IS IT "ADEQUATE" HARRY?

● Adequate capacity to carry any probable load is of first importance whether you are building a bridge or wiring your farm. It might appear that enough wiring to give you lights and a minimum of motor equipment would do for a start. Beware of falling into that mistake. It will only cause you needless expense and inconvenience later on.

Electricity should be a worker as well as a convenience on the farm. You will gradually discover many ways in which you can save time and money by using more electricity. When and if you decide to have an electric stove in the kitchen, a water heater in your home or dairy, or an extra motor some place or another, have the necessary wiring all done and ready right from the start. The most economical time to wire adequately is the first time you wire.

Ask any reliable electrical contractor or your Hydro rural superintendent for advice on adequate wiring. You will always be glad that you did it right the first time.

ASK YOUR HYDRO RURAL OFFICE FOR THE NEW FOLDER "HYDRO GOES TO WORK ON THE FARM"!
