George Francis Train has arrived at Tacoma, having circled the earth in 67 days 13 hours 3 minutes and 3 seconds.

place he was very glad to find that even at the eleventh hour his good friend the doctor, had accepted the Equal Rights platform. Twelve years ago he was before the electorate and again four years ago, and his addresses covered the ground which he still held on this occasion—equal rights to all and special privileges to none. These he had been endeavoring to carry out. He charged Dr. Hunt with being a turncoat, having heard him speak sneeringly of the Equal Rights movement. Now he embodied it in his platform. It was not a question of who was the most able man to represent the people, but who could do the greatest good by supporting his party. He read the unanimous declaration of the late Reform convention showing that they were "in strict accord with the past and present of the Mowat Government." Dr. Hunt was there and voted for this. He was the nominee of that party, and now wanted to get elected upon the Equal Rights platform. Major Rorke explained how it was an impossibility for a member to be an independent who was elected upon a party ticket, and scoffed at the idea that Dr. Hunt would be able to withstand the party whip if he were elected. Every man in Mr. Rorke's party was true to the principles of Mr. Meredith, and that gentleman was fighting for right principles. Mr. Rorke referring to the land improvement fund, stated that at the time of confederation the interest coming to this riding alone from Quebec amounted to nearly $30,000, and this was not secured owing to the unholy compact existing between Mr. Mowat and Mr. Mercier. He read an extract from the speech from the throne which proved that the Dominion Government had nothing whatever to do with this money, notwithstanding statements which had been made. No steps had been taken to secure this money, beyond the simple mentioning of it in the address. A former speaker had sneered at the idea of Major Rorke being a farmer. Perhaps he did not understand the circumstances. The Major said that he had been for many years a resident of this riding, and had cleared one hundred acres with his own hand. And yet he was accused of not being a farmer. Major Rorke then referred to the attempt which had been made by our agriculturists to secure a grant for the county shows. The Opposition had fought hard for the appointment of a Minister of Agriculture to be combined with some other portfolio, expecting that such appointment would be of great value to the farmer at little extra expense to the country. Mr. Mowat had made the appointment but made it a portfolio by itself. Yet here when the agricultural community had made its first demand upon him—and a just demand it was, Mr. Drury had left the impression with the delegation that something would be done. When the supplementary estimates had been brought down, however, no appropriation had been made for this purpose, and Mr. Rorke had asked from his place in the house if it was the intention to do anything in this matter. He was met with a decided "No." And this, too, notwithstanding the fact that a grant of $160,000 had been made a few days previous to an educational establishment! Mr. Rorke then referred to the French school question, giving an exhaustive account of the whole matter. He held in his hand the small book which the commission appointed to examine into these schools had found most objectionable, and read translations therefrom. The Dowling whitewash bill came in for a scathing bit of sarcasm, and Mr. Mowat's connection therewith was bitterly denounced. Mr. Rorke ended his address by saying that Mr. Meredith's policy was one which any true Canadian could endorse. It was a truly liberal policy. He thanked the audience for their patience in listening to him with such attention.

It is proposed to establish an extensive system of technical schools in Toronto for the instruction of artisans in science and useful arts.
