A Discovery of Vast Importance

It Is Now Admitted That Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Coughs, and Colds Can Only Be Quickly Cured By Mixing a New Medicine With the Air You Breathe.

Scientists acknowledge that medicated air treatment is the only treatment that will cure these diseases, and that stomach medicines are worse than useless.

Catarrhozone air treatment has been found to be the most effective way to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. Its action is so prompt that in less than an hour an ordinary cold is cured, and after a more thorough use of Catarrhozone, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the throat and lungs are completely cured.

Catarrhozone is a very simple and powerful method of treatment. You simply breathe it through the inhaler and it immediately passes over every air cell of the throat, lungs, and bronchial tubes, curing and healing as it goes.

Catarrhozone treatment affords little drops of healing for sore places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

What The Americans Can Teach Us

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

Next to being born a Canadian, I rather think I would like to be born in the United States. It is a wonderful country. It carries a wonderful people. They are an example to us in many things; a warning in others. Wherever they are admirable they are often excessive—it is a natural defect of possessing immense productive territory, vast populations, and a rather short political past. They can teach us very very much that we ought to know. Take four of their splendid characteristics:

One. Their love of country.

Heavens! How they boast; how they wave their flag. They insist on carrying it,—flaunting it, if you like—in every foreign country; and they get touchy as a bear with a sore head if you show your flag on their soil. They believe in their country; in its institutions. The flag is the symbol of all their strength, ambition, glory. There is a reason.

Millions of people have come from all the ends of the earth to the United States. They know little or nothing of the liberty and opportunity of which the States are full. They come to better their conditions; to place their children where they can grow into prosperous citizens. The flag has been made the emblem of all their hopes. It flies from every schoolhouse. The sight of it engenders a flood of patriotism in the native-born and the alien-born.

The American can teach us here. Our flag has flown a thousand years. His is a product of the day before yesterday. We have a tremendous variety of alien blood and alien speech in our midst. We impress too little upon them the magnificence of the things the flag has stood for and stands for, and will stand for. We are apt to forget that in patriotism.

Those who come to us have to be born again. If ever there was a country in which patriotism should burn with a vehement flame, it is Canada. Look to it.

Two. Their willingness to adapt themselves to changed circumstances.

Tradition is splendid, within limits. "As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be" is not an infallible political principle, for this is a progressive world.

There is danger, too, of falling into the habit of the fellow who said, "These are my sentiments; if you don't like 'em I'll change 'em." The wise man often changes his mind, the fool never; but the wise man does not change merely to suit somebody else.

The American is pre-eminent in the world for his readiness to change his method of regarding questions of trade and of politics. He thought he could freeze Canada to himself by a high tariff. It didn't work, so he tries Reciprocity—which we asked for long, long ago.

If we go back to it we show that we don't adapt ourselves to changing conditions. We have outgrown our notions of commercial dependence on the American. We must not be cajoled into going back forty years for our ideas. Sir Wilfrid Laurier leaps backwards over 1907, 1903, 1901 and 1897—years in which he emphatically repudiated reciprocity. He is like a venerable man who goes out to meet an old sweetheart and expects to find her young and blooming as she was forty years ago.

Three. Their unbounded faith in the future.

Sir Wilfrid has had his spells of this splendid quality. He once said, "The Twentieth Century belongs to Canada." In conformity with this he said, "The best and most effective way to maintain friendship with our American neighbors is to be absolutely independent of them." Last winter President Taft said, "Canada is at the parting of the ways." Canada is expected to make reply, "Thy way, not mine, O Taft."

On the reciprocity question Sir Wilfrid spoke again, only four years ago he declared to the Imperial Conference, "There was a time when we wanted Reciprocity with the United States . . . We have said good-bye to that trade and we now put all our hopes upon the British trade."

The future was to be as the past had been—a development of commerce, of social and national sentiment, east and west, and not predominantly north and south. We expressed our confidence in the future. Nothing was to draw us into the seductive embraces of the United States. We began a new transcontinental railway that will cost three times as much as was intended as a proof of our distinctiveness from the big neighbor. And then we began to play his game. From turning our back upon him we began to turn our back upon ourselves. When you become afraid of your Future, good-bye to your Future.

Four. Their determination to Hoe their own Row.

I never heard of a man who chose hoeing as a holiday occupation. I never liked it when I was on the farm. But you can't have a garden without plentiful use of this familiar companion of the backache. It's the hoe that puts potatoes and beets, carrots and beans, and all the vegetable luxuries on the table.

What was the hoe in the national development of the United States?

It was protection of young industries. The United States decided to make the most of their own resources by helping industrial expansion with a tariff. They became the greatest manufacturing country in the world. They have done it by hoeing their own row.

Canada took a leaf out of their book. She could not have had her big industrial cities any other way. Her home market would have been a negligible quantity if she had been content to be merely a getter of raw material for somebody else.

The Americans want her raw material. Let her learn of them and make the most of her own raw material. It will be wise learning.

WALL STREET.

The Human Side of New York's Great Financial Quarter.

To the man who looks from without upon Wall street it seems a place of deep and dangerous mystery, a region of dens and caves and labyrinths full of perils which threaten loss and perhaps ruin to him who enters there. And such in too many instances it has proved to be. But nevertheless there is a decided human side to Wall street. It is perhaps the most "two faced" street in the world. Here men who occupy the highest pinnacle of financial success and who are powerful kings, in fact, daily brush elbows with office boys and bank messengers, "get-rich-quick" highwaymen, silly and pretty girl stenographers, curb brokers and curb merchants and sharp tongued and ready witted "newsies"—with all the motley tide that flows into "the street" each morning and ebbs back again at night.

Wall street may be said to be the most democratic street in the world, for all its vast wealth. There is no street where a crowd will gather more quickly than there, even upon the smallest pretext. It may be a street faker selling some newfangled toy or a man gliding the ball on a flagpole 500 feet up in the air. A suffragette making a speech would transfer practically the entire population from a dozen skyscrapers to the "standing room only" in her immediate vicinity. But unless one hurries he will not get a good view of the fair creature, for soon she is lost from view in tangles of ticker tape tossed in reels from the nearby office windows, a favorite sport among the brokerage house clerks.

This sort of thing usually takes place during the noon hour, and at that time all work is suspended at the first sound of a band in the distance. Everybody flies to the curb. Business can wait in this busiest of streets for most anything before 2 o'clock, when the chimes of Trinity sound the afternoon session and "the street" settles down to its serious business of making financial history.

Such is the everyday "outside" little crooked street, "with the river at one end and a cemetery at the other," which has sent scores upon scores to one or the other—the street with a destiny.—Strand Magazine.

Ghosts Without Heads.

Speaking of ghosts, the London Chronicle says that "headless coaches" are fairly numerous in England. The most famous is the one that drives once a year, on the anniversary of Anne Boleyn's execution, up the avenue at Blickling, her Norfolk home. The coachman and the four horses have not a head between them, and Anne's own is not upon her shoulders, but she holds it in her lap as she sits in the coach all in white. At the hall door the whole apparition vanishes. Anne's father, Sir Thomas, also rides in a coach drawn by headless horses once a year, and his ride is much more exciting than his daughter's. He has to cross forty county bridges during the night and a company of yelling demons pursues the coach to keep the horses going. But how do the horses hear the noise if they have no ears?

Reason's whole pleasure lies in these words: Health, peace and competence. —Pope.

A little Chatham girl was burned to death when fire destroyed her grandparent's residence.

Goaded to desperation by repeatad taunts that he was shirking his work, a young farm hand named Douglas, while employed at a threshing near Molesworth, some seven miles from Listowel, swung around on his persecutor, Harry Smith, and sent the proug of his pitchfork through the latter's side. The steel prong penetrated Smith's left side near the base of the lung, and inflicted a dangerous wound, which may have a fatal result. Smith is a son of Reeve Smith of Elma, and a married man, while Douglas is little more than a boy.

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA AND BRONCHITIS

Brought Mrs. Baker to Death's Door. Father Morriscy's No. 10 Saved Her.

Of the many hundreds of cures wrought by Father Morriscy's No. 10 (Lung Tonic) few are more remarkable than the saving of the life of Mrs. John S. Baker, of 164 Rockland Road (North End), St. John, N.B. She wrote on Oct. 16, 1909:

"I wish to express my gratitude that I am living to-day, saved from the grave by Father Morriscy's No. 10 (Lung Tonic). This time last year I had pleuro-pneumonia and bronchitis, and had been given up to die, and had my lungs tapped in the City Hospital, and never expected to walk again; I was continually getting worse every day. I came home from the hospital, and everyone was watching fo me to die. I tried everything but there seemed to be no cure for me.

"I began taking Father Morriscy's No. 10, and the second day I could eat without pain. I used 22 bottles of No. 10, as I was run down right into consumption, and for six months was just a shadow until I began to use it, and now I am in good health, and surprised most of my neighbors by gaining so quickly. I feel it my duty to publish it everywhere I can, as with all I can say I cannot recommend it too highly—it was a life saver to me, and I am very thankful to recommend it, as it is worth all it is said."

Father Morriscy's No. 10 is very different from the many preparations that simply relieve a cough. No. 10 relieves the cause of the cough, restores the membranes of throat and lungs to a healthy condition, and tones up the whole system, giving strength to resist future attacks.

Meaford High School

WILL RE-OPEN ON

Tuesday, Sept. 5, 1911

When classes will be formed for Matriculation into all the professions, entrance into the Normal Schools and into the Faculties of Education in Commercial Specialist and Commercial Diploma.

The rapid growth of this school is a striking illustration of that true old adage that "nothing succeeds like success."

We would like all parents having children to educate to consider seriously the following points about this High School:

(1) Building, grounds and equipment unexcelled in the Province, four rooms and a gymnasium; healthy town, absolutely free from fevers; good board in private families—cheaper than in cities. Fees $10 a year.

(2) The splendid work of this school has attracted to it from far and near, large numbers of students, and has caused its attendance to increase rapidly. During 1910 our students came from thirty-seven different counties.

(3) The high stand taken by its students in the various universities and the large number of its university graduates holding fellowships in Canadian and American colleges.

(4) A new and up-to-date science room fully equipped, in which the student performs his own experiment under the supervision of the teacher.

(5) A fully organized Commercial Department in Book-keeping, Stenography, Business Law, Type-writing, English Branches, in the hands of a specialist who is a chartered accountant; special attention given to Writing and Spelling. This department is equipped with seven of the latest up-to-date Underwood typewriters. Each graduate receives a beautiful diploma. Our graduates easily obtain positions. No expensive fees to pay.

RECORD FOR 1911

(6) In 1911 this school passed 17 candidates for entrance into the Normal schools, 11 for Junior Matriculation, 4 for entrance into the Faculties of Education, 3 for Commercial Diplomas.

(7) Inspector Wetherall in his last report says: It is with unusual pleasure that I make my first report on the Meaford High School. No school in the Province is in a more flourishing condition. The trustees are alert and progressive and all the members of the staff are energetic and capable. The spirit of the school is excellent and impresses a stranger at once as quite out of the common,
