are to visit Canada shortly, to tour the Dominion, meet Canadian Scouts and leaders and address public meetings. They will tell of the experiences of English and Scottish Scouts while on duty during air raids, and will, it is expected, bring many valuable suggestions for Canadian Scouts preparing for possible eventualities in Canada.

The British Scouts are coming in response to an invitation extended by the Canadian General Council of The Boy Scouts Association following a recent special war service meeting of the Executive Board and a number of commissioners. The date of arrival of the Old Country boys is not known. In accordance with the present news restrictions regarding vessel sailings, it is expected that the first news will be the announcement of their arrival at an Eastern port. Detail plans of their tour will be announced later.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON X.

DISCOVERING WHY PEOPLE DRINK BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

Genesis 43:34, Psalm 104:14, 15; Proverbs 31:4-7; Ecclesiastes 2: 1-3, 10, 11; Isaiah 56:12; I Cor. 10:6, 7.

GOLDEN TEXT. — Wine is a mocker . . . And whosoever erreth thereby is not wise. Proverbs 20:1.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING.

Time.—The dates in this lesson are of no importance whatever, and the following are only tentative. The event referred to in the Book of Genesis occurred about 1700 B.C. Psalms, Proverbs and Ecclesiastes were written between 1050 and 1000 B.C. The prophecy from Isaiah was utterd about 712 B.C. The words quoted from the First Epistle to the Corinthians were written about A.D. 59.

Place.—The event referred to in Genesis took place in Egypt. Many of the Psalms, Proverbs and Ecclesiastes were written in Jerusalem, as was also much of the book of Isaiah. Corinth was a great Greek city of Paul's day, located in Southern Greece.

34. "And he toko and sent messes unto them from him: but Benjamin's mess was five times so much as any of theirs. And they drank and were merry with him." Joseph now prepares a great banquet for all of his brethren. The unusually large portion assigned to Benjamin was designed as an expression of his strong fraternal affection. There is not the slightest thing in this passage that what these men did met with any Divine disapproval.

God's Goodness

14. "He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and the herb for the service of man; that he may bring forth food out of the earth. 15. And wine that maketh glad the heart of man, and oil to make his face to shine, and bread that strengthens man's heart". God makes the soil respond to man's tillage with abundant produce. The word 'herb' here includes all vegetable products. God provides for man's enjoyment as well as for his sustenance. God appoints to the lowliest creature its portion and takes care that he has it. The herb is for man and he must till the soil, or it will not be produced. The wine mentioned had the quality of fermented liquors; it gladdened the heart. Thus, if taken to excess, it would have led to intoxication.

Day of Reckoning Postponed

4. "It is not for kings, O Lemuel it is not for kings to drink wine; Nor for princes to say, where is strong drink? 5. Lest they drink ,and forget the law, and pervert the justice due to any that is afflicted. 6. Give strong drink to him that is ready to perish, and wine unto the bitter in soul: 7. Let him drink and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more." One well knows the temptations to which kings were subjected and how perverted and weak the life of a king could be made, when he allowed himself to grossly indulge in those things that took away his wisdom for governing. Those who thus drink forget the law, and thereby render false judgment. We are not commanded to give drink unto man; rather are we permitted to give liquor to other people if we are sure that they are perishing. It may be that a man when drinking does forget his poverty and misery, but this period of forgetfulness is very brief. Drinking only postpones a day of reckoning.

The Heart Not Satisfied

1. "I said in my heart, Come now, I will prove thee with mirth; therefore enpoy pleasure: and behold, this also was vanity. 2. I said of laughter. It is mad; and of mirth: What doeth it? 3. I searched in my heart how to cheer my flesh with wine, my heart yet guiding me with wisdom, and how to lay hold on folly, till I might see what it was good for the sons of men that they should do under heaven all the days of their life . . . 10. And whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them; I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced because of all my labor; and this was my portion from all my labor. 11. Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labor that I had labored to do; and, behold, all was vanity and a striving after wind, and there was no profit under the sun." The mirth, or happiness, to which Solomon thus addicted himself was the mirth of festive convivialty. It was not to solitary drinking but to the pleasure of the festive board that he resolved to "eat, and to drink, and to be merry." He determined at the same time to acquaint his heart with wisdom. Some, it is true, understand this, of wisely regulating his indulgences, enjoying without exceeding. But, after all, where was the charm in all this? It was merely novelty. His heart rejoiced in his labors but not after them. They were by and by completed; the novelty of them passed away; and with the novelty the pleasure which they had yielded.

False Sense of Security

12. "Come ye, say they, I will fetch wine, and we will fill ourselves with strong drink; and tomorrow shall be as this day, a day great beyond measure." Indulgence of this kind was habitual. There was an intention to continue it because they loved it, and meant to drink deeper and deeper.

Salvation Determined

6. "Now these things were our examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted. 7. Neither be idolaters, as were some of them; as it is written. The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play." The matter of drinking is not a matter which determines salvation, but it is a matter which determines spirituality in that salvation and the usefulness of the life of the believer.

Or Lay Off

The six-year-old was seated at the breakfast table one morning, when, as usual, eggs were served. The little tot surveyed them for a moment and solemnly said: "I wish to goodness hens would lay something besides eggs."
