Your Hair Contrary?

Is it inclined to run away? Don't punish it with a cruel brush and comb! Feed it, nourish it, save it with Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula. Then your hair will remain at home, on your head, where it belongs. An elegant dressing. Keeps the scalp healthy.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Ayer's Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says

We certainly believe this, or we would not say so. Ayer's Hair Vigor, as now made from our new improved formula, is a great preparation for the hair and scalp. Stops falling hair. Cures dandruff. Promotes the growth of hair.

—Made by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.—

A BEACHCOMBER'S LIFE

HUMANITY'S STRANGE OUTCAST HARD TO UNDERSTAND.

The Scum of the Ports of the World Go to Make Up the Class Who Are Said to Live by Beachcombing—Will Stoop to Any vile Work, and Are Despised by the Sailors Who Employ Them on Dirty Jobs.

The Beachcomber is very near to the very lowest strata of humanity; to see him you would sometimes doubt whether he is indeed human. You find him almost everywhere; but he abounds in the greatest numbers, quite naturally, by the sea. For it is out of the sea that he has gained what scant harvest he has made; and once on a time, maybe, he was a sailor. But that was a good while ago; nowadays he does not use the old ocean over much—it means work, and work is a thing he abhors—except when one part becomes too hot to hold him; and then he stows away in some tramp's hold, is discovered, set to work, lays up at once with some incomprehensible complaint; is landed at a new destination and put in jail; comes out again, and is at his old tactics before his hair has grown long.

Where does the beachcomber originate? is a very natural question. What is a beachcomber? is another as natural. To answer the last question first: a beachcomber is a loafer of foreign sea-ports; a man who will stoop to any vileness to secure a scant livelihood; who will dip his hands in the filthiest mud without repugnance; who will swear blood-brotherhood one minute, and help to knife a man and rob him the next. He is possibly a Briton—bad for Britain that; quite possibly he may be a Yankee, equally likely he may be of any nation; for there is no nationality amongst the fraternity. They are all of them outcasts from their homes; members of the Lost Legion. Somewhere away beyond the skyline, never thought of now, are people who once called them friends; but the years have rolled between, and now—they are only memories; tender memories perhaps. They never write home—they are as dead men.

One such man I came in contact with was a revelation of how low humanity can sink, once the down-grade was reached. I was sitting in a fine plaza in a South America city—famous for many reasons—and listening to a band. On a bench near-by was a huddled mass of rags, whose snores seemed to defy the efforts of the musicians. But he was not so deeply asleep as all that. I was talking to a friend; and in the course of conversation, finding English too insufficient, I ventured upon a trifle of Latin. There was a movement from the figure on the bench—a woeful face was lifted.

"I say, you made a false quantity there, old chap. It should have been —so and so." And I could only stare. But out of curiosity I sought that man out; and by dint of judicious pumping—for I was not then of an age to respect a man's shamed desire for oblivion—I got at something of his story. Eton and Oxford had played a part in his early life. Then—a desire for adventure had sent him abroad. He had got mixed up in trouble; drink, of course; he had lost his billet through some trifling with funds. He could get no further work of repute; though he had done many things prior to sinking to the dregs.

They hang about any port where shipping may be found; they insinuate themselves into the company of decent men, because they are dead to shame; they beg what they can and steal what they may; they have not known a bed in years; they cluster together in unsavory colonies, making their homes, probably in some of these fantastic cemeteries of South America, where gorgeous open tombs afford secure lodging. They need but little from life—the air is usually mild —for they are strictly birds of pleasant climates, and they can always pick up a meal somewhere.

Some of the most plausible fellows, those who have had an education, are employed in a desultory fashion by keepers of low boarding-houses — ay, and dens of greater infamy than that even. They receive no regular wages; but for every bird brought into those evil nests they receive a trifling percentage of the profits made. They wait until a ship's crew comes ashore on liberty; then they hang about the outshirts of the crowd until Jack has made himself merry. After that—it is a simple matter to get mixed up with the sailors; to suggest that they know a spot where better drink can be bought at a cheaper rate than at the place where they are at present. Unsuspiciously, Jack follows, and finds the boast true — for a while. But the cheaper drink is heavier, and poor Jack's eyes close, long before his trifle of liberty money is expended. Then—search his pockets and fling him into the road. This is the motto—the vigilantes will see to him.

I think, however, the beachcomber is found in perfection down in the South Seas—around Samoa and Tahiti. For no one works there who can put work aside; and so the islands offer a veritable happy hunting ground for the breed. How they get there is a mystery. Perhaps they drift there on board some of the many trading schooners; at all events, the tide casts them up, human flotsam, and once there they stop like limpets.

He spends his days in loafing about the waterfront, hoping always that he will see a face that betokens a kindly heart; and if he sees such a countenance he freezes fast to its owner, and will not be shaken off until he has secured what he needs—a drink.

He is everywhere where ships congregate, between the parallels of 30 deg. N. and 30 deg. S. You find him in the West Indies; you find him in Australia; hobnobbing with larrikins, a larrikin himself. And if you question him he can, as a rule, give no reason for his degradation.

Notes of the Women's Institutes

The Kimberley branch of the Women's Institute met on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 30th at the home of Mrs. John Plewes. There was an attendance of fifteen. As usual the members that were assigned for the papers failed to be present. We hope for a change this new year. An interesting paper written by Dr. Peterson of Dundalk on "The Care of the Mouth During Childhood" was read by Mrs. W. S. Bishop. After the close of the meeting a dainty tea was served by the hostess. —K.B.

Miss Campbell, of Brampton, will address the Women's Institute in Clayton's hall at 2.30 p. m., on Thursday, the 13th inst; her subject being "The Influence of Women." All the ladies of town and surrounding country are invited to attend.

SCIATICA

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold, and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism, or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." 50 cents per bottle, trial size, 25c; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

A very pretty house wedding took place on Wednesday, the 29th at the residence of Mrs. D. McMillan, when her youngest daughter, Annie Flora, was united in marriage to Mr. James Wilson of Boothville. The Rev. J. Matheson performed the ceremony. The bride received a large number of beautiful presents Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will reside at Boothville.

A pleasant and happy Christmas holiday gathering took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Parslow, con. 15 on Thursday, Dec. 30th. A large number of friends renewed old acquaintances during the evening. Mr. Wm Campbell entertained the company with numerous selections on his superb gramophone.

On Wednesday, Dec. 29th, the home of Mrs. Alex. McLean, con. 14, was the scene of an interesting event, when her youngest daughter, Tena, was married to Mr. Charles Smith of Toronto. The Rev. J. Matheson officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for their home in Toronto on the evening train.
