FLESHERTON:

THURSDAY, SEPT. 2, 1886.

GRAND TRUNK EXTENSION.

There is much talk at present of the extension of the Grand Trunk railway from from Tara to Owen Sound. But there is more than talk. A survey of the proposed line has actually been made. The whole distance is 15¼ miles, and the cost of right of way, grading, bridging, and fencing,—leaving the track ready for the ties to be put on—is estimated at $87,000. Speaking of the project, the Owen Sound Times of last week says:—

"It is unnecessary to say anything now as to the importance of this line, not only to Owen Sound but to the whole country around. All are agreed that no railway scheme of greater importance has ever been presented to them—the only question is as to the means for securing its construction, and the combined wisdom of the Council is to be brought to bear on this point on Monday evening next."

Now is the time for Durham, Priceville, Flesherton, Eugenia, Kimberley, Heathcote, and Thornbury, to speak "right out in meeting." Ventilate the the matter thoroughly through the medium of the press, get the ear of the railway officials, and go to work with a will. A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull together, my lads! Don't fall asleep and awake to find the lakeside burg to the North has got there ahead of you.

This Eastern extension line is of far more importance than any little spur branch would be to Owen Sound—although if the people there can manage to secure the connection they so ardently desire, alright; we have no objection. We simply urge that the proposed line from Durham to Thornbury is of infinitely greater importance to the people in Northern Ontario—as they would not only secure connection with the greatest railway system on this continent, the C. P. R., but would also secure connection with the N. & N. W. system as well. Besides, a large tract of grand new country would be opened up, the magnificent and, at present, undeveloped water power of the Beaver River, would be developed to a marvellous degree, and the grandest and most sublime natural scenery in Ontario would be presented to the delight and astonished gaze of the tourist and traveller. Few persons even in the County of Grey have any adequate notion of the fine agricultural district through which this proposed railway would pass, the immense water power of the Beaver River—which is wasted each year because undeveloped—and the romantic, picturesque, and sublime scenery all along the route East of Flesherton. At some points the scenery would remind the traveller of tales of fairyland. What finer view in Ontario, aye, or on the Continent, than that presented a short distance North by East of Eugenia? Thousands upon thousands of acres of the choicest farming lands in three townships, viz., Euphrasia, St. Vincent, and Collingwood, can be seen at one glance; and on a fair day, a glimpse is had of Georgian Bay—some twenty miles distant—with occasional steamers passing up or down, to Collingwood or Owen Sound.

Let all interested in this important project "speak now, or forever afterwards hold their peace." For our own part, we do not mean to leave a stone unturned, and will therefore resume the subject from time to time.

NO INSINUATION INTENDED.

We regret that our esteemed young friend, Mr. Joseph Buchanan, of Meaford Road, should think for one moment, that in our report, "The Fatal Poison," in last weeks issue of THE ADVANCE, an insinuation that he had a purpose in leaving the poison in the pantry was intended. Such an insinuation would be simply horrible, and any person who would make it in reference to such an upright and extremely moral young man as Joseph Buchanan might well be accused of dementia. No insinuation whatever was intended. The meaning we desired to convey was that it was worse than careless, it was thoughtless. And so it was, as any person must admit. Deadly poisons, such as "Rough on Rats," should be handled with great care. However, it is confidently expected that this will be a warning which young and old will recognize and put into practice when using poisons for rats, potatoe bugs, vermin, and such like.

Reasons why you should purchase Fluid Lightning in preference to all other remedies are: Rapid result—cures instantly. It is easily applied—no trouble—no lost time. It does not require constant use—one application is effectual. One bottle will remove more pain than any other remedy in existence. Try it for Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Rheumatism. Sold at 25c. a bottle by all Druggists.

MR. THOS. KELLS.

This gentleman has been through this Riding and says he is sure of the next convention as M. P. P. for East Grey. He has visited every old conventioner, and he has got the promise of nearly every man. Kells has found and conquered another world.—Thornbury Standard.

We cannot imagine a gentleman of Mr. Kell's experience and ability pursuing any such unwarrantable and cheeky course as that outlined by the Standard in the paragraph quoted above. The necessity for making such a canvass does not exist in the case of Mr. Kells, who is President of the Conservative Association of East Grey, and a staunch old member of that party. Few men have put in as much active, energetic work for their party as he has; and to spoil it all by adopting what we can call nothing less than a suicidal policy, would show an amount of statesmanlike inability not to be found in that gentleman.

By virtue of his position, and because of his uniformly consistent course as a Liberal Conservative, Mr. Kells is probably the strongest candidate, at present in the field, in this Western part of the riding of East Grey. But we scout the idea of his having made any such personal canvass as the Standard indicates.

Besides, the assertion, or insinuation, is unsupported by tangible evidence; without which latter it possesses no force.

BUSINESS DIFFICULTIES.

We notice that some of our contemporaries show a very reprehensible and undesirable spirit in speaking of business difficulties—especially when the difficulties they speak of occur a good many miles from their office doors. It is a species of vain-boasting not always warranted by circumstances, and is sometimes indulged in for the sole purpose of diverting trade from sister villages. But, how profoundly silent they become when the misfortunes they sneer at in other places is suddenly brought to their very doors. Mum's the word then.

No business man living can claim immunity from failure. Banks may break, the stocks we have invested our money in may depreciate, business may fall off, or a thousand other things may happen to cripple or ruin us financially. How many men once worth their millions are now paupers? It shows ignorance of the uncertainty of all things in this life, when the press becomes so perverted as to laugh and jeer at misfortune—real misfortune we mean.

But there are business difficulties of different kinds, as there are business men of different kinds. There are the business difficulties in which the creditors are the ones deserving of most sympathy; where the business man has deliberately set about to see just how much "boodle" he could get away with before misfortune (!) overtook him: where he has cooly planned and as cooly carried out those plans to cheat his creditors. This is the swindler, and sorry we are to say that this class is largely represented in Canada and the United States.

Then there is the business man, who struggles honorably for years to keep his business and himself on a footing with other straightforward but more fortunate rivals in business. Bad debts and long credit at length accomplish his financial ruin, and he is obliged to put up his shutters. Who can fathom the agony of that honest business man—for he is honest through all—as he stands amid the ruin of blighted hopes and a lifetime of unremitting and slavish toil? This is real misfortune, and is deserving of the deepest sympathy of every man who has a soul larger than a mosquito.

Here, then, we have two kinds of business difficulties placed side by side. Now, what newspaper of ordinary common sense would place the two on the same footing, and with thoughtless indiscrimination lash both alike? It would be one of the very worst kind of cruelties, and shows the great necessity for care and judgement in commenting thereon. First "be sure you are right;" then "go-ahead!"

Dr. Landerkin Again.

(For The Advance.)

The Dr's fascinating style is so strangely at variance with his logic, that almost every paragraph furnishes ample scope for analysis and criticism.

He says: "Now that they (the French) begin to indicate that a change of Government would be good for the country, the Conservative press have discovered they are very bad and very aggressive."

This paragraph is assumed, it possesses not a scintilla of truth, and may be fully answered by asking simply—"Are the principles advanced by the "Parti Nationale"—the "Blood and Revenge party" of Quebec, and re-echoed by Dr. Landerkin—for the good of the country? If so, what is the matter with Mr. Joly and the protestant representatives of the Eastern Townships—who repudiate the Dr's logic—all Reformers of the first quill? Why does the Dr. urge such nonsense? Have not these men, residents of Quebec, the best right to judge as to the necessity of a change of Government under such perilous conditions? The people of South Grey will decide.

The good of the country! It is fortunate for us that we have men from all ranks, who place their country before their party. All honor to McKenzie, Charlton, Cartwright, and others, who stood by the ship in the storm! Where does such noble actions place such namby pamby men as the Dr.? He says again: "If it was just and right to grant Dumont a pardon, it was nothing less than judicial murder to hang Louis Riel." But let the argument be reversed; If, as the Dr. contends, it was a "judicial murder to hang Louis Riel," wherein lies but approved clemency to pardon his coadjutors less guilty than he? Which horn of the dilemma will the Dr. take?

The Dr. says: "If the execution of Riel was justifiable, it was on account of the useless loss of life his rebellion occasioned." Just so; in spite of the Dr's best effort to choke his convictions, the truth will out. The logic of the quotation is simply, that there was a "useless loss of life" through Riel; therefore his execution was just—the Dr. nails it by calling it "his rebellion," not Dumont's nor Big Bear's!

The Dr. is puzzled to understand a policy that treats one as a criminal and the others as heroes. It is a pity that his discrimination on matters political lacks its usual acuteness. The volunteers were treated as heroes, but it is yet to be discovered that any others were treated but as criminals—whether executed or pardoned.

The Dr. tries to crack the nut of Riel's escapade to Ottawa, but with ignominious failure. Who ever stated that Riel took his seat in the House! But he was in the House, and subscribed his name on the Register nevertheless—and at the time a standing reward of $5,000 for the capture of his person existed! The McKenzie Government—embracing the notable Blake, the author of the reward—were cognizant of his presence in Ottawa! Why was he not caught then, when it could have been so easily accomplished? That is a conundrum. Will Dr. Landerkin solve it—as against the impossibility of catching him on the plains of great North-West, or the U. S., when his absence was purchased by gentlemen out there?

With apparent complacency, the Dr. says that Riel's purchase was a time purchase, viz., until after the elections of 1872. This is only reconcilable to a professional tergiversationist, for certainly it has no foundation in fact. And Sir John's words, "I wish to God I could catch him," were quite verified by his acts, for it is an historical fact that Riel was hung!

The Dr. needs a little sympathy, for it is a herculean task to hammer against the buttresses of the common sense of the people—saying nothing about the weight of judicial evidence and judgement of the best men of the land. If he contends that his vote was in accordance to his best judgement, then he confesses his impotency as a representative of the people, whose opinions should always be consulted on so important a question. Other votes the Dr. will have to answer for—such as that on the Senate amendments to the Scott Act, completely annulling its usefulness if carried. Scott Act or prohibition men will think twice before placing power into the hands of Dr. Landerkin again, to vote against the very principles for which they are contending. Once should suffice. The Dr. has been tried and found wanting.

It will be interesting, also, to watch the actions of the prominent Temperance leaders towards the Dr's election, and whether politics will swamp their principles or not. More anon.

Political "Upheavals."

[Written for the Advance.]

The political aspect is ominous at this moment. It never was more so. Every politician has an axe to grind; and every politician pulls a wire. All with more or less success. But, while the air is filled with the mutterings and murmurings of a great political storm, the general public is quite unconscious of anything unusual. This is a knack the "general public" always has had, viz., to fall asleep just after a general election and then awake to life and activity with a sudden start just before the polling booths opened. Alas! if the "truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," was told would it not appear, that one-tenth of the citizens of this broad and fair Dominion ruled the other nine-tenths?

There are indications of "political upheavals," however, which means, in plain English, that the masses are gradually but surely being educated up to that point where bluster, wire-pulling, and hole-and-corner meetings are at a discount; where extreme partizanship is frowned down; and where the people begin to dictate their own terms to their representatives in parliament. In short, the rule of individuals is about at an end, and the rule of the general public—the masses—is about to date its commencement. The handwriting has appeared on the wall, the fiat has gone forth, the political flunkeys must give way to that great party of parties, which represents the national interests in its truest and best meaning; which recognizes the meanest subject as well as the most exalted; and which deals out justice to both alike, regardless of nationality or creed. And whether that party be Conservative or Reform, Grit or Tory, woe betide it if it fails to concede or recognize the imperative demands of enlightened masses for purer, better, higher, nobler, and grander political morals than has hitherto been attained in Canada.

Truly yours,
VALENTINE MUGGINS.
