Farmers' Institute Holds Meeting

Centre Grey Farmers' Institute met in the town hall here on Thursday of last week. It was better attended than in former years, and also seemed to be an improvement over the past in the matter of questions asked and answered. Those present at the afternoon session seemed to be intensely interested, and also primed with questions, which made the meeting one of practical value. It is in the discussion that the peculiar difficulties met are provided with a solution.

The first speaker, J. F. Metcalf, of Collingwood, was introduced by W. H. Guy, the president, and spoke on "Weeds and Their Eradication." The subject is a familiar one, but Mr. Metcalf seemed to strike a most practical note, and it was a decidedly helpful address that he gave, bristling with suggestions. He said that he believed it was harder to eradicate the weeds than it was to clear the land of the virgin forest. Hearty co-operation on the part of farmers of the neighborhood is necessary for the satisfactory eradication of weeds.

W. F. Kidd, of Simcoe, was the second speaker. His theme was "Am I Raising the Most Profitable horse?" An extremely most profitable horse was the draught, interesting horse talk was given. His which can earn its keep at 2½ years without harm to itself, and a blemish will not detract from its value as with a carriage horse, then again, there is not so much time lost in training the draught. His description of a general purpose horse was graphic. Here it is: "a common little plug of a draught horse." The address was made doubly interesting by the exhibition of bones of horses feet and legs, and also an explanation of the effect of certain ailments of horses' feet and legs on the bone by showing diseased bones. His address contained much practical advice on caring for the horse.

Miss Campbell from Brampton gave an address in the afternoon in Clayton's hall before about seventy-five ladies, her subject being "The Judicious House keeper and Homemaker." The good housekeeper is often a poor homemaker, and vice versa. The endeavor of every mother should be to become good housekeepers and good homemakers. She gave as an example the conduct of two boys, one controlled by a mother whose house was of more importance than her children; the other whose mother considered her children's welfare of more importance than her house. Miss Campbell drew illustrations largely from her own experience, which has been varied, as she has travelled in every county of this province, and previous to her work in the Institute was a school teacher. At the close of her address she delighted her audience by giving new recipes for cooking vegetables, which later on will, no doubt, delight the men's hearts through their stomachs.

The evening meeting was presided over by Reeve Boyd. The meeting was opened by an address from Mr. Kidd on "Dropped stitches," which was very interesting and instructive, but cannot be reported with justice in short space. This was followed by a solo by Miss Zilla Trimble, after which Mr. Metcalf spoke on "Judging Classes." Mr. Metcalf is the teacher of Agriculture in Collingwood collegiate. He advised the young men to take the winter course in Agriculture. Rev. Mr. Wellwood spoke shortly, comparing the work of church and institute as working together for the uplifting of the people. A nicely rendered solo was given by Mrs. W. H. Bunt. Miss Campbell of Brampton spoke on "Home and school and woman's influence in the home." Her address was listened to with deep interest, as, in fact, were all the addresses. There was a large attendance and all those present felt that they had spent a profitable evening. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Fire May Bring Fortune

Verily there is much truth in the old adage "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good." Little did James Kanaley and family of Barrie think that the fire which threatened their home on November 17th would result in bring them a fortune running up into thousands of dollars. But apparently such is the case. Through the reports of the music hall fire sent throughout the country, the whereabouts of the Kanaley family was disclosed to people who had been seeking them for years. Enquiries followed and last week two lawyers from Illinois visited Barrie to satisfy themselves that James Kanaley and his children were the heirs to a big estate in their charge. The proofs found here are said to be entirely satisfactory.

It appears that Jas. Kanaley's father, who lived in Proton township, had a brother in New York. This brother had prospered exceedingly and amassed a large amount of wealth. By his will he left the major portion to his brother in Proton township. The latter died first, and when the New Yorker passed away some twenty years ago, his lawyers could not find any trace of his brother's heirs.

$350,000 is said to be the present value of the estate to be divided among James Kanaley, a sister in Sioux City, Ia., and his three daughters, Mrs. Bruce Thompson and Mrs. Lorne Thompson of Barrie and Mrs. Jenkins of Alliston.

While expressing himself as satisfied with the proofs shown him, Mr. Dean, the lawyer, was unable to say when the matter would be settled up—it might be a few weeks and it might be a year.

How a Woman Can Build Up Her Health

This Open Letter From Mrs. L. Hermann Will Be Interesting to All Women Readers.

The following letter written from her prettily situated home in Ossining, on the banks of the Hudson, gives Mrs. Hermann's experience with ill-health:

"I was never very strong.

"Thousands there are just like me, who have to pay double toll for every little extra effort or exertion. When the weather was fine, and I was able to get about, I enjoyed life and held my strength. But something always happened—a little too much done, or some small sickness would put me back, and I would drop into the most miserable despondent state, unable to sleep or enjoy my meals. I decided to take the most nourishing and strengthening tonic made, and was strongly urged to use 'Ferrozone.' After the first box I saw Ferrozone was doing me good, so I followed closely the 'Ferrozone Rules for Health,' and gained steadily. At first I didn't eat as well as I once did—I couldn't expect to. But there was a gradual improvement in my appetite, and this buoyed up my hopes, and convinced me Ferrozone was what I needed. It is less than a year since I commenced Ferrozone and already I am like a new woman. I eat more, sleep better, weigh more, am stronger, healthier, better looking than ever before."

FERROZONE
A Woman's Tonic

A Case of Prosperity

This American continent is full of possibilities for making big money at the present time. It is said that it requires money to make money, but that is only true to a certain degree. It does require, however, a mind that is willing to risk something, and a level head that cannot be turned by the approach of prosperity

These remarks are called forth by an incident related to The Advance the other day by Mr. Thomas Mercer of Markdale. Five years ago last July that gentleman brought a young man, named William Hurd, out from Scotland to care for some horses he was importing. The young man had not a dollar to his name. After remaining at Markdale some time he went west on a harvest excursion, then went on to British Columbia, and finally to Seattle, Washington.

When out there with his horses last fall Mr. Mercer was called on by Hurd, who gave the following facts as to his phenomenal success: Hurd had saved $25 from his earnings and put it into five lots, paying five dollars down on each, and trusting to health to make future monthly payments. He had only made three payments when he was offered and accepted $15,000 for his land. With this money he purchased a quantity of boggy land, and the wiseacres predicted a total loss of his money, but last summer the young man refused an offer of $90,000 for the property, which was required by a large railway company.

With the small capital of $25 the young man has accumulated probably $125,000, and that in the short space of four years. It reads like a romance, but is a hard fact. This, of course, is an exceptional case. The failures, we do not hear about. Yet this goes to prove that it is not necessary to have large capital to make money in this country--only brains and the determination to succeed. Hurd says $25 was not much to loose, anyway, and everything was to gain, therefore he threw in his little saving and the winnings were enormous.

A bandy legged shopman (you could have wheeled a barrow between his legs) at a recently opened American "emporium" in London was ushering a pretty American girl to a certain department. "Walk this way, please, madame," he said. The girl watched his method of locomotion for a moment, and shook her pretty head in despair. "I couldn't do it not if you paid me for it," she said.—M.A.P.

"The Best Editorial Page In Canada"

The Toronto Daily Star publishes every day six columns of editorials and editorial features—and there's not a dry line in the six columns.

John Lewis, author of "The Life of John Brown" (Morang's Series) has few equals in Canada. He is by many considered to be second only to Goldwin Smith as a master of English.

Joseph T. Clark, known as "Mack" when he was editor of "Saturday Night", is known throughout Canada as a keen, clever and witty writer. His cables and letters on the British elections from England, where he was sent by the Star, have attracted wide attention.

Two things to be specially noted about all the Star's editorials are first that they are always fair—no bitterness or biased partizanship—and second that they are never dull, but deal in a bright way with the subjects in which you and your neighbors are interested.

In a lighter vein are the "Chronicles of the Khan"—delightfully humorous-pathetic studies from real life, particularly rural life—"Uncle Walt's Corner" of clever poetry in prose—and "A Little of Everything"—that you can always count on for a pleasant ten minutes.
