To Keep Garden Free From Slugs

Slugs are the grey, snail-like creatures which rasp the leaves of tender vegetables, leaving a slimy trail on the foliage and on the soil beneath the plants. They shun daylight and thrive only where there is an abundance of moisture, being most troublesome in rainy seasons, in damp shady corners of the garden, and in low-lying areas of heavy land. Slugs will feed on almost all vegetables, but are particularly fond of beans, lettuce, cabbage, and cauliflower. They attack celery in the bleaching process. They eat shallow circular pits in the fruits of tomatoes, and in the autumn they bore into the roots of carrots and beets.

* * *

Plants in infested soil may be protected by a thin film of hydrated lime which is dusted over the foliage and on the ground in the evening after the sun has gone down and feeding has commenced, says W. G. Mattewson, Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Hydrated lime is effective only when dry, and for this reason a few dustings at intervals of three or four days is much more effective than one heavy application.

The lower as well as the upper surfaces of the leaves, should be covered and the surrounding soil should be coated in such a way that the slugs will have to crawl through the dust before they can reach the plants, or the plants may be sprayed thoroughly with bordeaux mixture. This material is repellent to the slugs, and plants kept covered with the spray will be largely protected from attack.

Baits consisting of metaldehyde and bran have given satisfactory control of slugs in small gardens but are too expensive for use under field conditions. They may be bought ready-mixed at most seed stores and should be used according to the manufacturer's directions.

Under the Roof of World's Largest Exhibition Building

After an absence of six years, while Exhibition Park was devoted to war service, Canada's finest exhibits of livestock, poultry, grain, vegetables, fruit and flowers, and other activities of interest to farmers will be on display at the Canadian National Exhibiton, Toronto, the world's largest annual exposition.

Entries are pouring into the C.N.E.'s agriculture department, which has planned a lavish showing for the first Ex. since 1941. The farm exhibits will be housed in the world's largest exhibition building — the Horse Palace, Coliseum and Livestock Pavilion—which covers 24½ acres and has an arena with a seating capacity of 12,000.

$125,000 in Prizes

Prizes totalling $125,000 in value will be offered to exhibitors, who send entries from every part of Canada and from many sections of the United States.

The Coliseum will be the scene of judging of horses and cattle. Judging begins Wednesday, August 27th, and continues each day, in various departments, until September 3rd. The famous Horse Show, which is attracting many famous jumpers and hunters, as well as agricultural horses, will be held from Monday, September 1st, to Saturday, September 6th.

There will be competitions for horse breeding classes, beef and fleece wool, cut flowers, fruit, goats, plants, vegetables, poultry, pigeons, dairy cattle, sheep, swine, cats, dogs cage birds, rabbits, conies and other pet stock.

Pets and Grain

More than 6,000 entries have been received for the poultry, pigeon and pet stock show. There are nearly 1300 separate classifications for classes of large fowl and bantams, turkeys and waterfowl, rabbits and other small furred pets, pigeons and caged birds. Twenty-one outstanding judges will decide the winners.

Specal classes are open to members of Ontario agricultural societies for grain and seed in sacks and for sheaf groups. Prize money will be shared, 60 per cent. to the winning exhibitor and 40 per cent. to the society of which he is a member. To allow for varying climatic and soil conditions, exhibits will be placed in three divisions, with separate prizes for each. Roughly, they are Muskoka, Parry Sound, Haliburton and Northern Ontario; York and Simcoe counties and Eastern Ontario; Western Ontario.

General Program

In addition to the exhibits of special interest to farm people, the 1947 C.N.E. has arranged an outstanding program for the entire two weeks from August 22 to September 6 (excluding Sundays). There will be music by the United States Navy Band and 40 other bands, free outdoor variety shows, world's championshp softball games, world's professional swimming marathon, radar in action, television, specially imported French automobiles, Hitler's personal armored car, Olsen and Johnson of "Hellzapoppin" fame, the latest in motor cars and radio, eleborate pure food and commercial displays, "Silk from Eggs to Fabric"—a live silkworm display—a dog derby, baby show, a new permanent midway with many new features, and a host of other attractions both entertaining and educational.

Holding a Model Plane as he explains its construction to air cadets Jim Plummer, 14, right, and Glen Barkwell, 14, both of Thorold, is Sergt. Henry Liddle. The air cadets study air frames, radio equipment, armament, meteorology and navigation at summer course in Camp Borden, Ont.

Ontario Traffic Toll Sharply Up in June

Traffic accidents took the lives of 69 persons in Ontario in June and left many critically injured in hospitals.

Analysis of fatality reports appearing in provincial papers during the month shows,—23 pedestrians killed, 18 drivers, 23 passengers, 4 cyclists and one person killed in a horse drawn vehicle.

The death and accident toll was spread widely across the province, totalled 16 more deaths than in May and 24 more deaths than in June of last year.

Ontario is however, making progress in traffic accident prevention but there is no justification for complacency. Ten years ago, in June, 1937, there were 75 persons killed and 1123 injured; in July of that year (1937) the death toll reached 101, the worst for any month in Ontario's history. Since then, the volume of traffic in Ontario, number of licensed drivers and vehicles has increased greatly and so also has the influx of U.S. drivers. The traffic toll is not however, as high.

Victory Smile—Here's South Africa's Bobby Locke and the Seagram Gold Cup, emblematic of Canadian golfing supremacy, after Locke had established a record of 268 for 72 holes in the Canadian Open Golf Championships at Toronto Scarboro. Locke's victory takes the Seagram Gold Cup out of North America for the first time in history.

Sports – And One Thing or Another

By FRANK MANN HARRIS
("A Sixbit Critic")

Some 15 thousand people paid actual money to attend a Track and Field meet in Toronto the other day; and this, on the face of it, should undoubtedly crimson the cheeks of some of us writers who so brazenly assert that such affairs are painfully boring, and sadly lacking in customer appeal. "How long has this been going on?" remarked one sports promoter to his partner, as they gazed on those well-fitted stands. "Maybe, now, we've been overlooking a gold mine."

* * *

But ere you start feeling too badly for us in our hour of shame, or think very seriously of promoting something of the sort yourself, it might be well not to overlook a couple of angles. One, that the meet in question was under the auspices of the Police; and in the matter of selling tickets an Officer of the Law seems to have—for some reason obscure to us—quite an edge over, say, a member of the Y.M.C.A.

* * *

And, Two—of the 15 thousand present, an estimated 14 thousand 9 hundred paid no attention whatever to anything except a Beauty Contest which just happened to be one of the many features. For it is a sad commentary on our Western civilization, and one that no doubt causes many head-shakings around the Kremlin, that a comely tomato in a bathing suit will attract more eyes than the greatest vaulter who ever climbed a pole.

* * *

Which recalls the Copy Writer in the Department Store advertising bureau who was busily engaged in coopering an announcement for a new line of feminine bathing costumes. His headline, as somebody took a peek over his shoulder, read —SWIM SUITS DESIGNED TO REVEAL ALL MILADY'S BEST FEATURES. "Couldn't you save space and wordage," said the kibitzer, "by just putting a period after the word ALL?"

* * *

Whenever we see the name of Babe Didrickson Zaharias — greatest girl athlete who ever lived—it recalls one of the funniest experiences we ever had in connection with sport. One afternoon, while his mother went shopping, we were left in charge of our three-year-old son; and, to pass the time away, took him around to the local wrestling office. There, greatly abetted and encouraged by the grapplers sitting around, he proceeded to raise merry Aitch to such an extent that we were forced to use stern measures. These measures consisted of a mild slap on the place by Nature provided—one which the kid hardly felt, or even noticed for that matter.

* * *

But after his mother had collected the youngster and gone on her way, one of the wrestlers sat there looking extremely sad and depressed. We asked him what was wrong. "I just can't get over how cruel you were to that poor little kid," was the undoubtedly sincere reply. That night we watched the very same grappler with thousands yelling for his blood because of the "tortures" he was ghoulishly inflicting on an apparently helpless opponent—for he was one of the really "Bad Men" of that period. His name, George Zaharias—husband of The Babe—with a heart as big as himself and as soft as custard.

* * *

We know of a teen-age lad who takes a rather gloomy outlook on things as they are. Trying to get a job for the Summer Holidays he came home one evening with the tidings that he'd been turned down by four prospective employers because of not yet having his Junior Matric. "I guess about the only thing a guy can be nowadays without knowing anything," he moodily remarked, "is either a writer or a Member of Parliament."

* * *

At a race track recently we were asked to explain something which sooner or later puzzles practically all newcomers to The Sport of Kinks. The question was, "Why are there no races at a distance of an even mile?" For while you can find races carded at almost any distance between four furlongs and a couple of miles, those just one mile in length are about as scarce as southpaw tonsorial artists.

* * *

The explanation is simple, and comes from the fact that most tracks on this side of the water are one mile around. In order to have a long straight run at the end, as well as to provide the most close-up thrills for the most people, the finish line is placed well past the halfway mark of the home stretch. So in a race at one mile, before the horses got straightened out after the break they would be into the first turn, with plenty of spills and pile-ups ensuing. To avoid this, extra yardage is added, so that we have races at such odd distances as 1 mile 5 yards, 1 mile 70 yards and so forth. Of course you, gentle reader, knew all this years and years ago; but there's always a new crop of patrons coming up, some of whom may have wondered.

* * *

Banks and bankers, of course, do their best to encourage the sober, moral and virtuous life. Still, we know a man who, in a strange city, wanted to cash a check for a fairly large amount. Asked to identify himself he produced, among other papers, a card bearing his name as a member of a well known Bible Class. The bank manager still hesitating he then pulled out his Liquour Permit—and got the money without further ado.

* * *

And with negro players being signed up so frequently these days in Big League Baseball circles, no doubt we shall be seeing more of them operating in the National Hockey League.

Army Style

First rookie: "I hear you had a wrestling match with the top sergeant. What happened-"

Second rookie: "Well, I decides to surprse him, so I jumps at him and grabs his wrist like this, and jerks his neck like this, and before he knows what hits him, I'm vat my back."
