From our own Correspondent.

Last week there were two funerals in this neighborhood at the stone church cemetery.

On Tuesday Mr. Newton Smith's mortal remains were laid to rest here. The funeral cortege was accompanied by the Flesherton brass band and the members of No.6 company volunteers, and a large concourse of friends. On the day following all that was mortal of Mr. A. Melvin was borne to that same last resting place. It was just three weeks from the day that he and his aged partner arrived home again from British Columbia. This is surely fulfilling the old proverb that "the young may die but the old must." The first was the young man just entering on manhood, and the other the ancient of days who had stood the wintry blasts of over four-score years.

The Creemore Star devotes nearly a column and a half to giving the reeve of the village an overhauling for the ridiculous farce he makes of his position as magistrate. Said magistrate is reported to be afraid of enforcing the very by-laws which he has been instrumental in passing. A rather comical state of affairs, truly.

Constable Alpaugh of Fergus was in town on Monday in connection with a case of child desertion. Last Friday an old man and a young woman were noticed in Fergus making the purhcase of a basket and a shawl. That night the same basket and shawl were found by the roadside about two miles this side of Fergus and inside the articles was discovered a healthy male child about eight days old. The mysterious couple were traced to Vanatter and there the trail was lost. The police here were unable to give the Fergus "cop" any information and the identity of the child deserters still remains a mystery.—[Orangeville Advertiser.

The Newmarket Era relates a very peculiar case of accidental death of a Mr. Homer: While splitting wood one day, in his usual health, he raised a blister on his hand. No attention was paid to it until a day or two after when his hand commenced to swell, and the swelling continued to the elbow. A doctor was called in and after treating it for two days pronounced it a case of blood poisoning. Just a week after splitting the wood Mr. Homer was a corpse.

Chief Jackson, of Petrolia, was notified about 11 o'clock Monday morning by two young men from Brooke that their barn had been broken into, and about 60 bushels of oats stolen. The chief, after getting bare particulars, went to locate them. He succeeded in locating the stolen oats in the stable of one Thomas Naylor, who he promptly arrested, giving him in charge of Officer McRitchie. He then took into custody A. Luke and Thomas King as the parties who stole the oats. They afterwards confessed to the theft. The oats and bags with the owner's name were all recovered. The oats were stolen from the 2nd con., lot 9, of Brooke, and the owners are two young men named Archy and Duncan Campbell. From the time the police were notified, and the goods found to the time the prisoners were placed behind the bars was just two hours. The distance from Petrolia to where the robbery was committed is about 17 miles.

This is the way with the B. & C. corset: if you want ease and shapeliness, you buy it—but you don't keep it unless you like it.

After two or three weeks' wear, you can return it and have your money.
