IN MISERY AT MEAL TIME

Indigestion Can Be Cured By the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

If your digestion is weak you cannot derive proper nourishment from your food. The pain and distress you suffer is a protest from your stomach that it is unable to do its work. It is then that you lose all appetite, have dull headaches, acute pains in the chest and abdomen, heartburn and other distressing symptoms.

You cannot cure indigestion by the use of laxatives, and pre-digested foods only make the stomach more sluggish. Indigestion can only be cured by giving tone to and strengthening the nerves that control the stomach. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured indigestion times without number, because they purify and enrich the blood. In this way they improve the appetite, dispel the torments of indigestion and enable you to derive benefit from the food you take. The following is proof of these statements. Mrs. George Brien, Great Shemogue, N.B., says: "A few years ago I was taken down with a fever which left me suffering from nervous stomach trouble. I apparently got over it, but the trouble could not have been wholly eradicated, as during the summer of 1912 I was taken down with it again. I took many medicines, and was attended by two different doctors, but instead of getting well seemed to be growing worse. I could not eat without suffering the most intense pains; even a drink of milk seemed to upset me. I slept poorly and at last dreaded to see night come. In this condition I saw in a newspaper the story of a woman who had similarly suffered and was cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to try the Pills and found by the time I had taken three boxes that they were helping me. I continued using the Pills until I had taken eight boxes, when the trouble had disappeared, and I have to thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for restoring my health after I had practically given up hope of ever being well again."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HUNGER BRINGS HEALTH.

Fasting As a Cure for Many Troublesome Complaints.

"These hunger-strikes, doctor," inquired a London Answers man of a famous London physician, "are they dangerous to life"

"Oh, yes!" said the doctor. "They may be dangerous for a delicate woman, but incidentally they cure a lot of troublesome ailments.

"Fasting relieves pain of almost every kind. If you have a bad toothache, refrain from food for twenty-four hours, and ten to one your toothache will vanish.

"Are you gouty or rheumatic? Then the sovereign cure is a good long fast.

"Paralysis you probably think is an incurable disease. No doubt many forms are, but miraculous recoveries have occurred under treatment by fasting. Men who had abandoned all hope, and who then tried fasting, for thirty, forty, and even fifty days, had the use of their limbs completely restored.

"How does this happen? My theory is that certain waste matters, poisoning the nerves, are often the cause of the disease, and by a prolonged fast these are removed.

"I have known a patient suffer for years from chronic catarrh of the nose and air passages. No doctor could cure the trouble, but a twenty days' fast completely cured it in this instance.

When a Woman Suffers With Chronic Backache

There Is Trouble Ahead.

Constantly on their feet, attending to the wants of a large and exacting family, women often break down with nervous exhaustion.

In the stores, factories, and on a farm are weak ailing women, dragged down with torturing backache and bearing down pains.

Such suffering isn't natural but it's dangerous, because due to diseased kidneys.

The dizziness, insomnia, deranged menses and other symptoms of Kidney complaint can't cure themselves, they require the assistance of Dr. Hamilton's Pills which go direct to the seat of the trouble.

To give vitality and power to the kidneys, to lend aid to the bladder and liver, to free the blood of poisons, probably there is no remedy so successful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. For all womanly irregularities their merit is well known.

Because of their mild, soothing, and healing effect, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are safe, and are recommended for girls and women of all ages. 25 cents per box at all dealers. Refuse any substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

THE MYSTERY OF LAKE CHAD.

Inland Lake in the Sahara Which Baffles Travellers.

The report of the Tilho mission, which has recently returned to France from a long study of geography, geology, and ethnology in the French Sudan, has raised again the old problem of Lake Chad. All the travellers who have crossed the Sahara in the past century have been baffled by this inland lake, as large as Belgium, and as shallow as a fish pond.

The chief puzzle of Chad is its outlet. Since its waters are fresh, it is fair to assume that it has an outlet. But it is certainly underground. Only native tradition is positive. This declares that the Niger, and the Shari, which enters Lake Chad, were once tributaries of the Nile, and flowed across the Libyan desert.

Such a legend seemed preposterous half a century ago, but recent years have added to the credibility of native tradition. Thus the Nigerian tribes say that the Niger, instead of running southward at the great bend, used to flow north, and buried itself in the great Sahara. Chudeau and Gautier, the most careful explorers of the region, believe that the Niger long emptied its waters into another Caspian Sea, in the great depression of El Juf, in the western Sahara.

As to the legend of Lake Chad and the Nile, the Tilho mission has brought back a partial confirmation. At the northeast corner of the lake there remains the dry bed of an ancient river, which in the rainy season occasionally contains water; this is the Bahr-el-Gazal, and the natives say it is the old outlet to the Nile. But so far as the expedition followed the bed of this stream, it kept a level identical with Lake Chad.

There remains the mystery as to whether in the unexplored interior the Bahr-el-Gazal touches the foot of a dried-up cataract where a vanished river reached Lake Chad thus prolonged, or whether it reaches a slope down which the outlet of Lake Chad began its journey toward the Nile across the present Libyan desert. Not until French rule in Wadai is more firmly established, and French, Italian, and British explorers reach Borku, will the riddle be read.

The suspicion grows, however, that when all the measurements and geological examinations are at last made, they will only confirm the Bornu tradition that in the days before the blight of perpetual drought came to northern Africa, Lake Chad was like Victoria Nyanza, one of the sources of the Nile.

The Small Boy Again.

A clergyman famous for his begging abilities was once catechising a Sunday School. When comparing himself as pastor of the church to a shepherd, and his congregation to the sheep, he put the following question to the children—"What does the shepherd do for the sheep?" To the confusion of the minister a small boy in the front row piped out, "Shears them!"

ORIGIN OF PETROLEUM.

Observations May Further Solution of Some Problems.

The principles governing the origin and mode of occurrence of petroleum and natural gas are as yet but fragmentarily grasped by geologists. Every oil field examined in detail contributes its data for use in the eventual interpretation of the problems, and each pool is studied with keen alertness for the discovery of some key that may aid in the co-ordination of the data, which sometimes, according to the region and conditions, seem, on account of our lack of knowledge, even to be in conflict.

The observations made by the geologists of the United States geological survey in the oil and gas fields of California and Kentucky promise to further the solution of some of the problems, and by pointing out the relations of oil and gas occurrence to the geological structure of the regions examined they have rendered important scientific as well as economic aid in oil and gas development; but the basic principles controlling the widely-varied modes of occurrences in the kinds of oils in widely separated regions are possibly still far from view.

THE REVOLUTION OF ANNE.

So Busy With Dresses Had Not Time for Kind Deeds.

As she came down the Morgans' steps, Rita Mitchell paused a moment irresolutely. "Four calls and three teas are as much as my constitution can stand in one afternoon," she decided. "I'm going to reward myself by running in at Anne's. Besides, I want to know why she wasn't at the Hamiltons'." Anne was at home. She looked up with a start at the sound of Rita's step in the doorway. Rita's gay glance took in Anne's shirt waist and the glowing mass of embers in the fireplace.

"You shirk!" she cried. "You haven't been out to-day. Aren't you ashamed! What excuse shall you make to the Hamiltons'?"

"I was busy," Anne replied. "I'm starting a revolution."

"A revolution!" Rita echoed.

Anne nodded. "In myself. About clothes and time, and several other things."

"Anne Marshall, will you kindly explain?" Rita cried. "Do you suppose I like to feel stupid?"

"It began," Anne replied, obediently, "by my getting mad."

"I've known one or two things to begin that way before," Rita murmured.

"Exactly. This time, I got mad with Aunt Sarah. Mother asked me if I had been to see Alice Grantley, and I said I hadn't had time, because the dressmaker kept me so long. And then Aunt Sarah remarked that people used to care more about souls than about the clothes that hid them. I flared up, and delivered an address upon the progress of the age, the esoteric significance of clothes, and my own noble self-restraint in the matter. It was a brilliant piece of eloquence."

"I have no doubt of it," Rita said, laughing.

"Well, I came upstairs in a glow of virtuous indignation. Then I began to think over the past ten days. And then the revolution began. Rita Mitchell, have you any idea how much time you spend on your clothes?"

"Not in the least," Rita answered, frankly.

Anne drew a long breath.

"In the last ten days I have been downtown five times—four times for a morning, once all day. I've been to the dressmaker three times, an average of two and a half hours each time. And I spent three mornings with a seamstress at home. I have no time for reading, or to go to see a sick friend, or do anything worth while, because I'm always either buying clothes or showing them off. So I'm going to start a revolution."

"But how?" Rita cried.

"That," Anne declared, seriously, "is the next step to be worked out. But it's something gained to face the truth."

Suspected of Crime.

"Isn't it awful about poor Mr. Jone's trouble?"

"I didn't hear about it."

"Didn't you? Mrs. Gaddy told me just now that his son has turned out to be a criminal lawyer."

As a boy I was accustomed to have my mother use Nerviline for all our minor ailments, and remembering what confidence she had in Nerviline, I sent out for a bottle at once. Between noon and eight o'clock I had a whole bottle rubbed on, and then got into a perspiration under the blankets.
