Walt Mason on Royalty

The king sits high on his nobby throne and knights and ladies of high degree will smile or blanch at his lightest tone and bow and grovel and bend the knee. There's glowing splendor on every hand, it is a stirring and dazzling scene; and peers and princes of every land have come to jolly the king and queen. But the face of the monarch is sad and worn—the face of a man who has seldom laughed: perhaps he thinks it a thing to mourn that he was called to the reigning craft. Perhap he envies the man who digs, the man who dwells in a humble cot, with his muley cow and his bunch of pigs, and his apple trees and his garden plot. He may have dreams of a quiet life, afar from diamonds and thrones and silk, with his barefoot kids and his happy wife, who sings while skimming the morning milk. To ride to town on a load of hay and get two pun at the village scales may seem far better than holding sway o'er England, Scotland and Cork and Wales. To live your life in the blinding glare that beats for aye on a throne and crown—ah, better to ride an old roan mare, and carry three dozen eggs to town! The faces of kings are always sad, their eyes are heavy, their whiskers grey; their souls are sick of the reigning fad—they'd like to ride on a load of hay—Walt Mason.

Mr. Roosevelt shoots at so many subjects that it is not surprising that he frequently hits a bull's eye. His latest objects of scorn is the "cuckoo parent," the father or mother "who deposits the child at the school door and then goes away with the feeling that all the future physical, mental and moral welfare of the child lies in the hands of the teacher." Canada should thank Mr. Roosevelt for that phrase. We have the cuckoo parent here in large numbers, and its complaints because the other birds are not mother, father and everything else to its children are a standing nuisance to school boards and teacher.—Ex.

Wm. Hopps, aged 17, and Wm. Morgan, aged 14, both of Meaford, who stole $10 from Evans' drug store at Allenford a few weeks ago, and were sent to Walkerton for trial by magistrates McDonald and Sutherland appeared before Judge Klein and pleaded guilty to the theft. Hopps was sentenced to 7 days in gaol and Morgan was given 1 day in the cells.—Tara Leader.

SCIATICA

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold, and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism, or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." 50 cents per bottle, trial size, 25c; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

HOLYROOD PALACE.

Historic Castle Has Been the Scene of Stirring Episodes.

Few regal edifices have undergone more vicissitudes than Holyrood Palace, which is now being subjected to several alterations and improvements to fit it for the occupation of King George and Queen Mary when they stay there in July. It occupies the site of Holyrood Abbey, founded in 1128 by King David I., on the spot where he was supposed to have been saved from an infuriated stag. The legend goes that the King was hunting in the forest of Drumslech, in the immediate vicinity of Edinburgh, and was assailed by an enraged stag, which unhorsed him, and probably would have put a very speedy end to his existence had not this Scottish monarch, like the first Christian Emperor, been favored of the saints.

As a reward for his piety, and in consideration of his great liberality to churchmen, a cross descended from Heaven in the moment of his danger, with which he stoutly attacked the beast. The latter, finding itself overcome, quickly made its way out of the woods, and left the King and the cross masters of the situation. Thus to prove his gratitude to the saints who had interceded in his behalf, he founded the Abbey of Holyrood for the canons-regular of St. Augustine.

The canons were allowed many privileges, and succeeding monarchs added to the gifts of the founder, Holyrood Abbey becoming the most opulent of all religious institutions in Scotland. In due time a royal residence was erected close to it, although it is doubtful how soon it became the permanent home of the Kings of Scotland. Certain it is, however, that James IV. lived there. It was during his residence, on account of Mass having been celebrated in the chapel, that a revolutionary mob broke in and despoiled all the religious ornaments, leaving only the bare walls. The rioters even profaned the vault which had been used as the royal sepulchre, broke open the leaden coffins, and carried away the lids; but as the royal bones were not negotiable articles, the anti-Papists were forced to leave them behind.

But worse misfortunes were still to come, and they came with Queen Mary. Her Majesty's misfortunes commenced at a very early period. The first Sunday after her arrival a mob beset the palace for the purpose of instructing her in the proper way of worshipping God. To such a pitch of enthusiasm had the spirit of these religious instructors risen that it was only with difficulty they were restrained from hanging the priest who at that moment was officiating in the chapel. Mary locked herself in her apartment with her Mass book and her father-confessor, while tumultuous zealots assailed the gates and pronounced themselves certain Her Majesty was making for eternal perdition, and must soon be utterly lost unless she listened to John Knox and abjured beads and images.

Then came the historic night of March 9th, 1566. As Mary and a small party were having supper, Darnley and Ruthven, followed by other conspirators, entered for the purpose of seizing David Rizzio, the accomplished Italian secretary and skilful musician, who had gained the Queen's confidence and roused the jealousy of the Presbyterian lords and ministers of the Kirk. Anticipating their purpose, Rizzio threw himself behind the Queen and clung to her dress; but was stabbed by George Douglas, leaning over Mary's shoulders. During this exciting scene the Queen's husband held her fast in his arms, while another of the conspirators held a pistol at her breast. The room in which the fatal supper-party took place is still in existence.

Queen Mary's Daily Life.

According to a letter published in The Yorkshire Post, and written by a lady holding a high position at court, the Queen at 9.30 a.m., begins the day's work by going through her large correspondence (which she has previously opened) with two secretaries. Then come interviews with the governess, nurse, housekeeper, and the heads of departments in the palace. Then appointments with furniture makers, and various trades-people till 1.30. In the afternoon Her Majesty visits an hospital or some charitable institution, or a picture gallery, or visits some other interesting places in or near London, such as the City churches, the halls of the various City companies, etc. After tea the Queen again summons her secretaries for more correspondence, and gives one or two interviews. After dinner she reads till 10.30, and then retires to rest. In the country, expeditions to historical or other interesting places in the neighborhood with some of her children are arranged, or some local charities or institutions are visited.

Dangerous to Use "Esquire."

The recovery of a letter which had been sent to a little town in Germany and never delivered to the person addressed cured the writer of the custom of adding "Esquire" to a name on the superscription of mail matter. The letter in question would probably have been promptly delivered had the address read simply, "Mr. John Brown." But the sender had addressed it, "John Brown, Esquire," and the communication rested comfortably in the "F" compartment of the post restante department, waiting to be called for by "Mr. Esquire." One of the popular guide books warns against the use of "Esq.," saying that it might be mistaken for a name.

Whole Wheat Bread.

London doctors interested in the nutritive value of foodstuffs have issued a document in which they recommend the use of whole meal in making bread instead of fine white flour. It is maintained that there are in the whole meal two and one-half times the amount of mineral substances that nourish the body.

Cannot Export Feathers.

Plumage, skins or eggs of native birds of Australia and New Guinea can no longer be exported, this having been prohibited by the Australian Commonwealth Government.

The Ford Motor Company of Walkerville has declared its second dividend at the rate of 100 per cent.

A G. T. R. train was wrecked on an embankment northeast of Paris, Ont., and fireman Pursell of Hamilton was probably fatally injured.

Whooping cough is not dangerous when the cough is kept loose and expectoration easy by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has been used in many epidemics of this disease with perfect success. For sale by W. E. Richardson & Son.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.
