Congratulations.

We are glad to learn that Dr. Geo. S. Armstrong, eldest son of Squire Armstrong, has successfully passed his examinations for the degree of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, England, where he has been tarrying for the last few weeks. The Dr. was a very successful practitioner at Markdale and elsewhere before he left on his hunt for additional knowledge in the far-famed old world medical schools, and when he returns with his newly-earned honors, we do not doubt but that he will start on a still more prosperous career. During his visit to London, Dr. Armstrong has had ample opportunity to inspect the great Indian and Colonial Exhibition, in which the Dominion takes so high a position.

Home from Ireland.

We had a pleasant call from Mr. Edward Hanley, of Osprey township, on Tuesday last. Mr. Hanley has been in his native land, Ireland, during the last few months, visiting his many old friends and acquaintances. We never saw him looking so well, the trip evidently having agreed with him immensely. He feels much improved. He was not the least bit "sea sick" crossing the ocean. He visited Enniskillen and the districts surrounding, which, he says, are entirely free from the disturbances so common in Belfast and district. Frost did some slight damage to potatoes the first week in July. Mr. Hanley noticed it himself. All things considered, Mr. Hanley thinks we are living in a fine country and ought to be satisfied. He arrived home last week.

Magistrates' Court.

Two cases came before Squires Armstrong and Richardson on Saturday—both for assault and battery. In the first, Mrs. John Watson vs. Mrs. Hall, the defendent was fined $2 and costs. In the second, John Watson vs. George DeShong Himelspach, the defendant was fined $5 and costs. A full report of these cases will appear in our next issue.

Card of Thanks.

We wish, through The Advance, to thank the Northern Assurance Company for their very prompt and satisfactory settlement of our claim, on our mill, which was burned on the 21st day of July, 1886, the cheque for payment being forwarded to their agent, Mr. Geo. Rutherford, at Shelburne, on the 4th August, 14 days after the fire. And we would here recommend the Northern Assurance Company, and also their agent, Mr. George Rutherford, to all parties wishing to insure.

Respectfully yours,

R. & A. Nelson.

LACROSSE.

Shelburne vs. Flesherton.

The Junior Lacrosse clubs of Shelburne and Flesherton played a spirited game on the grounds of the latter Monday afternoon last. The first heat was won by Shelburne. Umpire Peter Munshaw declared the second heat in favor of Flesherton, on a goal shot by Wes. Armstrong. Shelburne field captain disputed the umpire's decision, and threatened to bring his team off the field. After some time spent in discussing the point, the second heat was called "no game." The two following heats were won by Shelburne. The game lasted scarcely one hour, and was very fairly contested throughout.

Maxwell.

From our Correspondent,

Harvesting progressing.

Monday's rain did much good.

Mr. R. Y. Burke raised a new frame stable last week, and after the raising the young people enjoyed themselves by digging out the cracks of the floor to the music of the violin.

A number of city lads amused themselves one day last week by a stroll in the woods, when they came across some cattle enjoying themselves in the shade. The young men took a notion that a drink of milk would be very nice, and after coaxing some time they succeeded in catching an old cow and got their drink of milk in real calf fashion.

Mrs. Saigeon, who attempted to commit suicide a couple of weeks ago, is again on the war-path and is quite indignant on account of her actions having been made public

Mr. Richard Maxwell has been improving his place by building a new fence in front of his dwelling.

Our Teacher, Mr. C. A. Chant, has returned from his holiday trip, and we are pleased to see him looking so well.

Mr. Thos. Hamlin is visiting friends here, and some of them are very particular friends.

David Madill pays frequent visits to the village with his horses, enjoying himself by hanging around the hotel all day, while his horses are tied to a post. Would it not be well to give his horses something as well as himself?

☞New Dress Goods, direct importations for Fall Trade, just opened at M. Richardson & Co's.

Feversham.

From our own Correspondent,

The beaming countenance of our pedagogue, Mr. Geo. Mitchell, is seen in town again, he having returned after enjoying his holidays near London.

Mr. A. McGirr has sold out his mercantile interests in this village to Mr. J. McAlear, of Eugenia.

Mr. A. J. C. succeeded in capturing a bear Monday night, with long featers stuck in his pelt—I think a Dutchman would call it a forkintine.

Joseph Henderson had a very narrow escape from what might have been a serious accident. His horse ran away somewhere along the townline between Osprey and Collingwood, and completely demolished the buggy.

There was a terrible scene in the village on Saturday evening, when the Salvation Army marched and had knee drill on the street. About forty or fifty boys congregated, with wagons, buggies, and on horse-back, with tin pans. They went up and down, shouting and singing at a terrible rate.

Inistioge.

From our own Correspondent.

Bush fires are raging in this vicinity, and considerable damage has been done to crops and other property by them.

The recent dry weather has caused the crops here to be a partial failure; the grain in many places is withering for want of rain.

Mr. J. Stinson, Teacher in S. S. No. 4, has resigned his position. Mr. Stinson is going into the drug business, we believe.

Mr. A. McGillivray, of Meaford, has been visiting friends in this vicinity.

Mr. G. Kirby, merchant of this place, is doing a rushing business.

Mrs. J. Robinson, who was ill for some time, is again convalescent.

The social held here last Friday, under the auspices of the "Ladies' Aid," was largely attended. Singing, croquet, &c., comprised the evening's programme All seemed to enjoy themselves with the exception of a few young ladies, who wore a rather disappointed look.

Miss Lizzie Hutchinson, who has been spending her vacation visiting friends in Huntsville and Gravenhurst, has returned home.

Social Life at the Station.

To the Editor of the Standard.

Some time ago certain of the good people at the Station were clamoring loudly for educational bread for their children, but, and on many grounds, it is to be regretted that the proverbial stone has been received. Education has always been considered a mighty lever in elevating the morals and tastes of the people, and many of the children living in the said locality, will doubtless grow up to be men and women without even receiving the rudiments of what is so essential for their future wellbeing.

The social relationship presently existing there, is a standing proof that the district in question is almost destitute of moral and religious influences. I do not, of course, mean to assert, that the place to which I allude is a modern Sodom, or that the statutary five righteous persons could not be found therein; but this I maintain, that for slander, gossiping, and malice, the place in question has few equals. Quite recently a new phase of the virtues, which I have just enumerated, was developed. Not seemingly satisfied with indulging in the usual orthodox house to house gossip, these moral assassins honored certain of what I am safe in designating as the cream of that benighted region, with "letters"—anonymous of course. In these letters, a single gentleman is accused with undue familiarity with a married woman, and another informed a husband of his wife's faithlessness—all of which had no foundation whatever.

I was in hopes that the religious services, recently begun, would have exercised a benign influence and turned this bear garden into an Eldorado. It is to be regretted, however, that no visible improvement has as yet been noted. I am afraid the conductors of these religious services do not fire low enough, their shots passing over the heads instead of entering the hearts of their hearers.

The question naturally arises: What is the cause of this state of feeling? It simply arises from the morbid desire to pry into the private affairs of our neighbors, and should any information be thus obtained, it is whispered from mouth to mouth, and house to house; so that by the time it becomes public the original story has been altogether lost in a vortex of lies—engendering bad feeling, hatred, and strife, between the parties more immediately concerned. This morbid desire for information regarding one's private affairs, seems to develop itself at a very early age. Not long ago the writer met a budding youth, of twelve or thirteen summers, who, if he continues to display the same thirst for knowledge through life, will, doubtless, "leave his mark on the sands of time.

Above notice should have been in prize List, but was neglected.

169-4t. Trimble & Pickell.

Owen Sound.

From our own Correspondent.

The pleasure steam yacht, "Mocking Bird," has just returned from a tour to lake Superior, with a party of our townspeople, they having enjoyed a pleasant trip.

The new pleasure steam yacht, "Mischief," built by Mr. Harcourt, has been launched, and has made several very satisfactory trial trips.

Messrs. Douglas Bros. have also built a pleasure steam yacht, with fast sailing powers. She made her appearance this week and proves satisfactory as regards speed.

The S.S. "Campana," brought a large excursion from Midland, Orillia, and Meaford, on Thursday, to witness and take part in our Hook & Ladder tournament.

This week will see our streets lighted by electricity. Most of our business men have introduced the light into their stores—it gives the town a city appearance.

The Salvation Army laid the corner stone of their new barracks on Thursday. They are building a very large edifice.

Messrs. Butchart Bros. are just completing a fine block of stores on Poulett street, which will be a fine improvement to our town.

A large addition has been put to our Central School, accommodation not being sufficient. Also a fine bell tower has been erected, which makes it now a commodious and fine building.

A large shipment of honey has been made from here to the Colonial Exhibition in London, England.

Root crops suffering severely in our district with drouth. Rain is very badly wanted.

Bush fires are reported in our vicinity, but not of a serious nature yet.

DR. LANDERKIN.

(Contributed for The Advance.)

The extraordinary utterances of this gentleman, in The Advance of last week, merit some attention—but then, such are the stock in trade of this class of politicians, and when so boldly enunciated, only tend to minify the respect and good opinion in which the Dr. is wont to be held.

If prejudice be excited against him on the Riel question, it needs but little demonstration to prove it to be well merited.

The side issues, for which the Dr. is singularly clever and profligate, show conclusively one of two things—either that he is ignorant of the subject on which he dilates—which is not admitted—or else a purpose, underlying, to mislead and blind the constituency, exists.

Upon what other grounds can be interpretated his idea, that you should advance the proposition, that Riel was executed to appease the wrath of a few protestants? But it seems to be of fundamental importance to him—for even if upon such doubtful hypothesis he could show himself to be the champion of civil rights only an ephemeral victory would appear; but, unfortunately for him, the intelligence of South Grey refuses such far-fetched clap-trap arguments. It stands good, then, that no good protestant thirsts for the blood of a Roman Catholic.

The Dr. says Riel was demented!! If he were not a medical man, and had never studied the question, some allowance might be made. It must not be forgotten, too, that the worthy Dr. never saw the patient, and a professional opinion should scarcely be asked or required of him, or given by him, but if in the absence of such personal examination, he aimed at the truth, it is evident that he is a bad shot.

The evidence opposing this view is so voluminous and overwhelming, that dementia might fairly apply to any person of temerity sufficient to make the assertion. What said the evidence to the jury? What the jury? The judges? The experts both before and after the execution? What his relations? What say the authorities of Beauport asylum, during his environment there? If anything be wanting, the common sense of the country is a unit against this insanity cry.

But the political situation makes it expedient for the Dr. to hold that view. If Riel had not been executed, the expediency would cease on that line, and with such politicians as the Dr., the Government would have been a lot of the biggest scoundrels and criminals for not executing him. Is Dr. Landerkin honest when he says his leader, Mr. Blake, sought to remove the question out of the "arena of party politics?" The only thing Mr. Blake did—and that he could not help—was to suffer his party to vote as they listed in the House. This the Dr. calls freedom of action and eulogizes the act as if heaven-born. It is true those of his party, who possessed right conceptions of the majesty of the law, and who were loyal to British institutions, refused to be dragooned either by Mr. Blake or Dr. Landerkin to vote against the Government. Yet in the face of Mr. Blake's speech on this question and arraignment of the Government, Dr. Landerkin has the effrontery to say he, Mr. Blake, sought to remove the question out of the "arena of party politics."

The Government certainly did not desire to have it made so, but, being as wily as Mr. Blake, they forced his hand on a square issue—and in discussion it was revealed, that the compact with Edgar, Laurier & Co.—the "blood and revenge" party—had to be met, and it came to pass that Blake the statesman, the patriot, and his henchmen, Landerkin, Allan and others, were found willing tools.

It must be noticed that, without Mr. Blake's desire or assistance, the question was made a judicial one, and every procedure, from its incipiency at the court of his own formation in the North-West (but which he now condemns) to the highest court of the realm, all ruled in favor of the Government and against himself; and at the same time proved conclusively the legitimate arena for its disposal.

But as upon the blood of Scott power was obtained before, so now Riel's blood is the forlorn hope of the party.

Dr. Landerkin draws a herring across the track—by drawing in the previous rebellion as a set-off—as if it were pertinent to the issue. But, in so doing, the Dr. successfully throws off the disguise. If the argument be sound, that Riel was insane, by what mode of argumentation would it have been right to have punished him in the former case, if it were wrong to do so in the latter? And hence all the Dr's clap-trap on his own line of argument fails.

But take the fact he adduces in Sir John's letter to the Archbishop, offering $1,000 to quietly get rid of Riel. Was that carried out? The Dr. will not say so! Citizens of the country deeming it expedient to get rid of the rascal, paid not $1,000 but much more. Sir Albert Smith, a prominent Reformer if I mistake not, was one of the chief actors in recommending and paying this money—without the cognizance of Sir John McDonald. Of course the Government, as in duty bound, recouped this money. Where, then, is the wrong in Sir John's action.

The Dr. says Dumont was the chief actor in the late rebellion, and that the Government recently amnestied him.—This matter needs corroboration, but supposing it to be true. The reference of the Dr. shows the falsity of his position, and his determination to oppose the Government whether right or wrong. The writer can not concur with any Government who would condone either of those arch rebels. Put more anon.
