Catarrhal Bad Breath

Corrected Quickly by the Use of Catarrhozone

Catarrh is an inflammation. Where there is inflammation there is always more or less offensive secretion. Inflammation may be of the very active sort, but it is often of the slow kind, and this is the particular form in which the breath is rendered offensive and the presence of the sufferer becomes an offence to every person of delicate sensibility.

Bad breath is in itself sufficient to urge you to correct it, because one dislikes to be unpleasant to their friends, but this form of catarrh is dangerous because it supplies a hotbed for the development of Consumption or of other diseases of the throat and lungs.

Bad breath is an evidence that the microbes have found a good resting place and are carrying on their evil inroads into the health of the body.

Catarrhozone acts at once and destroys these minute organisms, but it does more—it heals the inflamed surfaces in which they found a nesting place and consequently removes both cause and effects of their action.

If we only highly estimated the value of prevention and used Catarrhozone at the beginning of a cold or just before it becomes well seated, the deadly ravages of Consumption would be stayed and the terrible agonies of sufferers of Asthma or Bronchitis completely abolished.

There is no remedy as effective for bad breath, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., as Catarrhozone. Besides being healing and soothing it is germ destroying. Nothing ever offered to the public can compare with it in its promptness, efficiency, and permanency of action, and you can buy it from any dealer in medicine throughout the Dominion of Canada, 25c, 50c, and $1.00 sizes. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 4th,

TESTING AN OCTOPUS.

The Power of This Repulsive Creature Much Overrated.

There have been made abroad experiments with an octopus, in a specially devised tank of sea water, in order to test the truth of the many stories told of monster cephalopods dragging human victims to the sea bottom, says Harper's Weekly.

In the tank with the octopus there was placed a "dummy" of the same specific gravity as a man, and this was baited with a crab. Attracted by this tempting morsel, the octopus made for the figure, seized it in its powerful arms and tried to drag it under water without success. It then urged its body toward the edge of the tank, and, holding the glass with some of its arms, it dragged its prey beneath the surface and crushed the crab shell with its powerful jaws.

It is believed that these experiments afford proof that the octopus can only drag its victims far below the water near rocks to which it can attach its suckers. There is one spot in the bay of Naples where these creatures attain a large size, and now and then a fisherman is reported missing. It is thought that such disappearances are due to the unfortunate man being caught by the leg by a concealed octopus and dragged under water. In the case of such a repulsive and powerful creature as the octopus it is difficult to separate fact from fiction.

A VACATION IN BED.

Twenty-four Hours' Sleep Versus a Week's Holiday.

If you want to obtain complete rest and recuperation equal to a week's vacation in minimum time sleep the clock around twice is the advice of a physician who holds a high place in medical circles in England.

"To spend twenty-four hours in bed." he said to a friend, "instead of rushing away for a few hours' change of scene when you are run down physically and mentally, is worth a week's holiday. The night before, having gone to a theater to take the mind off worries and having supped wisely and well, instructions should be given that the morning calling shall be omitted.

"Then sleep. On waking turn over and sleep again. On waking again ring for some hot milk. Drink it and sleep again and keep on sleeping. Have nothing in the intervals more substantial than soup. Do not read. Keep the eyes shut constantly. Have a warm bath in the evening and sleep again.

"When you are tired of sleeping sleep again for the night. Nothing calms the nerves more than resting the eyes."—New York Herald.

Remember the Baker.

At the court of assizes in Venice when sentence of death is about to be passed a man clothed in a long black robe enters the court and, advancing to the bench, bows profoundly to the judges, saying, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and retires. Here is the explanation of the custom: Three centuries ago a baker was executed at Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was fully proved the judges who condemned him invested a sum of money, the interest on which serves to keep a lamp perpetually lighted in the palace of the doges, this being called the "lamp of expiation." In addition, their fatal mistake has for 300 years been held up as a warning to their successors on the bench when they are about to inflict the extreme penalty of the law.

The Box Tortoise.

Though the tortoise is slow of foot, it is quick to make the best of all its available modes of defense. The box tortoise possesses a singular defensive apparatus. The plastron or shell covering the under part of the body is so formed that its front segment can be drawn upward to protect the animal's head, the head meanwhile being drawn back under the carapace or shell on the back of the tortoise. The upper and under shells then meet in front, forming a kind of box in which the creature is unassailable. When the danger is passed the reptile relaxes a muscle and the raised part of the plastron falls, allowing the head and fore feet to come forth. This movable plate is fastened to the plastron by a strong hinge of elastic ligament.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

When Israel Zangwill was an obscure youth teaching in a Jewish school in London he sent a short poem to a leading American monthly. It came back by an early post. He kept it, and after he had achieved fame as a writer he sent the same poem to the same magazine. This time he received a cable from the editor offering to buy the "world rights" for a large sum. The poem was the same, word for word.

Different.

"Why, a year ago you told me this place was easily worth $15,000. Now you estimate its value at less than $10,000."

"You must remember that I was trying to sell it to you then. Now you want me to sell it for you."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Adam Was Grouchy.

The Serpent—What's Adam so grouchy about today? The Ape—Oh, he says that the arrival of woman means that all his plans for universal peace have been knocked in the head for good.—Puck.

Whatever demands the deepest courage and endurance of soul of course must unveil most perfectly its hidden strength.—George W. Briggs.

Ceylon

Ceylon has lost one of her most respected citizens in the person of Mrs. H. Tucker, who has removed to Paisley to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Isaac Cruickshank for the present.

Mr. James Sproat has so far recovered from his illness as to be able to be around again.

Mr. Rob. Tucker and a friend spent Sunday with his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Egan called on Mr. John McFayden on Sunday.

Mr. T. A. Gilchrist and Mr. G. Collinson took in the exhibition at Toronto and visited friends at Port Dalhousie.

Miss Burrows from Riverview, and Miss Menzie from McIntyre, have secured employment at Mr. James Pattison's. We extend a hearty welcome to the young ladies and wish them much success in their callings.

Portlaw

Miss Lizzie Grierson of Saskatchewan has returned home after a fortnight's visit with her aunt and cousin, Mrs. R. T. White and Mrs. Geo. Chapman.

Miss Vina Watson has gone to Toronto to spend a few weeks with her aunt.

Misses Viola Cornfield and Gladys White are attending high school at Flesherton.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Nicholson have returned from a lengthy tour in the West.

A happy event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Winters, when their daughter, Miss Mabel, was united in marriage to Mr. John McDonald of McIntyre. That unbroken connubial felicity may accompany the young couple through life is the wish of the bride's many friends here.

Among those who attended the exhibition and visited friends in the city, were Miss Maggie Hill, Miss Della Pedlar, Mrs. R D. Meldrum, W. G. Jamieson, J. A. Thompson, Harry Meldrum, W. H. and Miss Hemphill, J. H. Watson, W. A. Morton, T. R. and Alvin McKenzie.

Our school trustees have been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. McDowell of Drayton as teacher. Mr. McDowell has created a favorable impression as teacher and citizen.

[See our local columns for account of accident to Mr. Simmons, which we have omitted from above budget—Ed.]

James Smith, Collingwood, had his foot caught between the reach and hound of a wagon and badly crushed.

BEAU BRUMMEL.

The Dandy Who Vied With George IV. for First Honors.

Brummel never pretended to be anything but a dandy. His recorded sayings prove that he was always ready to burlesque his own pose of exquisite fastidiousness and fragility. Thus he said that he had caught a cold because "on the Brighton road the other day, that infidel Weston (his valet) put me into a room with a damp stranger." There is also some merit in his poem "The Butterfly Funeral," particularly in this verse:

The Dormouse attended, but cold and forlorn,
And the Gnat slowly winded his shrill little horn,
And the Moth, who was grieved for the loss of a sister,
Bent over the body and silently kissed her.

Brummel seems to have done no harm to anyone except his creditors, and to have had some kindness as well as shrewdness in his nature. Perhaps he wasted nothing except other people's money, for he may have been born a dandy, as Mozart was born a musician. If so, the fact remains that it is not well to be born a dandy, unless you can contrive to die young. Brummel lived to be sixty-two, and spent his last twenty-four years in exile in France, with no object in life except to dress as well as he could in spite of a poverty which gradually became destitution.

Miss Clare Jerrold, in her book on "The Beaux and the Dandies," tells the story of his miserable end, and makes us see that at last he attained to a real dignity through suffering. He grew tattered and filthy, and one lady in Caen was the only person who would receive him. She was asked "How can you admit such a driveller?" and she answered, "He is never in our way; and though it is trut he is not now the amusing character he once was, I like to see him take his seat before my fire."

At last his mind went, and he was admitted to a convent where the insane were kindly treated. There he died, more happily, perhaps, than his rival George IV., who never forgave him for being the finer dandy. —Times.

Didn't Have To.

"Did you hear the rain in the night?"
"Yes."
"Pleasant music, wasn't it?"
"I didn't notice the music. I was too busy hustling around closing the windows. Didn't it keep you busy too?"
"Oh, no! We rent a furnished house, you know."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Concession.

"How do you know she's older than you are?"
"Why, she admitted it herself."
"Honestly? What did she say?"
"She said, 'You and I are just the same age, dearie.'"—Toledo Blade.

While playing on Thursday morning with two of his little companions on the dock at Collingwood, Frankie Pelch, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Pelch, fell into the water. Although only a short time had elapsed since the boys had been last seen, when after about ten minutes' immersion, the boy was rescued, there were but faint signs of life, and though two doctors worked for over an hour trying to resuscitate him, their efforts were doomed to failure and he died about 11.30 a.m.—Messenger.

The Canadian Northern Railway intend to inaugurate a new line of passenger and frieght steamers to run out of some Georgian Bay port to Port Arthur by the season of 1913. The President of the Collingwood Board of Trade is already in communication with the management of the railway, with a view to getting this port as the terminus of the proposed fleet, and with the early advent of the railway to this point, thanks to Major Currie, now a certainty, a favorable consideration of the president's communication is assured.—Collingwood Messenger.

Wm McIntyre of Grand Valley was found dead in the river at Guelph on Sunday morning. Mr. McIntyre was a patient at the Homewood Sanitarium. The deceased was well known all over the county of Wellington, being a member of the firm of McIntyre & Sons, grain buyers and flour and feed merchants of Grand Valley. He was, at the time of his death, clerk of the township of East Luther, clerk of the village of Grand Valley, secretary of the Agricultural Society, the School Board, and also the Masonic lodge of Grand Valley. He was 39 years old and leaves a widow and four children, three girls and a boy.

Rev. Father Morriscy

A Combined Treatment That Really Cures Catarrh.

Canadian weather, with its extreme cold and sudden changes, gives almost every one Catarrh, and makes it hard to cure. Some recommend internal remedies—some external applications.

Father Morriscy used both—tablets to be taken three or four times a day to invigorate the system, purify the blood, and help it throw off the disease, and a soothing, healing, antiseptic salve to be applied inside the nostrils. This combined treatment known as attacking the disease from within and without, soon cures.

"Father Morriscy's No. 26"

Mr. A. C. Thibodeau, General Merchant in Rogersville, N.B., writes on Jan. 22nd last:

"A few words as to the merits of your Catarrh Cure. For the last 10 years I have been troubled with Catarrh of the head and stomach and during that time have tried all kinds of other Remedies with no results, until I tried your Catarrh Cure which I am glad to say has cured me. I highly recommend it to those who are suffering with this disease."

Don't trifle with Catarrh—cure it with Father Morriscy's No. 26.
