BE-REAVED REEVES.

The "large and influential" deputation of reeves and mayors from this province, which waited upon Sir John Macdonald on Thursday last, received an intimation that their mission could not possibly be successful. If the demand made is a just one it will still be impossible to secure it to one province without other provinces sharing therein, and it is therefore a boon which will not be granted. The Empire of Monday waxed terribly satirical at the expense of delegates who attended from this part. It said: "Imagine, for instance, the representatives along the line of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce, one of the principal lines interested, approaching the Dominion Government and saying: 'You have taken from us our own little narrow gauge—you have made it a Dominion line, and part of Canada's great highway—and for the injury you have thereby done us we ask you to pay back the bonuses we have given.'"

Perhaps when we inform the Empire that since we lost "our own little narrow gauge" farming properties have deteriorated in value, shipping facilities are very little better than they were before the road was taken over, and that the "Dominion line" has not put one cent more in our pockets locally than the narrow gauge was doing, it will still consider us extremely ungrateful and silly to ask that all or a portion of our bonuses be refunded by the government which has taken the C. P. R. under its control; but the people will be slow to believe their cause was not a just one. The C. P. R. is, of course, a "glorious reality," and our branch is a rather important adjunct, but the glory attached to it is scarcely sufficient to counterbalance the large sum in hard cash which our people contributed towards its construction, and which has been absorbed and adopted in the interests of the empire, while those who did not pay one cent still enjoy the glory and benefits quite as much and more than the poor man who labored his fingers off to pay the tax imposed upon him for these railway bonuses. No. The people along this line do not see the "absurdity" of the plea raised, only the futility. They understand that it cannot be, but do not see that they have acted absurdly in making the demand. They still feel that they are laboring under an injustice, and one which will weigh upon them for a long time to come.

The first division of the new Dominion Parliament took place Wednesday of last week on Sir John Thompson's amendment giving the six months' hoist to the bill of Mr. Cameron, of Huron, amending the Franchise Act. The amendment was carried on a vote of 112 to 85, or a Government majority of 27 votes.

Up the Right Tree.

To the Editor of The Advance.

DEAR SIR,—The article over the signature of "John Boland" alias "little red-headed Johnny" as he recently, clown-like styled himself, answers itself by its own misrepresentations and biting venom. The composition in similarity, if not in identity, reminds me of the work of a well-known, wandering nondescript, a disgrace to a camp of gypsies. One would think, if John had a remnant of self respect, ere this he would feel an utter contempt for the production. Its unnaturalness is most painfully conspicuous. Whatever my composition and utterances are their responsibility is on myself, and every jot and title of which are susceptable of the clearest demonstration and proof at the proper time and place. In carefully re-reading the, to him, objectionable article, in which he finds, or pretends to find, allusions to himself, I notice that no ones name is mentioned further that the offending term "traitor" is written to apply to any person and the sentence "he drew more money than he was entitled" is wrested from its legitimate meaning. It may have been done ignorantly. I am not so much surprised at that, for with him it is an inherent quality on those lines. He is to be pitied, indeed, for his frenzy on his own blunders. Passion blinds and perverts the judgement, and at these imaginary charges he fairly boils over with rage. Alas! alas! the wonder is that if his hands are clean why did he voluntary stick them in the smut. As to my "popularity" wouldn't it be as well for him not to trouble about it? I am not seeking any, But it is very funny, if it be "waning" as he asserts, that I should have "elected my man." Don't be deceived, such vanity never possessed me. The present reeve's status in business, in probity, in honor, in education, and large taxable property, were marks of qualification satisfactory to the electorate, and I was one of them, that is all! I did institute a comparison between the reeve and himself, the whole sum, it seems, of my sinning. I knew John's ability so well that I spoke according to the book. And this was my "ways" and "means" of his defeat, so I infer he says, Well, I am satisfied. Now, had our present reeve canvassed on doubtful lines, wandered over the township at unreasonable hours of the night, buttonholed men because of society relations or political bias, as did this anxious man—methods which I never adopted—I would have given him the hoist. Those extraordinary exertions, accompanied with ignominious defeat, filled him with indefinable wrath, and his vials are emptied on my devoted head. What unexampled silliness, as if it affected me in the slightest, either morally or socially! To return to my offending article. It was purposely written to cut in any direction, as any candid reader can see, for until some time after it was written I was not quite sure who he was. My charity upon recent revival events screened him. Now, the real "Fair Play" and my greatly offended friend may, in one sense, be termed twins, municipally, for their motto was, "If you can't vote for me, vote for B." It is said that the Siamese twins usually thought alike, so do these in the sense named. The terms used by "Fair Play" pointed clearly to Esau, for they were his hands, and my reply aptly suited him in nearly every particular. He is an ex-councillor, he also assented to resolutions re treasurer. He was defeated, and but for some remaining confidence in the good effect of his earnestly expressed personal religion, out side of the church as well as in, my answer would have been quick, and explicit, and personal. As the matter now stands my faith falters, and I am doubtful if there remain a possibility to wash him. I was hoping for better things. Yet I owe no one malice or revenge. They are worthy citizens, and as such I esteem them. Their municipal aspirations and weaknesses (on which line my opposition rests) are to be deplored. Had they, knowing the facts, stood by the interests of the township, as much their duty as mine, re the treasurer, how different the issue. Is it not seen, however, that the treasurer or any one else may gobble up the people's money, as long as an opportunity offers to pelt the ex reeve with their nefarious onslaughts. I am sure the ratepayers will remember it to them. The hypocritical mention of 13th Cor. I allow to pass. With John, if a deputy reeveship dangled, it would be of no importance.

This closes my correspondence on this line. Personal recriminations are not profitable or desirable, especially when conducted by unscrupulous persons, however much duty impels me. Thanking you for so much space, I am yours,

W. S. CHRISTOE.

Maxwell.

From our own Correspondent.

Everyone and everything is quiet consequently news is scarce.

Fishing was the chief industry on Monday as there was no other amusement of any kind near and none so good far away for those who are fond of trout.

Reeve Gamey has returned from the capital.

Rev. H. A. Brown attended the district meeting at Collingwood this week.

Mr. George Smith occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church here last Sunday evening, and owing to the absence of the organist, Miss Sterling, Master Will Fairey took that position.

A short time ago the wife of Mr. Alex. Hudson presented him with a son. Both mother and son are well at present.

We are glad to know that our deputy reeve, Mr. D. K. Preston, is still recovering.

On last Sunday Mrs. McKeaveny departed this life. She was kind, sociable and pleasant through life and retained till her last moment. Although living about twenty-two years on borrowed time, yet a few weeks before her death she was almost as active as most young persons, but when death comes, whether young or old we must obey the summons. The old lady was kindly waited upon during her sickness by friends and doctor, but death must do its work.

JUDICIAL SALE

—OF—

FARM PROPERTY

—IN THE—

Township of Osprey.

PURSUANT to a judgment of the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division, in the matter of the estate of Duncan George Heron, late of the township of Osprey in the county of Grey, yeoman, deceased, Heron vs. Brownridge, and with the approval of Neil McLean, Esq., official referee, there will be offered for sale by tender the following property namely:

All and Singular,

That certain parcel or tract of land, situate lying and being in the said Township of Osprey and being the east half of lot thirteen in the seventh concession of the said township, containing fifty acres more or less. Forty six acres of this property are clear and the remainder is well timbered with good hard wood. The lot is situated about nine miles from Dundalk, the nearest railway station, and about the same distance from Flesherton. It is about five-eights of a mile from Maxwell P. O. and three-quarters of a mile from a school. A good gravel road, being the principal one in the township, passes in front of the lot. There is a good well on the property, and erected thereon are a good frame house, frame barn and other necessary out-buildings, all in fair repair. The fences are good. There are about two acres of good young orchard in bearing and well stocked with fruit trees.

Two Beautiful Young Girls
Who Will Create a Furore in Newport This Summer.

Newport is to have a sensation this summer.

It is authentically stated that the beautiful and celebrated daughters of Lord Dufferin, Beatrice and Adelaide, are to grace this famous resort with their presence this coming season.

It will be remembered that Beatrice's beautiful dark eyes have played havoc lately with the heart of Albert, the eldest son of the Prince of Wales. What it will amount to is as yet a matter of conjecture in England, The young ladies are acknowledged to be the most beautiful in all Europe, and there will be not a little excitement in the hearts of our American belles over their coming. They are exquisite dressers, and their costumes will be marvels of curiosity. Unlike most ladies, they know exactly what is suited to them. Some time ago they sent for the chief designer of the Paris house of The New York And Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar, and selected forty costumes each, the cost of which will amount to thousands of pounds.

Through the courtesy of these young ladies we have been permitted to copy for The New York And Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar two of their most exquisite costumes, which appear as figures 3 and 4 on the colored plates of the June number of this magazine, just out, and for which the publisher has issued, in the name of the American ladies, a card of thanks. It is rumored that the prince may follow the young ladies to Newport this summer. The New York And Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar has the exclusive right to publish each month at least one or more of the costumes in which the ladies Beatrice and Adelaide will appear.

All Men
