Apples That Keep

"Georgian Bay apples have an excellent reputation for keeping quality. I believe this reputation to be founded on actual facts of the case. Some of the most reliable apple buyers and handlers in the Province inform me that Georgian Bay apples are a safer proposition for storage purposes than apples from almost any other part of Ontario. The reasons are, I think because the Georgian Bay district enjoys a moderately cool summer season, and apples ripen there at comparatively low temperatures. The district has a short fall season, and apples ripen so close to winter that they do not begin to break down until late in the season."—Prof. J. W. Crow, Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph.

The Kingston Standard says there are 15 fewer daily newspapers, 40 less weeklies, and 12 semi-weeklies in Canada than in 1911, the reason being difficulty in making ends meet. The struggle for existence in the newspaper world has become so keen that every year a number of papers are forced out of the field. Strong papers are growing yet stronger, and weaker ones must fall. Wages are higher than ever before; cost of material is greater; and ordinary expenses have also increased, so that to-day the cost of publishing a newspaper is fully double that of ten years ago. The day is past when a newspaper can thrive in every little hamlet. The latest newspaper in this section of Ontario to give up the ghost was the Midland Times, and this after a three year's struggle. During this period the publisher dropped his entire investment of over $5000.
