They Traded Back.

A short time ago a jolly farmer drove into Markdale to have a good time, and after imbibing a liberal supply of Markdale mid-life train, considering himself qualified to teach the village ignoramus a few points in horse trading, he set out in search of victims. Meeting with a pair of youthful dealers in that line quite willing to accommodate him, he soon succeeded in exchanging a good horse for a very poor one. Next morning his better half, discovering the state of affairs, and realizing her responsibility in protecting the interest of her weaker spouse, set out for town to have matters made right, but failing in her appeal for justice she interviewed the father of the principal in the affair, who manfully espoused the cause of the lady, accompanied her to the presence of the juveniles, and proposed a consideration for the trade. When argument failed he offered ten dollars out of his own pocket, but in vain. Our heroine, becoming disgusted, left the scene, repaired to the stable where the horse in dispute was locked up, quickly unlocked the door with an axe and bravely led him down street, while our heroes, regretting their refusal of the ten dollars, helplessly looked on. The money offered them and refused was applied to the repairs of the stable doors, and the world moves on.

The Carnival.

One of the most successful carnivals ever held on Flesherton rink was that of Friday evening last. The maskers were numerous and the spectators many. The ice was in elegant condition, the night was fine and everything contributed to make the affair pass off pleasantly. Among the maskers particularly noticeable for neat costumes may be mentioned Miss Lizzie Gordon and Miss Millie Vandusen as two pretty milk maids, with pink dresses and sun bonnets; Miss Hattie Cole, as Little Bo Peep; Miss May Damude, as winter; Miss Ella Gordon, a pretty little Highland lassie; Miss Lily Powell, a flower fairy; Miss Teenie Richardson, do.; Mr. Frank Sullivan and Walter Leitch, negro dudes; T. Hollinger and Bradford Powell, cowboys. A large number of other maskers were also present whose names we did not learn but whose costumes all went to make up a very pleasing spectacle. A large number of Priceville people came over, but arrived just too late to participate in the prize competition, with one or two exceptions. The judges were S. Damude, T. Cole, and W. H. Thurston. Following is a list of the prize winners:

Best lady skater—Hattie Cole 1st, Mary Smith 2nd.

Best negro dude—Frank Sullivan.

Girl skater under 12—Gertie Vanzant.

Fat man—Ed. Chausse.

Cowboy—T. Hollinger.

Backward race—Frank Sullivan.

Best boy skater under 12—Fred Sproule.

Fancy dress—May Damude.

Best costume for lady under 16—Lily Powell.

Best lady and gent skaters—Frank Sullivan and Millie Vandusen.

Boy's race—Victor Kester 1st, John Bradley 2nd.

Young men's race—Joe Gibbons 1st, Malcolm McLean 2nd.

We neglected noticing last week that friend Fawcett has changed his neat looking eight page paper into a four page. His idea, we presume, is to give more matter on the same sized sheet of paper and by this means he is able to do so.

Died.

On Friday last Mr. Wm. R. Anderson, of this village, passed quietly away. Mr. Anderson was only a resident of this village about one year, during which time he was unable to work. He was a brother of Mr. J. G. Anderson, merchant. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon last, when a large number of friends and neighbors attended to pay their last respects to the dead. The remains were interred in Flesherton cemetery, funeral services being conducted by Revs. Messrs. Watson and Shilton.

Croup, whooping cough and Bronchitis quickly relieved by Shiloh's Cure. For sale at the Medical Hall.

A powerful deputation of the ladies waited on the Local Government Friday to urge the passage of Mr. Waters' bill extending the suffrage to members of the fair sex.

For men of fine physique Glenelg is not surpassed by any other township in the Province, in fact it has few equals. Six footers are the rule and there are fathers of the Glenelgers who go inches over that.—Durham Chronicle.

Mr. Parnell intends to bring a libel suit against the Times in the Irish courts.
