YOU know it if you have PILES! you'll know it QUICKLY when pile miseries are RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any rectal itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when so fine a remedy may be had at such a small cost. Money back if you are not entirely pleased.

NOTE—The sponsor of this notice is an old, reliable firm doing business in Canada for over 20 years. Hem-Roid must help your annoying and painful pile condition—must do it quickly, easily and pleasantly or your own test of this remarkably successful formula costs you nothing. Try it today.

Strikes Don't Fit In With Farming

Farmers Must Accept Losses When They Withhold Products

Among the more sensational headlines dealing with the latest meat crisis in the Toronto area were the ones hinting at a strike of Ontario beef producers, says the Financial Post. Details were necessarily vague for the very good reason that such a proposal is just about unadulterated nonsense. The strikes don't fit in with farming any more than schemes for the five-day week or the eight-hour day.

About the nearest thing of that kind was the refusal of millions of Russian "kulaks" to co-operate with the Soviet authorities 25 years ago. The result was mass starvation, with the farmers themselves the chief victims.

Nature Asserts Itself

The basic difficulty in enforcing a farm strike or five-day week is the refusal of Nature to play ball. Grass and cattle will continue to grow. Calves, lambs and chicks continue to be born. Cows must be milked and pigs must be fed no matter what the owner may think about it. If he refuses to cut the hay or milk the cows, then he himself is the first to lose. Like the indiv lual businessman, the farmer's main interest must be production, as continuous and economically as possible.

Switch May Be Necessary

It is ridiculous for the producer of beef cattle or any other farm commodity to think of withholding any marketable product for any length of time. Once it passes the right stage for processing, it begins to deteriorate or it runs up storage charges. If grain-fattened cattle are turned out to grass, they will lose their finish and all the work and feed that went into that finishing is largely wasted. Once hogs are brought to the approved 200-odd pound market weight, they must be butchered or they will be docked for excess fat and coarseness of flesh. And even the unfortunate who has never left the city pavement knows what happens to fruit and vegetables if kept too long.

If, as a result of excessive cost or low price, a product fails to produce a consistent profit, the farmer will, if he can, gradually switch to somethin, else, but he only pyramids his losses by refusing to sel' what he has already produced.

Fantastic Prices At Farm Auction

Sam Grummett held an auction sale the other day on his farm at Maxwell, Ont., north of Dundalk. A hayloader which Sam bought four years ago for $152 sold for $205, and a 21-year-old mower bought second hand for $5 was sold at the sale for $22. A set of harrows bought 13 years ago for $3.75 brought $30 at the sale and a cultivator which cost $26 when purchased 21 years ago was bid up to $50. Yearling cattle sold for $75 and cows up to $129. Seven sows and 30 young pigs sold for $629.50.

SPOTS OF SPORTS

By FRANK MANN HARRIS
("A Six Bit Critic")

Prior to last Saturday's Kentucky Derby it had been a considerable stretch of time since last we had the pleas- - - privilege of hearing Mr. Ted Husing steaming up the air-waves. But we hadn't been listening to him for more than half a minute before we again became conscious of certain sentiments which, in former days, always used to come over us whenever we heard that particular microphone-artist in action; said sentiments being, (1) What a master of the situation he is; (2) What a marvellous flow of language he possesses; and (3) What a severe pain in the neck he gives us.

* * *

These, of course, are strictly personal entiments, although we know of several who share them. But it's a funny thing how just the very tones of some broadcasters' voices can seem to set your nerves on edge. We know quite well that Brother Husing rates very close to being tops in his profession, and that it little behooves the likes of us to be critizing one so eminent. And yet, somehow or other, it's impossible for us to listen to him without the feeling that there are two of him there—the one doing the job, and the other standing off and admiring the super-superlative job the first is doing.

* * *

However, the actual race sounded O.K., good old Clem McCarthy calling same in his usual workmanlike and efficient fashion. And the snooty remarks we have just passed about Mr. Husing are no doubt nothing but a case of sour grapes because we didn't have a $10 wager on the winner, who certainly didn't perform like any eight-to-one shot. In our own defense we might state that we did consider very seriously making a small investment in ASSAULT, being deterred from so doing by only three small matters—lack of cash in pocket, lack of credit with books, and inability to decide between ASSAULT and some nine other starters.

* * *

A constant source of amazement to us is finding out how many things there are we feel absolutely confident of knowing—and then discovering, in a pinch, that we don't know them at all. For instance, right after the Kentucky Derby, already referred to, a junior member of the family, who had been languidly listening to Clem McCarthy describe ASSAULT winning by eight lengths, popped up with a seemingly-innocent query. It was, "Say, pop, just how far is a length?"

* * *

We were immediately beset with one of those severe coughing spells which always seem to attack a person—and which come in so very handy—at such junctures. But this one did no good at all. Not even waiting for our coughing to subside, and showing an utter lack of sympathy for our sufferings, our whole mob was on the trail, insisting on a definite answer to a definite question—Just what distance constitutes 'a length' in horse racing.

* * *

As soon as we had cooled out somewhat, we had recourse to the record-books to try and find out what really does constitute length. And, while no doubt there is a definite ruling some place or other, the nearest we could come to it was in Frank Menke's book where it says—"the average racehorse is something over eight feet in length while running with neck stretched out."

And so, pending the receipt of more accurate information, that is where we propose to leave the matter. And if, some evening, curly-haired little Iodine should look up at you out of her big blue orbs and say, "Daddy, how far is a length" you can tell her with our compliments, that eight feet is close enough to being correct as to make no matter. And then, gently but firmly push the little darling off to bed or, first thing you know, she'll be asking you if, in timing horse-races, the time is taken from exact instant when the barrier is sprung.

* * *

With regard to that last one, we may say that the time is not taken from the springing of the barrier—but might add that probably nine out of ten folks who attend horse races think that it is, and what difference does it really make, after all? With which profound thought we will mercifully leave you for another week.

Farmers Combine To Do Their Buying

We do not advocate that farming should be in the hands of a few big organizations, but there is no reason why adjacent groups of farmers should not combine to do their buying in the same way that co-operative groups combine to do their selling, says the St. Thomas Times -Journal.

There are regions in Canada where from 12 to 20 farmers have got together under this system. Instead of each man buying his own equipment, his own seed, fertilizers and other needs, they buy as a unit. By co-operative efforts they get their seeding, plowing and other work done at the right seasons, and by buying in quantities they get their supplies cheaper.

Thus instead of hundreds or thousands of farmers working as individual units at high individual cost which prevents them getting what they regard as economical prices for their produce, they would reduce overhead costs and would not require to ask the unfortunate city people to pay continually higher prices out of fixed incomes.

REJECTS GABLE

Ilona Massey, glamorous Hungarian actress, is believed to be the only girl who won't go out with Clark Gable. In fact, she stated, she turns him down consistently. It's not Mr. Gable's fault. Miss Massey is a girl who lives alone, likes it, and intends to stay that way.
