Chest Inflammation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side — Constant Coughing.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

"STONEHENGE."

Origin of Famous Monument Veiled In Mystery.

The first serious inquiry into the origin of Stonehenge came from a characteristic quarter, no less a person than the British Solomon, King James I., who, says The London Globe, directed Inigo Jones, the famous architect, to undertake the task. At the time of his death Inigo had prepared some notes only. These were edited by a relative at the desire of two famous men, Harvey, discoverer of the circulation of the blood, and Selden, the lawyer; the theory advanced being that Stonehenge was "a temple after the Tuscan order." It would be interesting to know how much of the work was really Inigo's, as it was based on certain geometric measurements which proved to have been less accurately done than might have been expected from an architect. The popular theory that monuments such as Stonehenge, or the circles at Keswick and elsewhere in the Lake district, were Druids' temples, originated with Dr. William Stukeley. Stukeley was a man of great learning, but allowed his ideas to run away with him.

His arguments formed a remarkable study. He had seen the circles, apparently temples without priests; he had read of the Druids, apparently priests without temples. He wished to connect them. Then he found in Pliny a fantastic story that in Gaul the serpents congregated at midsummer, and produced from their saliva an egg to which magic virtues were ascribed. This they cast into the air, seemingly after the modern ritual of tossing the pancake, and he who would possess himself of the talisman must catch it ere it reached the ground and fly for safety beyond running water; for all the terrors that Tam o' Shanter or Elsie Venner braved were his Pliny crowns the whole by saying that he had seen one of these eggs; so when he adds that they were regarded as a charm by the Druids, Stukeley had no hesitation in saying that the circles were erected by the Druids for serpent worship.

But why were they circles? Because, said Stukeley, they represented the coils of an enormous snake, worked in boulders, the image of their deity. To demonstrate this he made a survey of the lines of stones near the circle at Avebury. The resulting snake was semi-detached, neither continuous nor convincing, and it was only by the help of artistic license that he was able to produce the required diagram. Later he supplemented this by a plan of certain remains at Shap, Westmoreland. He himself remained at Carlisle—he was a wise man, for the weather was bad—and sent a young surveyor to do the work. He was a wise man also, for he knew what his master wanted to find and he found it, having prepared, it is said, a plan of all the stones in a day — an utter impossibility. Yet Stukeley's theories created an extraordinary sensation at the time, and are accepted to some extent even to this day.

Jack Tar's Letters.

It is easy enough for you to drop your letters in a pillar-box and know that they will be delivered with all due speed. But Jack, especially when he is cruising in foreign waters, has to wait weeks or even months to get a reply to his correspondence.

On every British war vessel a corporal or lance-corporal of the Royal Marines is specially told off to collect and dispatch letters and parcels. He is the local postoffice and postmaster, for he sells stamps and generally acts for and gives information to the members of the ship's company about their mail. All the letters for England are fastened up in private bags and addressed to the G.P.O., London. These bags are sealed with the design of a British ensign around which are the words, "The Seal of His Majesty's Ships."

Many of the letters that are received from Jack Tar bear English stamps and the London postmark, which rather puzzles recipients. But the foregoing paragraph explains this simply enough. These mail bags, when properly sealed, are taken ashore by the ship's postman and delivered to the nearest postoffice. Very often the latter is twenty or thirty miles away and consists of a dignified barn.

Royal Cyclists.

King George, who has just presented a perpetual challenge trophy for cyclists, has long been an enthusiast of the wheel. Like so many other members of his family, he was taught to ride by Mr. Mayes, a famous racing man of the 'eighties, and proved such an adept pupil that, to quote his instructor's words, "He didn't want any teaching. He jumped on his bicycle, wobbled about a bit, and away he went, riding it—well, not exactly like an old hand, but very well." Mr. Mayes' first royal pupil was Princess Henry of Battenberg, who had her first lesson (on a tricycle) in the grounds of Buckingham Palace. Queen Alexandra (then Princess of Wales) had her first lesson at Sandringham on a tricycle which had been built in five days as a Christmas present for her.

"The Silent Man."

As General Commissioner of Police, Sir Edward Henry had the arduous task of making adequate police arrangements to deal with the huge crowds of people who assembled in London on June 22nd and 23rd. Known as "The Silent Man," on account of his quiet, unassuming, unassertive manner, Sir Edward made his mark as the Inspector-General of Police in Bengal, and is famous for his introduction of the system of recognition by finger-marks, which has brought so many light-fingered gentry to just punishment.

A Huge Elevator.

The Clyde Navigation Trust's huge granary to be erected at Meadowside for the better handling of grain arriving from America and other places will rise to fourteen storeys, and will be the highest building of any kind in Scotland.

Council adjourned,

Henry Lemire of Tecumseh died of injuries received a year ago in Detroit, when beaten by highwaymen, who have never been arrested.

On Wednesday, July 19, Edward O Brien, at the age of 65 years, died at Barrie gaol. He had been sent down by Magistrate Clark of Orillia on a charge of vagrancy and although the fine imposed was only 25c. he was unable to pay. One of his sons in Parry Sound was notified of his father's condition but he refused him help of any kind. This refusal, together with the fact that he was in ill health hastened his death, although death was directly due to apoplexy. Mr. O'Brien leaves a wife and twenty children, eighteen daughters and two sons.—Barrie Saturday Morning.

How Clouds Get Their Fringes.

Prof. Tyndall used to explain to popular audiences, with the aid of a brilliant experiment, that the blue color of the sky is owing to floating particles of invisible dust that break up and scatter the short waves, which are the blue waves, of light. This occurs principally at a great elevation, where the atmospheric dust is extremely fine, while in the lower regions of the air, where the dust is coarser, the scattering affects all the rays, or colors, alike. The brilliant fringes of clouds, seen nearly in the direction of the sun, are largely due to dust, which especially accumulates in the neighborhood of clouds and refracts the sunlight around their edges.

Queen Consort's Flag.

For the first time in the history of England the flag of a Queen Consort was flown over Buckingham Palace recently. The new flag is a beautiful creation, the colors being woven and painted with marvellous dexterity. One side of it does not differ from the Royal Standard; the other, composed of eight square portions, consists of the Royal Standard with new quarterings, illustrating Queen Mary's descent from the Houses of Cambridge and Teck.

Could Turn Engineer.

The Duke of Sutherland is a skilled locomotive engineer, and could earn a living at the work did he so desire.

The Guelph Herald has received authentic information to the effect that the deal whereby the Canadian Northern Railway Company takes over the charter of the People's Railway Company, has been definitely put though. No public announcement has yet been made regarding this, but the gentleman who was the Herald's informant is well posted in such matters, and is confident that what he states is quite correct. His information was received from a prominent gentleman of Berlin, who is in close touch with the situation, and should know whereof he speaks. It is understood that the municipalities interested will be given bonds in the company, instead of the stock, and that this part of the agreement will be perfectly satisfactory to those concerned. By giving bonds it gives the road entirely into the control of the railway people, and will not permit of any of the interested municipalities having a say in the management. A public announcement may be forthcoming in a few days, but in the meantime the necessary papers are being drawn up, and the deal completed.

Duncan McNeill of 4th con. Eld, was brought before Magistrate Montgomery one day last week on a charge of horsewhipping his wife. He was found guilty of the offence and was bound to the peace for one year in the sum of $100, besides having to pay the costs of the Court. Domestic infelicity has broken up many a home and the best cure for a husband who uses a whip on his wife is to give him a dose of his own medicine. We don't want to encourage the whitecap business but we would not divulge the names of the men if we saw them giving a wife beater a horsehiding.—Chesly Enterprise.

Lightning has been doing a great deal of damage in all parts of the country. George A. Magee was instantly killed at his home in West Gwillimbury. He and his father were hauling hay and just as they reached the barn door a bolt of lightning struck, knocking the father senseless and killed the son. When Mr. Magee, sr. recovered consciousness he found the hay on fire and then saw the lifeless body of his son. Urged to the quick action he lifted the body and carried it a short distance away, returning to find both horses killed and the barn on fire. There was no help near and it was impossible to save anything.

Mr. Henry Roeddnig of Ayton purchased a ticket for Alsfeldt for the early train last Friday morning, which ticket was taken up by the conductor. He was afterwards advised by a train official that the train would not stop at Alsfeldt, but would be slowed down when opposite the station. He was told to jump, which he did, and was rolled up like a ball, injuring his nose, both eyes, head and right knee. He is now laid up at his home in Ayton. Dr. Mearns, of Hanover, G. T. R. physician, was notified to examine the man which he did yesterday. This may result in a suit for damages.—Hanover Post.

A well known Des Moines woman after suffering miserably for two days from bowel complaint, was cured by one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by W. E. Richardson & Son.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."
