Court of Revision.

To the Editor of The Advance.

As some difference of opinion exists regarding the validity of the Court of Revision recently held, it would not be amiss to give the authority for its actions. The statute under which we acted was sub sec. 18 of sec. 66, chap. 180, which reads:—

"Where it appears that there are "palpable errors which need correction, the Court may extend the time "for making complaints ten days further, and may then meet and determine the additional matter complained of, and the Assessor may "for such purpose be the complainant." —(Act of 1878.)

But to correct any doubt regarding it, the Act of 1881 adds to this as sub section 20:—

"In case any person appeals against "his assessment upon any ground, the "Court of Revision or the judge of "the county court, as the case may "be, may re-open the whole question "of the assessment, so that omissions "or errors in the assessment may be "corrected, and the accurate amount "for which the assessment should be "made be placed on the assessment "roll by the Court or Judge before "handing the same over to the clerk "of the municipality."

The question arises, did any one complain of his assessment? It will not be denied that several did so, and the necessary steps were taken to hold the court of revision, and upon examination by the court many very palpable errors were discovered. The Court asked the Assessor to certify to these errors, as is perceived the section gave him power to do, by which act the reading of the section certainly meant no incrimination of himself; but he stood on his dignity and utterly refused. What then was to be done? By section 20 the Court possessed authority to proceed and did so; because it would have been unfair to have made the changes without notification to parties affected. To use the name of the municipality was altogether unnecessary—there was no appellant necessary in the case of errors discovered by the Court.—See section 20, above quoted.

Here was an honest attempt without prejudice or malice, to equalize the assessment of the Township, yet the Court was met by opposition from men whose duty it should have been to assist in those corrections—the Assessor even going so far as to obtain legal advice to substantiate his position—and if he had kept it to himself, nothing would have been thought of the matter; but he spread his information to others, who had not examined the statutes for themselves, took up the song, and the Chairman of the Court was challenged by an ex-councillor as to the legality of the Court. A client generally receives advice according to the statement of his case—in this matter the statement was incomplete and therefore the written judgement corresponded to the statement.

I say nothing against the Assessor—for, I dare say, assessing the Township in the winter season of the year, few men could be found to do it any better. If blamable at all—and I am sure he must be—it is in not merely refusing his aid to correct errors, but in endeavoring to fortify himself by obvious erroneous advices from his Orangeville attorney.

And I have very little to say regarding the ex-Councillor, who so misused the privilege granted to him by the Court, in his evident spleenish action towards the Chairman. As a citizen he has a perfect right to complain of anything wrong pertaining to assessment; but there are proper times and means for such purpcses, and if errors have occurred the blame should have been placed on the proper shoulders. It was unfair, unjust, and showed an unpardonable weakness to have shown such an unwarrantable vindictiveness towards the Chairman in such a place—one who never did him any harm, who does not seek to do him harm, and has always been sorry to have lost his friendship upon merely unauthenticated opinions of his own.

It may be said in conclusion, that the Township assessment contains many errors yet, and it will be the duty of future Courts to rectify them as nearly as may be.

My apology for writing is to correct if possible the erroneous impressions afloat, and vindicate the action of the Court. It would not be amiss to bear in mind that the Court of Revision is not the Township Council. The Clerk's relations are different, the oaths are different, in fact a different institution—connival in a sense, having powers to administer oaths, with appeals to the County Judge—although constituted by the same men; so that it dispels the idea advanced by some, if no other law existed, the Township could not appeal to the Court.

A Matinee Probable.

It is altogether likely that an afternoon performance of the Oratorio of Queen Esther will be given in the Drill Shed, on Dominion Day, for the benefit of those unable to attend the evening performance. Due notice will be given by dodgers on the day named, should it be decided to do this.

"Queen Esther."

The Grand Sacred Oratorio to be Rendered in Drill Shed, Flesherton, on Dominion Day.

The following information, relative to "Representative Characters," "Introductory Remarks," &c., in the grand and sublime sacred oratorio of "Esther, the Beautiful Queen," which is to be rendered in the Drill Shed, Flesherton, on the evening of Dominion Day, July 1st, will be of interest to all of our readers. There will be 100 performers in Ancient Costume, many of which latter have been secured for the occasion at great cost.

Introductory.

The events that will be represented in this Entertainment transpired about 400 years B. C., while Artaxerxes, or the Ahasuerus of Ezra, was on the Persian throne. Having deposed his Queen Vashta for disobedience, he was pleased with a Jewish maiden named Esther, not knowing her to be a Jewess, and made her his Queen. This brought her uncle, Mordecai, to the Persian capital (he being a Jewish officer) to look after the interests of his people, and to be near his niece. Haman, an Amalekite, and natural enemy of the Jews, occupied the chief confidence and favor of the King, and being annoyed and irritated by the apparent disrespect of the Jewish officer, Mordecai, laid a plot for the massacre of the whole Jewish nation, and the spoliation of their goods. The rendering of the programme will illustrate how the plot was laid and defeated.
